STATES' COSTS QUADRUPLE IN FOURTEEN YEARS

Census Figures Show Great Expense.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Operation of state governments cost the taxpayers $2,290,270,059 last year, as compared with $2,061,016,833 the previous year and $517,503,220 in 1917.

Announcing its compilation today, the census bureau reported aggregate state revenues for the 1930 fiscal year were $2,243,110,687, and net indebtedness $1,833,427,871.

Operation and maintenance of the general departments of the forty-eight governments amounted to $1,390,505,636, or $1.40 per capita. Payments for operation and maintenance of public service enterprises totaled $9,559,634; interest on debts, $101,430,598, and outlays for permanent improvements $788,774,191.

More for Education.

An increase in apportionment for education of $28,811,109 over the 1929 outlay was reported, while interest charges also increased $7,293,926.

Expenditures for permanent improvements were principally for highways, constituting 80.5 per cent of the total outlays. Next in rank were costs of charities, hospitals, and corrections, amounting to $62,117,652, and education costing $40,091,197.

In 1930 the bureau reported 23 states not only balanced their budgets but had a surplus of revenue receipts after meeting all governmental costs. Of these 23 states showing an excess of revenue, 20 reported a reduction in their net indebtedness for the year.

Per capita receipts were $18.39, against $17.11 in 1929, and $5.14 in 1917.

Gas Tax Big Item.

The principal items of revenue were $399,523,438 from motor fuel taxes, $345,186,629 general property taxes, $296,423,525, motor vehicle licenses, $180,794,241 inheritance taxes [collected in 45 states], $96,451,517 special property taxes, and $76,530,014 income taxes [collected in 15 states].

The net indebtedness [funded or fixed debt less sinking fund assets] continued to increase, and in 1930 was $1,833,427,871, or $15.03 per capita, as against $14.04 the preceding year and $4.39 in 1917.

Twenty-eight states decreased their indebtedness, but the total increase in the net debt was $143,601,323.

Assessed valuation of property in the states amounted to $165,727,457,376, an increase over 1929 of $2,044,324,449.

ASKS BILLIONS FOR DAMS

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—President Hoover's proposal of federal development of the Columbia river was revealed today as an 850 million dollar power and irrigation project compared with which the 165 million dollar Hoover dam at Boulder canyon to furnish Los Angeles with water and power sinks into the piker class of treasury grabs.

Yet, enormous as is this proposed expenditure of federal taxpayers' money for local subsidies, the project is only a small part of a Hoover plan, so vast as to stagger the comprehension, for the construction of dams and storage reservoirs throughout the country at a cost of billions of dollars for water conservation and flood control.

Stirs Dissension in Cabinet.

Notwithstanding the popular agitation for decreasing instead of increasing federal government expenditures for cessation of arid land reclamation and for getting the government out of power development and other business enterprises, the President is advancing these plans, though not without stirring dissension in his cabinet.

The vast power development, irrigation, and water conservation schemes are being promoted by Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur, who sees in them a means of saving from the scrap heap the reclamation service of his department which, with the reclamation fund bankrupt and reclamation becoming increasingly unpopular, is threatened with extinction.

"The reclamation service should be extended to cover these broad purposes of storage and conservation of water rather than the narrow purpose of irrigation," said the President in his recent message to congress advocating this and other governmental reorganization.

Secretary Hyde Protests.

Against all of these projects involving reclamation of more land to be cultivated in competition with farm lands already producing more food than can be consumed is Secretary

JAPANESE TAKE KIANGWAN, NOW "CITY OF DEAD"

1,600 Slain Civilians Found in Debris.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Pictures on back page.)

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29 [Monday].—Chinese military authorities today officially admitted the evacuation of Kiangwan, on the Shanghai-Woosung battle front, on Friday night. They said that with the town entirely destroyed by the Japanese bombardment and with some 1,600 bodies of civilian men, women and children scattered unburied in the ruins, a fight to hold it was no longer possible.

The Chinese report declares that not one house in Kiangwan, which previously had a population of 15,000, is left standing. The destruction included the Kuomintang's university, the Chinese barracks, and all public buildings.

New Bombardment Opens.

As dawn broke today the entire 16 mile front was shaken by Chinese and Japanese artillery fire. The roar of the big guns greeted the arrival of fresh Japanese troops, who poured into Shanghai.

The bombardment extended from Chapei to beyond Kiangwan and followed last night's "peace parley" between Chinese and Japanese leaders aboard a British warship and at which the Chinese rejected Japan's latest proposals to stop the bloodshed.

This morning's hostilities began when the Japanese land and sea forces decided to open a joint offensive on the Chinese positions southwest of Kiangwan. A large force of bluejackets landed and advanced in the face of heavy trench mortar and machine gun fire from the Chinese trenches.

Attack Ruins of Chapei.

Almost at the same time the Japanese hurled their newly arrived troops into battle at the doors of the international settlement. Artillery, machine gunners, airplanes, and infantry attacked the ruins of Chapei from their positions in Hongkew park. The Chinese replied to the offensive with their trench mortars.

Many Japanese troops were wounded during the fighting at Kiangwan today when the Chinese opened a counter-attack and made a desperate effort to recapture the "City of Dead." The Chinese poured shells into the ruins.

All fronts were quiet on Sunday, from the standpoint of artillery and infantry actions, but Japanese seaplanes again visited Tzetzeling fort, on the Yangtze river near Woosung, and poured down more bombs. The seaplanes also bombed the Chinese lines near Tazang and blew up a powder magazine, according to Japanese military headquarters.

Bomb Air Base Ruins.

Japanese bombing planes also visited the Hungjao air base again and demolished the walls of one hangar still standing after last week's air raid. An office building was also destroyed.

The Japanese communique today said that when the Japanese troops entered Kiangwan they found twenty Chinese, men and women, still alive, but nearly dead from starvation. The Japanese provided food, the report added.

The Japanese alleged that Chinese casualties in the last two days have exceeded 6,000 and said that 200 trucks loaded with wounded entered the French concession today bound for hospitals.

The Japanese headquarters revised their casualty figures today, reporting 128 bluejackets killed and 625 wounded since the beginning of the Shanghai battle. The army's losses were announced as 104 killed and 975 wounded. Total casualties were given as 1,882, of which 232 were killed.

BOXER, SHOT IN EYE BY BANDIT, WILL RECOVER

Theodore Smith, 22 years old, 1220 South Harding avenue, an amateur boxer, who was shot in the left eye while resisting a bandit who attempted to rob him early yesterday in the Thatcher Woods forest preserve, was pronounced out of danger last night. Physicians at St. Anne's hospital, where he was taken, also said there was an even chance of saving his eyesight.

Smith was parked in his automobile with Miss Mildred Kleiman, 3642 Douglas boulevard, in a clearing in the preserve near River Forest. The bandit suddenly opened the door of the car, leveled a revolver at Miss Kleiman and demanded her money and jewelry.

Smith grabbed for the gun. The robber fired, his bullet striking Smith near the eye. The bandit fled as Miss Kleiman screamed. Several other couples, parked nearby, hurried to her aid.

Henry W. Groh, 946 Wesley avenue, Oak Park, and Miss Lorraine Kroc, 248 Clinton avenue, Oak Park, reported they had been robbed by the same bandit while parked in the preserve. Miss Kroc lost two rings and Groh gave up $10.

Nature Knows It's Spring in Spite of Date

Officially, spring in the latitude of Chicago begins on March 20. But for all practical purposes spring is here.

The mean temperature for the last five days has averaged about 45, or fifteen degrees above normal. Today, according to the official forecast, is to continue mild and fair, and tomorrow's temperatures are expected to be balmy, too, although the sky may be clouded.

Yesterday's high on the thermometer was 53. That was only one of the signs of spring. Others reported were:

Not one, but conventions of robins seen in the western suburbs from La Grange to Niles.

A Bluebird in Flossmoor.

A bluebird, warbling merrily in Flossmoor, a full month ahead of his schedule.

Two gentlemen with butterfly nets, supposedly pursuing insects in the forest preserve around Palos Park, and themselves pursued by the highway police who believed they were out for no good.

The swelling of the pussy willow buds in the Fox river valley.

Impromptu baseball games in Jackson, Lincoln and other parks, and in prairie lots.

Lilac buds everywhere around the city getting ready to thrust forth their foliage.

Tulip shoots an inch and a half high and hyacinth shoots reported peeping out of the ground in Evanston.

Fishermen in Lincoln Park.

Fishermen sitting patiently along the Lincoln park lagoons.

Amateur gardeners preparing their soil for the early radish and onion. A few told traveling observers that they were going to set out their gardens at once.

All such harbingers of spring were supported by an unusual amount of automobile touring, horse riding in the parks, and promenading of baby carriages along the boulevards.

Downstate the effects of a mild winter and a precocious spring were just as marked. Around Quincy farmers for several weeks have been plowing and disking their ground and it was said that within two weeks thousands of acres of oats will be sown.

Plenty of Moisture.

The lack of snow apparently has had no bad effect on winter crops. Wheat in some sections is reported high enough for rabbits to hide in. Moisture has been abundant, in marked contrast to the dry winter two years ago, and the subsoil is declared to be sufficiently soaked to promise good 1932 crops.

Mild temperatures have enabled farmers to feed their stock outside most of the winter. Dairy cattle in particular are said to have come through in good shape. Mother nature has kidded the calendar so thoroughly that reliable observers assert some busy bees have already come out of the hives and are prepared to make an early drive for honey.

A note of warning for amateur gardeners was sounded, however, by H. L. Benthe, landscape gardener for the south park system. He said that the present spring growth might later be subject to frosts and freezes and advised keeping beds of bulks covered with straw or leaves.

ROBERT LAMONT JR. GOING TO RUSSIA ON LIVE STOCK PROGRAM

Denver, Col., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Robert P. Lamont Jr., son of Secretary of Commerce Lamont, was on his way to Russia tonight to discuss with Soviet officials their offer that he take charge of a live stock improvement program in that nation.

Lamont, nationally known for his pure bred herd of Hereford cattle, will stop in Washington to confer with his father before embarking from New York. He will spend six weeks in Russia. The Russian government opened negotiations with Lamont more than six months ago, believing him the man best qualified to take charge of the live stock phase of their agricultural improvement program.

Before leaving here today, Lamont explained that his trip has no political significance. "I'm not a politician," he said. "I'm interested solely as a stockman. The problem of improving the inferior Russian live stock is so tremendous that any stockman could not help but be interested."

Chinese Theater Burns, Report 160 Dead, 300 Hurt

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.—The city of Shakok, in the Tsingyuen district, reports that 160 were reported killed when a crowded theater burned. More than 300 were injured. Shakok is about thirty miles northwest of Canton and is on the Pei, or North river.

Another Navy Officer's Wife Victim of Rape

HONOLULU, Feb. 28.—(AP)—A new attack on a naval officer's wife occurred here last night as United States department of justice agents studied a crime situation which already has caused an official upheaval and a congressional investigation.

Mrs. J. H. Hope, wife of a machinist's mate, was assaulted in her home near Waikiki beach.

The city again became tense and news of the attack was soon the topic of general conversation.

Endeavoring to describe her assailant, Mrs. Hope late today told police she believed he was a Japanese. She said he was about five feet, five inches tall, wore a raincoat, light blue denim trousers, black shoes and was without a hat. With this description police continued their search.

Rear Admiral Yates Stirling, commandant of the 14th naval district, said he will make no comment until he receives an official report.

Attacks Cause of Riots.

Previous attacks upon white women brought the assertion from high naval authorities that Honolulu is unsafe for wives of naval men, caused rioting in the city between natives and service men and led to reorganization of the police system after legislative changes by the special legislature session.

The wife of another navy man, Mrs. D. W. Curry, reported that a masked oriental also forced his way into her home last night, but left after making a vain demand for money. The two women are neighbors.

Mrs. Hope said her assailant entered her home about 7:30 o'clock and at the point of a gun demanded money. He searched the house for money before he tied her to a bed with stockings. Investigators said clothing had been torn from her body. The assailant warned Mrs. Hope not to notify police or he would return and "get her."

Mrs. Hope, the second naval officer's wife to be attacked recently, was alone in her home. Her husband is with a contingent of the fleet sailing for the mainland to participate in naval maneuvers off southern California.

MASSIE CASE STIRRED AGAIN

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HONOLULU, Feb. 28.—The Hawaii Hochi, Japanese daily newspaper here, has stirred the deep waters of the Ala Moana rape case anew by the publication of an affidavit by Philip Kemp, French Tahitian police character, to the effect that he knows the four youths who attacked Mrs. Thalia Massie, wife of Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. N., last September.

These four, according to his statements, are not connected with the present defendants awaiting retrial and do not include Joseph Kahahawai, victim of the "honor" murder case which is coming to trial on March 10 with Mrs. Granville Fortescue, mother of Mrs. Massie, Lieut. Massie, and two sailors, Albert O. Jones and E. J. Lord, as defendants.

"Jimmy" on Way.

Detectives have been working on this angle of the case for a month and are said to have failed to corroborate the Kemp statements. "Jimmy," part Hawaiian named as the one who told the rape story, is said to be on his way here from Los Angeles to clear up the story finally and show its falsity.

Territorial officials and English newspapers belittle Kemp's story and believe its only effect will be to increase the trouble of getting a jury for the rape case and to make conviction more difficult.

The whole thing, in some circles, is believed to be a smoke screen to protect the two Japanese defendants, Horace Ida and David Takai, and follows a recent unconfirmed report of confessions obtained or about to be obtained from these two.

Both the rape and murder cases are in the hands of a newly appointed prosecutor, John Kelly, a former Montana lawyer.

POLITICS BOBS UP TO TORPEDO COUNTY SAVING

Economy Plan Finds New Threat.

Political expediency and the discovery that the legislature has passed a bill permitting postponement of budgetary action have combined to halt the county board economy program, involving the dismissal of 553 employés, it was indicated last night.

When the commissioners left their finance committee meeting on Friday afternoon they were reconciled to the duty of passing the budget at the board meeting today, and by so doing alienating more than half a thousand jobholders and political workers just as the primary campaign is opening. Developments over the week-end indicated, however, that action on the budget will be deferred, probably for five or six weeks.

Legislature Permits Delay.

Before it recessed its special session, the legislature passed a bill authorizing the city of Chicago to postpone completion of its 1932 budget until May 1. An amendment included the county in that provision. The bill has been transmitted to Gov. Emmerson, but so far as could be learned yesterday, he has not yet signed it.

While proponents of the present budget and employment slash said they believed that ten votes, the minimum necessary to pass the budget, would be available for its passage today, the more general impression in political circles was that the measure lying on the governor's desk would be invoked and final action on the budget would be postponed.

Present Lineup of Board.

Proponents of the "economize now" plan listed President Whealan and Commissioners Sears, Kelly, Kavanaugh, Miller, Busse, McEnerney, Byrd, La Buy, and Fleming as likely to vote for immediate passage. They conceded that they had little hope of winning the votes of Commissioners Plumb, Kasper, and Ryan.

Commissioner Weber, fourteenth member of the board, is in Florida. Mayor Cermak, who retired from participation in county affairs upon his election to city office, is the fifteenth member.

It was said that a word from Democratic party leaders would be sufficient to swing several more of the commissioners against immediate passage of the present budget. The Democrats control all the county offices except two, those of the state's attorney and circuit clerk court.

A Dilemma for Party.

It was pointed out that dismissal of the 553 jobholders, making them recruits for insurgents against the party organization in the first warm primary fight in some years, would probably be considered unfortunate at the moment.

The groundwork for the postponement was laid on Friday, when the board adopted Commissioner Amelia Sears' resolution, inviting various civic groups for advice on budgetary economies. The motion had been voted down, derisively, two weeks before, but it was resurrected on Friday and adopted with only Commissioner Sears, President Whealan, and Commissioner Kavanaugh voting against it.

Miss Sears made it clear that her negative vote was cast on the theory that the resolution might be used to delay quick action on the economy budget at today's session.

Suggested Advisers to Board.

Those listed in the resolution as suggested advisers to the county are D. F. Kelly and the tax commission, the Association of Commerce, Chicago Bar association, bureau of public efficiency, Civil Service association, Civic Federation, City club, Union League club, Chicago Woman's club and Woman's City club.

The program for today, as it was outlined by one commissioner who preferred to remain anonymous, is for the commissioners to listen patiently and at length to any pleas and plans for economy which the civic groups' representatives may present to them. The representatives will then be assured, this commissioner said, that the board desires to give full consideration to their suggestions, and that to do so it will take advantage of the new law and postpone action on the budget so that the views of more civic authorities can be ascertained.

WARN TAX SPENDERS

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The D. F. Kelly tax warrant sales committee will tell the heads of the seven local governments today that their 1932 budgets must be slashed if the essential functions of government are to be maintained in Chicago throughout the year. The conference is scheduled for noon in the Chicago club.

A report was current yesterday that certain politicians are anxious to maintain the present number of public jobs until after the primaries, April 12, and that these politicians have found spokesmen among those invited to the conference today.

Kelly Shows Danger.

Most of the budget makers apparently do not believe that the fiscal situation of the governments is as desperate as represented to them. They have agreed to trim their budgets, but not nearly to the extent which the Kelly committee believes is necessary.

An indication of the committee's attitude was conveyed by D. F. Kelly to the Woman's City club last week. He said the local governments could not hope for more than $180,000,000 in tax collections this year—the average of the collections of the last two years. He added that the collections might run lower, perhaps 30 per cent lower. That is an estimated collection of $126,000,000; and its meaning to the board of education—as an illustration for all of the local governments—may be summarized as follows:

According to Mr. Kelly's ratios, the schools would g.. 30.66 per cent of tax collections. If the taxes total $180,000,000 the school board would get $55,188,000. If the taxes are $126,000,000 the schools would receive $38,621,000.

Must Pay Loans First.

All of this money, whichever sum it will be, must be used to pay off tax anticipation warrants. The only hope of the schools of getting cash is in the sale of more tax anticipation warrants.

Assume that the board obtains $55,188,000 in tax cash and is thereby enabled to turn around and offer to sell $55,188,000 of tax anticipation warrants for 1931 and 1932. The first claim on this $55,188,000 of borrowed cash would be for overdue salaries. These salaries to March 1 total $30,502,000, leaving only $24,686,000 on which to operate the schools for the remaining eight school months of 1932.

The board's tentative budget appropriates $90,195,000, an average of $7,500,000 a month. Assuming that the board could skimp along on a monthly outlay of $4,100,000, the $24,686,000 would be sufficient to operate the schools for only six out of the remaining eight months of this calendar year.

If the tax collections total $126,000,000 instead of $180,000,000, the school board's share would be $38,631,000. Deduct the $30,502,000 for the payment of back salaries, and there remains only $8,129,000. This is probably not sufficient to operate the schools for two out of the remaining eight months of 1931.

Those are the alternate pictures presented by Mr. Kelly to the Woman's City club, and it was reported yesterday that no brighter view will be urged upon the seven local governments today.

Some of the Kelly committee members are said to hold that the worst of the above pictures is entirely too bright. They are reported to believe that it will be impossible for the school board to sell even $38,631,000 worth of tax warrants. The board last year was unable to sell any tax warrants, and the credit of the board has since become lower.

Hampered by Big Budget.

A budget of $90,195,000 for 1932 is said to be a further hindrance to restoring the credit of the school trustees. With such a budget a representative of an investment-house said yesterday that the board would be fortunate to sell $9,000,000 in tax warrants, less than one-third of what it owes its teachers and other employés in overdue wages.

If that forecast proves true, then the financial difficulties of the board will be considerably worse than portrayed by Mr. Kelly in his smaller estimate of tax collections.

It is reported that eight members of the school board plan to pass the $90,195,000 budget next Wednesday. Only President Myers, Trustees McJunkin and Carr are insisting on further cuts in appropriations, it is said.

At the Kelly conference today will be President Myers and Trustees Savage and Hemingway for the school board. Mr. Hemingway, as chairman of the finance committee, and Mr. Savage, as chairman of the budget subcommittee, have publicly urged that the $90,195,000 appropriations be adopted next Wednesday.

STATES' COSTS QUADRUPLE IN FOURTEEN YEARS

Census Figures Show Great Expense.

Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde, who has taken sharp issue with the President and Secretary Wilbur on the subject. Mr. Hyde, it transpires, boiled over when he read a copy of the President's message two days before it was to be submitted to congress. He rushed to the White House and unburdened his mind in no uncertain manner on the Columbia river project in particular. The result was that Mr. Hoover modified to some extent what the message had to say regarding the Columbia river.

"Such important projects as the dam at Boulder canyon, the dam at Cove creek, the development of Grand Culie on the Columbia and the dam on the Umatilla should ultimately be undertaken when contracts can be made for the sale of power to amortize the cost of construction to the government," Mr. Hoover had written in his message.

At the instance of Mr. Hyde the President struck out the reference to the Grand Coulee [misspelled in the first draft] and the Umatilla, which, incidentally, is not a river, as Mr. Hoover evidently thought, but the name of rapids in the Columbia, and made it read merely "the development of the Columbia," with the proviso that it should be undertaken "when there is need for such service."

Cost is 850 Millions.

The Columbia river project as presented to the army engineers is for a power and navigation development below the mouth of the Snake river to cost 450 millions and a power and irrigation development at Grand Coulee to cost 400 millions. Senators Wesley L. Jones [Rep., Wash.] and Clarence C. Dill [Dem., Wash.] are authors of a bill providing for the construction of a dam at Grand Coulee larger than the Hoover dam in Boulder canyon, and a power plant, for the cost of which with four per cent interest the government would be reimbursed in fifty years from power revenue, except to the extent that the cost is charged to flood control. The dam and power plant would cost, it is estimated, 185 millions. More than 200 millions for the irrigation project would be furnished by the government without interest charges.

Dr. Elwood Mead, commissioner of reclamation, reported favorably on the project, stating that 2,100,000 horse power of electric energy would be developed and 1,200,000 acres of land irrigated. The army engineers were "not convinced of the advisability of the United States participating in the construction of this project at the present time," stating that it would be 25 years before the entire power could be disposed of and that the irrigation project could not be financed from the sale of irrigation water even with the money supplied interest free.

Farmers Not for It.

Secretary Hyde said that the "hard fact is that because of climatic limitations the Columbia basin cannot grow a crop of which the nation does not now produce huge surpluses," and added that the project would bring land irrigated at a cost of $333 an acre into competition with neighboring land costing from $12 to $57 an acre.

"The proponents of this project are not farmers," the secretary significantly remarked, leaving it to be inferred that its backers are power interests, real estate speculators and communities seeking power and water at government expense.

"Farmers," he went on, "have not besieged the congress with demands that the Columbia river irrigation project be undertaken. No farmer of the northwest would, in his right mind, urge the nation to undertake something that would add to already burdensome surpluses, depress prices of his products, reduce the value of his land, threaten his economic security, and lift huge sums out of the United States treasury for the avowed purpose of agricultural expansion in an era when precisely the opposite policy is called for.

Sound Economies Forgotten.

"Our experience thus far, both in private and in federal reclamation attempts, suggests that the dramatic appeal of turning a desert into a garden spot has too often outweighed considerations of economic feasibility. Fertile soil is not the only factor in cost of production or in the happiness of the settler. The vision of high yields without regard to cost has led to misfortune for too many settlers.

"Discussion of the project, however, cannot be confined to economic facts. Broad matters of national policy are involved.

"Let it be noted that the Columbia basin project has been considered an irrigation project from the start. Dozens of boards and commissions passed judgment on it as such. The proponents for the project considered it as such. For more than a decade they argued for it as such.

"That argument failed. Now it appears as a combination power and irrigation project. Nevertheless, its purpose still is to bring more land into production.

"To this American farmers have a right to protest. Obviously, as a pure irrigation project, it would never be built. As a pure power project it would never be considered by private capital. Combined, it adds power as a further subsidy to irrigation, and is therefore the more dangerous to agriculture. The government has not yet gone into the power business. The speedy divorce of reclamation from power would be better for both."

Democrats' 132 Million Roads' Bill 'Pork Barrel,' Hyde Warns

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—In a statement issued by Secretary of Agriculture Arthur M. Hyde the administration tonight swung into action against the bill passed by the Democratic house yesterday providing that the federal government advance 132 millions of dollars to the states for highway construction in aid of unemployment relief.

The excoriation of the measure and of its Democratic authors by the cabinet member, who said the bill savors of the pork barrel, suggests the certainty of its veto by the President should it be passed by the senate.

Purports to Be Relief Bill.

Mr. Hyde said that after trimming 10 millions from the federal aid road building appropriation "with great parade of economy" the Democrats now propose to spend 132 millions for the same purpose. Though purporting to be a bill for the relief of agriculture, the bill, said the secretary, would compel farmers to pay a considerable portion of taxes to furnish the fund.

"The 132 million dollars provided by this bill will give, directly and in itself, employment to about 35,000 people," Mr. Hyde continued. "This out of 6,000,000 unemployed. True, it will create some indirect employment, but the number so benefited certainly will be less than the number directly affected. By extracting 132 million dollars additional funds from agriculture and industry we shall impose still further strain upon the country and shall deprive more people of employment indirectly than we can employ directly.

"The bill has more of the aspects of the pork barrel than of relief from unemployment. Our experience last year is in point. The federal government made an appropriation which resulted in an expenditure of 155 million dollars additional funds for road building. The states and local districts reduced the expenditure of their own funds by three-fourths of this amount. In practical operation we expended 155 millions more federal funds, but secured an increase in total funds expended—local, state and federal—of only $33,000,000. The net gain in employment from federal funds was disappointing. The net result was a larger and disproportionate drain upon the federal treasury.

Fund Unequally Distributed.

"The allocation of the fund would be made under the law regulating road funds, rather than upon a per capita basis. The benefits of the fund, therefore, would be unequally distributed. The states having the least population would receive the largest per capita allocation. The states having the greatest population and the largest unemployment problem would receive the smallest per capita allocation. The bill does not go to the problem of unemployment on the basis of need.

"But further than all this, if there is to be economy in public expenditures and relief from burdens of taxation upon the people economy must begin. The President has forcefully said 'we cannot squander ourselves into prosperity.' The bill ought not to be enacted."

Matched by State Funds.

The bill provides that 120 of the 132 millions shall be advanced to the states when matched by equal amounts of state funds. How much would be allocated to each state and how much each state would pay in internal taxes toward furnishing the fund are shown in the following table:

State—	Allotments.	Taxes.

FEES TO EXPERTS IN 1931 SHOW A DECLINE OF 44%

City Savings in Year Are $441,988.

City Controller Szymczak compiled figures yesterday showing a decrease of $411,986 for 1931 in the expenditures for "experts" as compared to the amount paid out by the previous city administration during 1930. The decrease is equivalent to a reduction of 44 per cent.

The total expenditures for 1930 for the legal, engineering, and valuating services of the experts was $939,822, and for 1931 was only $527,836. In 1931, however, the expenditures for the first four months are also chargeable to the previous administration, as the amounts paid out in April, after Mayor Cermak took office, were for work performed earlier.

For those first four months the expenditures for experts were $285,435. For the other eight months the Cermak administration expended on experts only $262,401, which led the controller to observe that the Cermak administration had spent $3,034 less in eight months than the previous administration had in four months.

J. L. Jacobs & Co., which has recommended a city budget for 1932 of approximately $9,000,000 less than the one compiled by the previous administration for 1931, received the largest amount last year. Payment to this company and to other experts who received over $10,000 were as follows:

Name and service.	Total for 1931.
J. L. Jacobs & Co., efficiency	$69,077
Walter L. Fisher, legal	58,625
George A. Mason, legal	41,500
Chicago Plan commission, surveys	40,000
Allen T. Gilbert, legal	34,700
Joseph J. Sullivan, legal	17,500
Robert Ridgway, engineering	15,000
Chapman & Cutler, legal	14,650
Harry Goldstine, real estate valuator	13,000
Fred A. Krehbiel, engineering	11,000
Ernest Lieberman, engineering	10,562
William G. Krieg, architect	10,536

Harry Goldstine presents an instance of the decline of the former administration's pay rollers. In 1930 he received $38,100. Attorneys Fisher, Mason, Sullivan, Gilbert, and Mr. Ridgway were paid for work on the subway. The attorneys have been employed for several years on other transit matters also.

RADICALS STORM FOES' OFFICE IN ARGENTINA; 3 DIE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Feb. 28.—A clash between a group of youthful radicals and employés of the ultra-conservative newspaper La Fronda, early today, resulted in three deaths and injury to 5.

Following last night's monster manifestation by radicals a group of 150 excited youths dodged a police cordon and marched through the central streets allegedly to set fire to the La Fronda premises. At the offices there was promiscuous revolver shooting followed by a machine gun volley.

Police were busy again this afternoon breaking up a communist street parade and warning against further unauthorized demonstrations. The crowds last night were dispersed quickly by the advance of six tear gas bombers.

Dies of 'Heart Disease,' but Undertaker Finds Bullet

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Discovery that a bullet had pierced the heart of Roderick Roberts, 60, who was supposed to have died of a heart attack, led to a search for his slayer today. Roberts, head of a surgical appliance firm, was found dead on the floor of his Brooklyn office last night. His widow told physicians he long had suffered from heart attacks, and on this information the medical examiner ascribed death to heart disease and released the body for burial. Undertakers found a bullet had pierced Roberts' heart.

CIVIL WAR GRIPS FINLAND; ARMY IS CALLED OUT

20,000 Fascists Mass for March on Capital.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Feb. 28.—Finland today was caught in a civil war. The Lapua [Finnish Fascisti] established in an armed camp of at least 4,000 men in the parish of Mantsala, within 35 miles of Helsingfors, threatened to march on the Finnish capital with 20,000 of their followers, who are gathering at the camp from all parts of the country. Many members of the civil corps are known to be joining the rebels.

Feverish preparations are being made by the government to resist an attack on Helsingfors. All troops were ordered confined to their barracks ready for duty and all leaves were cancelled. The cabinet, at a special session tonight, declared Mantsala under a state of siege and considered taking drastic steps to deal with the revolt tomorrow.

Police Found Helpless.

"The police are helpless in the face of such an uprising," said Baron E. von Born, minister of the interior, "and order can only be restored with the help of the army. The situation is indeed grave."

He announced he is ready, if the situation demanded, to resign. The resignation of both Von Born and Gov. Krudo Jalander of Nyland province have been demanded by the Lapua.

The revolt was built up apparently following yesterday's disturbance in the town of Mantsala. Led by uniformed Lapua, 400 men using machine guns and rifles broke up a workers' meeting at which Dr. Erich, a Socialist deputy, was speaking. The deputy was warned to leave the town.

Today all roads leading to Mantsala were guarded by armed patrols with machine guns.

Insists It's Civil War.

Asked the reason for the armed state of the district, the reply was: "There is a war. Arms alone will speak."

A few newspaper men managed to enter the town and reached the rebel headquarters. Little information was obtained. It appeared that 5,000 or 6,000 men are under arms and that by tomorrow at least 20,000 or 30,000 men will be gathered here.

Last autumn, it was recalled, Gov. Jalander declared that he was threatened with death by the Lapua. He had accused them of kidnaping a former Finnish president, Stahlberg. It was believed that the present uprising may be another manifestation of hostility toward him.

The Lapua organization was formed two years ago by Vihtori Konsola, a farmer and father of a big family. It was organized among Finnish peasants to combat communism. It has instituted a strict system of military discipline. In July, 1930, 12,000 members of the Lapua staged a demonstration in Helsingfors in which they demanded that parliament suppress communism. The bills were introduced in parliament but failed to get the required two-thirds majority, and parliament dissolved. Elections were held Oct. 1, 1930.

The Lapua district, in which the Fascist movement was born, has long been a center of a pietist movement in the Lutheran church.

BOY BANDIT, 10, EVEN GETS AWAY WITH WATCHDOG

A 10 year old boy, who not only defied a bulldog in breaking into a garage to steal merchandise there, but made friends with the watchdog and stole him, too, was arrested yesterday. He is Carl Munno, 613 South Racine avenue.

The boy confessed the theft and led police to where the loot was hidden, but several hours' grilling failed to make him disclose the name of his companion in the raid. He was locked up for the night at the Juvenile home.

The bulldog and the merchandise which was taken belonged to Thomas Smith, 3334 Le Moyne street. He left the goods in a garage at 1134 West Harrison street Saturday night and locked up the bulldog there to guard it.

He broke a window and reached through to unlock the door, Carl confessed.

Huckins Jury Deadlocked for 32 Hours; Dismissed

Anamosa, Ia., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The jury retrying George Huckins of Cedar Rapids, Ia., on charges of defrauding investors in a financial project offering 26 and 52 per cent dividends was dismissed by Judge F. O. Ellison tonight after it was unable to agree on a verdict in 32 hours. Huckins and his father, Elmer S. Huckins of Hancock, Wis., were indicted two years ago for obtaining money under false pretenses and convicted, but the Iowa Supreme court reversed the earlier verdicts and granted them retrials.

Gale Rages Off England; Halts Ships Racing Tariff

DOVER, Eng., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The southeast coast of England and the straits of Dover were in the grip of a violent northeasterly gale tonight. Should the storm continue another 24 hours it is estimated it will cost continental importers thousands of pounds by delaying the arrival of vessels which are racing toward England to clear their cargoes before the 10 per cent tariff becomes effective Tuesday.

TEACHERS' CHECKS READY; TO BE PAID IN TAX WARRANTS

Checks for a month's pay for school teachers and other employes of the board of education are ready to be mailed out tonight. However, these checks are cashable only in 1931 tax anticipation warrants, and it was said some of the teachers would refuse to accept them.

These checks are to represent December pay. City officials are hopeful that within a week there will be funds available to pay the school board employes in cash for two weeks' work in November. Controller Szymczak said that every effort was being made to get in the $2,500,000 needed for this payment.

2 Girls Face Charge of Beating, Robbing Woman

Two 18 year old colored girls, said to have admitted beating Miss Mattie Nelson, 1004 Washington street, Evanston, near her home and robbing her of $20 Saturday night, have been charged with robbery and will be arraigned before Magistrate Porter in Evanston today. They are Mildred Freeman, 1827 Darrow avenue, and Nannie Nelson, 2026 Emerson street. When they were arrested they still had Miss Nelson's purse and the money.

Miss Watson was taken to the county hospital, where physicians pronounced her condition critical. Haag told Lieut. Charles Welling of the Lawndale station that the two were engaged in a personal dispute when Miss Watson drew a revolver and shot herself.

2 COMMUNISTS SQUEAL; WRECK PORTUGAL STRIKE

LISBON, Portugal, Feb. 29.—[Monday.]—(AP)—A revolutionary strike planned for today was called off at the last moment after the plot was divulged to the government.

The communist party of Portugal, in ordering its members to remain at work, said two "traitors" in the party revealed the plans. The revolutionary outbreak, the communists said, therefore was postponed to a more suitable time.

The government had charged that the rebels planned to cut off the water and electrical supplies of Lisbon.

The authorities had ordered troops to stand ready at their garrisons and they were prepared to quell the uprising which failed to materialize.

CARS CRASH IN RUNNING PISTOL BATTLE; 2 HURT

Gunmen Escape as Auto Bursts Into Flames.

Two persons received minor injuries early yesterday when their automobile was struck at 135th street and Cicero avenue by a car whose three occupants were engaged in a running gunfight with two county highway policemen pursuing them on motorcycles.

The gunmen's car was wrecked and burst into flames. Its occupants made their escape in the darkness. They abandoned an automatic pistol, and bloodstains on both the front and rear seats of the automobile indicated that one or more of them had been hit by the police bullets.

The car they struck was driven by E. J. Cooper, assistant cashier of the Mokena State bank, at Mokena. With him was Miss Ethel Stoneclift of Midlothain. They went home after receiving first aid at the Oak Forest infirmary.

Thomas Walsh and Frank Dorsey, county highway patrolmen, had chased the fleeing automobile, at 60 miles an hour, from 147th street and Cicero avenue. Walsh drew up even with the car once, but its driver swerved in an attempt to run him into the ditch. He dropped back then and he and Dorsey opened fire, their shots being answered from the automobile.

The car was stolen early Saturday evening, police learned later, from Charles Svenciskas, 2913 West 48th street, a student at the University of Chicago. He reported that three men stopped him at 62d and Green streets, took possession of the automobile, and forced him out at Cicero avenue and 56th street about 6:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Ida Mikuse, 34 years old, 2848 South Tripp avenue, was found dying in the street early yesterday in front of 3021 South Crawford avenue, apparently the victim of a hit and run driver. She died at the county hospital.

Her death raised the 1932 motor toll in Cook county to 179.

Dennis Quinn, 30 years old, 6014 South Talman avenue, a South Park motorcycle policeman, received a fractured skull yesterday when his motorcycle struck the automobile of William Ryan, 3758 Lowe avenue, at 70th street and Loomis boulevard. Ryan was not held.

Gustave Rank, 35 years old, 4608 North Kedzie avenue, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving after he had driven into a milk wagon, injuring his wife, Agnes, and Leo Nemer, 2110 North Kedzie avenue, the milkman.

SNOW INDORSES CARLSTROM IN GOVERNOR RACE

Qualified by Economy and Wet Stand, He Says.

Bernard W. Snow, chairman of the Republican county central committee, issued a statement yesterday indorsing the candidacy of Attorney General Oscar E. Carlstrom for governor. Carlstrom's record for economy in the administration of his office and his stand on the prohibition question were cited as reasons why the Republicans should vote for him in the April primary.

"There are two outstanding problems that must be met and solved by the next governor," said Mr. Snow. "The first is a reduction of state expenditures to a figure that can be borne by the taxpayers. The second is an honest effort to permit the people of the state to have a voice in determining whether the attempt at national prohibition shall be abandoned, modified, or continued.

Says Carlstrom Is the Man.

"Upon these two great questions the record and attitude of Oscar E. Carlstrom mark him as the most desirable candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

"During the last 15 years government in this country has run wild. The record in Illinois is one of mounting costs and pyramided taxation until taxpapers of the state have been bled white and state, county and municipal governments are becoming financially as well as morally bankrupt. Between the biennium of 1917-'19 and the regular sessions of the present legislature, the appropriations made by the general assembly rose from $50,649,870 to $306,637,876.

"That's an increase in 15 years of 505 per cent. The taxpaying power of the people of Illinois has broken down under the burden.

Cites Carlstrom Economy.

"In contrast with this orgy of taxspending, the record of Oscar E. Carlstrom as attorney general stands out like a mountain peak. In 1917 the appropriation for the office of the attorney general was $868,500 and the current appropriation for that office is only $947,800.

"In other words, the present attorney general, with an enormous natural increase in the business of the state, runs his office at a cost only 9 per cent greater than was required 15 years ago, in spite of the fact that the population has increased 18 per cent.

"Such a record for efficiency and economy in contrast with the present era of wasteful public administration marks the present attorney general as a worthy public servant.

His Stand on Prohibition.

"As to the second problem now uppermost in the public mind, Mr. Carlstrom has the courage and the clearness of vision to take a definite stand. The day when voters can be deceived by meaningless phrases and equivocal straddling of the prohibition question has passed.

"To maintain that the governor of Illinois possesses no power or responsibility in the solution of this problem is evidence either of ignorance or fear. One method of initiating the enactment or the repeal of a federal constitutional amendment originates in state action so that the attitude of a governor and a general assembly becomes of paramount importance.

"Others seek to dodge responsibility, but Mr. Carlstrom stands squarely on the right of the people to a resubmission of the whole question of national prohibition to the states through state conventions, giving opportunity for direct legal expression of the will of the majority.

Appeal to the Fair Minded.

"This is a definite program that restores power of decision to the people of the state, and must appeal to all fair minded men who desire a permanent settlement of this social and economic problem.

"By his record for economy and efficiency in public administration, by his careful expenditures of public money at a time when other branches of state government are marked by wasteful profligacy, and by his definite willingness to permit the people to settle once and for all the question of national prohibition, Oscar E. Carlstrom appeals to me as the outstanding candidate for the Republican nomination for governor.

"The Republican party of Illinois, to be successful, must present men not only with a record of accomplishment and breadth of vision but it must also present a candidate for governor whose qualities of character appeal to the substantial, earnest people of the state in this period of crisis."

TRAYLOR'S LIFE TOLD IN BOOM FOR PRESIDENCY

Fort Worth Club Lauds Chicagoan.

The career of Melvin A. Traylor, "Homespun American," from the limestone hills of Kentucky to the presidency of Chicago's First National bank, is outlined in a pamphlet being broadcast throughout the land by the Traylor for President club of Fort Worth, Tex.

M. A. TRAYLOR.

A note accompanying the pamphlet predicts the coming of the time when Mr. Traylor will be compelled "to reckon with the plans and aspirations of his friends," and says, "we want the biggest, broadest, soundest and most courageous Democrat in the country to be nominated" at the Chicago convention in June.

Like Popular Biography.

The Traylor brochure, which reads like the popular biographies of Abraham Lincoln and "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, contains these Traylorisms:

"Two log cabins set end to end and with space between for the washtubs comprised the humble home into which Melvin Traylor was born" at Breeding, Ky., Oct. 21, 1878.

"At six years of age he stood on a box and dried the dishes his mother washed, and when his next brother grew old enough to dry them, Mel was promoted to do the washing."

"Three months in the year, soon increased to five, young Melvin studied—his lessons in the old log schoolhouse. The school term ended at corn shucking time."

He Seldom Wore Shoes.

"Until he was eighteen years old, Melvin Traylor seldom wore shoes."

"Over the mountain trails to Columbia, the county seat, where he entered the Male and Female High school to prepare for a teacher's license."

"In his twenty-first year Melvin Traylor was off for Texas," riding his first train and wearing his first "store clothes." Landing at Hillsboro, a prairie hamlet south of Fort Worth, he worked as grocery clerk mornings, read law in the afternoons, clerked in a hotel from 7 until midnight for meals, and served on the volunteer fire department for his cot at the station.

Young Traylor's first banking experience was with the Citizen's National, and after two months he was sent to Malone to run the bank in that village of 150 inhabitants. His wide knowledge of farm and cattle loans made him vice president of the Stockyards National bank of St. Louis in 1911 and vice president of the Live Stock Exchange National bank of Chicago in 1914. In 1919 he went to the First National.

To Ask Court Action

The legality of the petition of Dr. Francis J. Walsh, who filed as a candidate for coroner in the Democratic primary, was under question yesterday by Coroner Frank J. Walsh, who is also a candidate in the primary for the nomination to succeed himself. Dr. Walsh's petition was filed in the name of Frank J. Walsh, the same as that of the coroner, although professionally the doctor uses the given name of Francis. He is 29 years old, lives at 1240 North Massasoit avenue, and is an attending physician at the Lewis Memorial Maternity hospital. Coroner Walsh said he is considering a move to prevent Dr. Walsh's name from appearing on the ballot.

VOTERS' LEAGUE WARNS OF RISING STATE EXPENSES

Report on Legislators Hits High Costs.

Attention was called to the increased cost of the state government yesterday by the annual report of the Legislative Voters' League of Illinois upon the members of the general assembly whose terms expire this year.

A section of the foreword to the document referring to the subject of expense was printed in bold face type, the only part of the report to be stressed in this manner. The nub of the finding was that in the last twelve years state expenditures for ordinary purposes have more than doubled.

Shows Rising State Expense.

The part of the report dealing with the expenditures was as follows:

"The increase during recent years in the cost of carrying on the ordinary affairs of the state government [exclusive of roads, waterways, retirement of bonds and interest, and motor fuel tax distribution] is indicated by the following figures:

1931	$128,105,630	Emmerson
1929	122,613,722	Emmerson
1927	108,663,348	Small
1925	97,168,320	Small
1923	85,505,368	Small
1921	81,438,267	Small
1919	62,109,030	Lowden
Increase in 12 years	$65,996,600
Rate of increase	106 per cent

The rate of increase in appropriations for salaries and wages was even greater, the figures being:

1931	$29,948,270
1929	26,639,970
1919	14,293,277

Increase in 12 years—$15,645,491, or 109 per cent.

"On Feb. 1, 1932, the bonded indebtedness of Illinois amounted to $191,648,500 with $4,000,000 additional bonds authorized but not issued. Fourteen years ago the state had virtually no bonded indebtedness."

Two Shafts of Criticism.

Otherwise the report, largely a technical analysis of voting records, was considered mild in its criticism of the work of the regular session which adjourned last June. But there were one or more references of a general character that appeared to constitute disapproval.

"While not guilty of much bad legislation," one of these ran, "the assembly placed upon itself the stamp of futility by failing to take constructive action upon matters of prime importance that came before it."

Another criticism directed at the same assembly's work in special session read as follows:

"One of the worst acts of the present legislature was the recent enactment at the special session of a bill empowering the Chicago west park board to issue bonds to the amount of $4,000,000 without a referendum. Under the loose terms of the bill the proceeds of these bonds apparently may be used to meet the present heavy deficit of the park board and future maintenance and operating expenses."

Records of the Legislators.

Only that part of the detailed analysis of the records of legislators from the 38 districts outside Cook county was made public in the first installment of the report. The verdicts on Cook county members will be given out today, it was announced.

The report is to be published in pamphlet form and distributed throughout the state. Paul Steinbrecher is president of the league and Shelby M. Singleton secretary.

MALONE ASSAILS I. C. C. FOR DELAY IN GAS HEARINGS

Commission Plays Politics, He Charges.

William H. Malone, former chairman of the Illinois tax commission and candidate for the Republican nomination for governor, issued a statement yesterday criticizing members of the Illinois tax commission for their conduct of the hearing to fix the price of gas in Chicago. Mr. Malone made two charges, which were as follows:

1. That the purpose of the commerce commission last week in continuing the gas rate hearing five weeks to March 29 was to afford the commissioners time for undivided effort to secure the nomination of Omer N. Custer, Gov. Emmerson's choice for governor.

2. That the action of the commission last fall in granting the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company permission to substitute the British thermal unit for the cubic foot in the measurement of gas had enabled the company to charge its 800,000 customers a higher price for volume.

"Should Hasten Hearing."

"With the interests of hundreds of thousands of gas consumers involved, the commerce commission ought to be doing everything in its power to hasten the hearing to a just conclusion," said Mr. Malone.

"The commerce commission has undoubtedly been too busy, first with Mr. Emmerson's possible candidacy and now in campaigning for Mr. Emmerson's favorite, Omer N. Custer. Hence it seems likely that the business of the public will be delayed until after the primary."

Posters Decorate Doors.

G. Gale Gilbert, chairman of the commission, could not be reached last night. Attachés of the commission's office at 1 North La Salle street denied that the office had been transformed into Custer headquarters. During the last week observers noted, however, that Custer posters decorated every door in the office and that employés were busy pinning Custer buttons on downstate politicians entering the office.

Husband Shoots His Wife Twice During Quarrel

Mrs. Stella Wyshelewski, 38 years old, 8610 Burnham avenue, was shot twice in the abdomen yesterday by her husband, Bernie, 40 years old. The shooting occurred during a quarrel in their home. Mrs. Wyshelewski was taken to the South Chicago hospital and her husband was arrested by the South Chicago police.

RAIL PRESIDENTS TO BE HONORED BY TRAFFIC CLUB

Twenty-five railroad presidents are expected to attend the annual banquet of the Traffic club, which will be held at the Palmer house next Thursday. The dinner will be in honor of the executives.

Among the other guests, according to M. H. Kennelly, chairman of the dinner committee, will be United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis and Merle Thorpe, editor of "Nation's Business." They will be the speakers.

The railroad presidents have signified their intention of attending the banquet, Mr. Kennelly said last night. They are W. B. Storey, Daniel Willard, Sir Henry W. Thornton, E. W. Beatty, J. J. Bernet, Fred W. Sargent, Ralph Budd, P. H. Joyce, H. A. Scandrett, J. E. Gorman, C. E. Denney, W. P. Kenney, L. A. Downs, W. R. Cole, L. W. Baldwin, F. E. Williamson, J. J. THIS IS RARE DAY FOR FOLKS BORN ON FEBRUARY 29

Make Up for Lost Time in Celebrations.

First Baby of Feb. 29

Baby Cox, a girl, was born at 12:04 o'clock this morning in the Chicago Lying-In hospital as Chicago's first "Leap Day Baby." She weighed seven pounds and eleven ounces. Her parents are Mr. and Mrs. Milford Cox of 8505 Blackstone avenue.

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

This is the day the leap year leaps. The anniversary of the calendar's quadrennial hop into alignment with the solar system has rolled around again, bringing with it the rare birthdays for those who were born on Feb. 29.

For instance, there is Mrs. Margaret Breit, who lives with her daughter, Mrs. R. A. Swingler, at 6326 Ingleside. Ninety-two years ago today she was born in Luxemburg, Germany, coming to this country in 1864. She has three children and fourteen grandchildren in Chicago. Yet today is only her 22d birthday. It would be her 23d were it not for the fact that 1900 was not a leap year. There was a family reunion in the Swingler home yesterday.

There is Mrs. Della Morris of 1709 North McVicker avenue. Despite the fact that she is 52 years old, has reared four children and has four grandchildren, she is celebrating her twelfth birthday.

Lawyer Is Just Seven.

Then there's Attorney Edward Maina, 4516 North Lawndale avenue, who has managed to be graduated from Northwestern and hang out his shingle even though he is just arriving at his seventh anniversary. He was born in 1904.

Thomas W. Meehan, 5323 Adams street, has lived sixty-eight years and is only now celebrating his sixteenth birthday. There was a dinner last night at the home of his daughter, Mrs. A. C. Clement, at 519 Fourth avenue, Maywood, to commemorate the occasion.

Other celebrants and their ages are: Mrs. Simon Straus, 3154 South Michigan avenue, 88; Mrs. Louisa Trocky, 8114 Maryland avenue, 80; Mrs. Charles Nieft, 3858 North Marshfield, 60; Mrs. Carl Latham, 1118 Sheridan road, Evanston, 60; William P. McEvoy Jr., 512 Oakdale avenue, 16; Sidney Shaw, 7759 Prairie avenue, 12; Gloria Foryere Collins, 2648 Farragut avenue, 8.

Among the four year olds who are going to have their first birthday are Gloria Cecil Rizzo, 1336 Edgemont avenue; Harry Blue, 815 Circle avenue, Forest Park; Bobby Allen, 6621 South Whipple; Arlene Boehm, 2055 Lock street, and Norman E. Moeller of 5105 Wellington.

Tenants Gain in Rent.

Strange financial effects of the day include the gaining of a day's rent on annual leases and the losing of a day's pay by those who get paid on a yearly basis. The loss to landlords reckoned in this way, it has been estimated, is $4,000,000 in Chicago alone, and the salary loss to federal employés, thus estimated, would reach better than $2,000,000 at the rate of the annual pay roll of the government, which is $798,000,000.

Bomb Encased in Concrete Found in Front of Bakery

A concrete filled pail, weighing 25 pounds, with a fuse, believed by the Hudson avenue police to be a bomb, was found on the curb in front of the Roma bakery, 1440 Larrabee street, yesterday morning.

CELEBRATE LONG AWAITED BIRTHDAYS

Mrs. Simon Straus, 3154 South Michigan avenue, 88 years old, who will observe 21st birthday.

Mrs. Margaret Breit, 6326 Ingleside avenue, 92 years old, 22d birthday.

Mrs. Louisa Trocky, 8114 Maryland avenue, 80 years old, who will have 19th birthday.

EIGHT, ROBBERY SUSPECTS TAKEN AS THEY SLEPT

Two of eight alleged bandits, arrested as they slept in a rooming house at 2112 Hudson avenue by police raiders yesterday, were identified by three robbery victims last night in the Sheffield avenue police station. They are Thomas Malloy, 22 years old, said to be the leader of the gang, and Henry Yanrock, 37 years old, both roomers at the Hudson avenue address. L. W. Wright, manager of a restaurant at 555 West Madison street; Michael Birmingham, manager of a restaurant at Chicago and Michigan avenues, and John Austin, 3158 North Clark street, identified the two men as robbers, according to the police.

The other six men taken into custody are David Buchanan, 26 years old; his brother, Grant, 20; William Borgert, 28; Rolly Roller, 31, all of the Hudson avenue address; Lawrence Hess, 29, of 2152 Cleveland avenue, and Frank Mischler, 23, of 2252 Geneva terrace. The raid was led by Lieut. Axel Jensen. The police suspect the prisoners of holding up a number of handbooks and gambling houses.

Firemen Called to Fair Store When Pastries Burn

Firemen were summoned yesterday to the seventh floor of The Fair store, State and Adams streets, when smoke filled the commissary section. The smoke originated from burnt pastries in an electric stove. Hundreds of loopgoers were attracted to the scene.

WOMEN RULE JOLIET AND AURORA TODAY, 29TH OF LEAP YEAR

The hands that rock the cradle and rattle the typewriter will rule Aurora and Joliet today. City officials and business men in the two cities have agreed that in celebration of Leap Year day, they will turn the city governments and business enterprises over to women.

In Aurora, where the chamber of commerce started organizing the celebration two weeks ago, women not only will occupy city offices and the desks of bank and department store executives, but feminine traffic cops will direct traffic, lady firemen will be allowed to operate the sirens, at least, on the fire trucks, and women will turn the keys at the city jail and run the street cars, under male tutelage.

Miss Mildred Pratt, who will be mayor for the day, issued a proclamation urging that her women assistants give regular holders of their jobs an example of courtesy in dealing with the public, and suggesting, in view of the sex of the traffic cops, that the public establish a new tradition of courtesy toward them. Miss Dorothy Ward will be police chief; Miss Ruth Cole, fire chief, and Miss Charlotte Daniels, police magistrate.

In Joliet Miss Jane Shreeve will be mayor for the day. Mrs. William Hickey will be police chief; Mrs. Leo Wilhelmi, fire chief; Miss Mildred Swanson, sheriff, and Miss Eugenia Rich, Joliet's only woman lawyer, state's attorney.

88 TODAY, YET IT WILL BE HIS 21ST BIRTHDAY

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The navy's mathematical genius who 33 years ago took a pencil and scrap of paper and punctured the claims of Dr. Frederick A. Cook to having discovered the north pole will celebrate his 21st birthday.

Rear Admiral Colby Mitchell Chester, retired, has seen 88 years pass, but has so far celebrated only 20 birthdays. He was born Feb. 29, 1844, at New London, Conn. He is the second oldest living graduate of Annapolis Naval academy.

It was his exacting calculations in 1909 which first cast doubt on all of Dr. Cook's claims to having discovered the North pole.

Bandits Wait in Home to Rob Two Couples

Three bandits took $120 and jewelry valued at $1,500 early yesterday when they lay in wait in the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Kolitsky, 4644 North Monticello avenue, and robbed them and another couple upon their return from the theater.

STUDENTS FLOCK TO QUALIFY AS N. U. 'PRODIGIES'

Scores Ask Information on Education Plan.

It begins to appear that Illinois isn't exactly surfeited with mental prodigies. Northwestern university's recently broadcast invitation to precocious children of from thirteen to fifteen years, to matriculate in an environment suited to their advanced mental stature was provocative of a flood of letters of inquiry and application. Unfortunately, even a cursory survey of their contents reveals that the majority do not herald any such boys or girls.

In the main, the missives ask for more information, and convey the impression that the writers expect to take advantage of a scholarship. None is offered. The university's proposal was to provide for superior students an opportunity to develop their gifts more fully by special privileges in the matter of selection of studies and in association with others equally talented. Such students, however, are expected to pay their way as others do.

Two Already in School.

There at present two such students at Northwestern. Harold Finley, now a junior, entered at the age of thirteen. Betty Clark Seeley, now in her second year, entered when she was fourteen.

President Walter Dill Scott demurred at having the institution's offer described as an experiment. It is not, he stated, since the plan has been worked out previously and successfully. Mentally brilliant students deserve the advantages offered them, he contends, because heretofore they have been hampered by being permitted to advance only as quickly as an average student.

"Such children find the company of other people dull," President Scott said, "because the others cannot keep up with their active brains. Therefore association with others of better than average mentality provides a stimulus they have lacked before.

Will Arrange Own Studies.

"Under this plan they will not be held back by less capable children. They may advance as their own intellect permits. If they can finish in two years they will be allowed to do so. And their natural bent in the matter of selecting subject matter will be respected. Whether it is engineering or music they happen to prefer, it will be arranged."

More than 150 letters from various parts of the state, from boys or girls who will be graduated from high school this summer, are being gone over by the admission office. Letters of invitation are still being sent to Illinois high schools, and if not enough candidates are located other states will be invited to submit applications. Examinations of the prospects will probably be held a couple of weeks before school opens next fall.

16 HURT IN CRASH.

Fairmont, W. Va., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Sixteen persons were injured, two probably fatally, when two interurban cars of the Monongahela system crashed head-on at Bellview siding, near here, today.

Shots Fly During Quarrel in Home; Two Wounded

Charles Sarn, 53 years old, 902 South Racine avenue, was seriously wounded yesterday when he interceded in a quarrel in his home between Anthony Benedia, 25 years old, 1424 Taylor street, and three men who intruded. As the men fled Sarn's son, Charles Jr., fired at them with a shotgun through an open window, and Ida Cario, 14 years old, 1226 Arthington street, walking by, was slightly wounded in her legs by bullets.

JAPANESE TAKE KIANGWAN, CITY OF DEAD CHINESE

Nippon Seaplanes Batter Forts with Bombs.

of wreckage, and hundreds of human bodies sank into this debris.

Forced Out by Dead.

"As the battle continued, these conditions became worse, and then it rained. Bodies began to deteriorate. It was impossible for our forces to stay there, although they were not forced to retire before the Japanese military power.

"Conditions about our troops were beyond description before they left. The Chinese military authorities surveyed the place Saturday, estimating that 1,600 dead lay exposed within the ruins of Kiangwan. Additional bodies were buried. With continued rains the decomposition of bodies necessitated our withdrawal.

"The Japanese have gone into Kiangwan, but they won't stay long. They went in without a battle. We had gone before they arrived, but those conditions within will expel them the same as they did us."

Find Only 20 Survivors.

The Japanese:

"Of the 15,000 citizens of the once thriving village of Kiangwan, only twenty remained when the Japanese army occupied the town," said Maj. K. Miyawaki, of the Japanese general staff.

"It was like entering a city of the dead. Bodies of Chinese soldiers were scattered along the outskirts of the village where the fighting was heaviest.

"In all the town there were only twenty survivors, mostly women and children. All others had fled. The remaining survivors were moved to a place of safety well behind the Japanese lines.

"Damage done by the Japanese artillery and bombs was severe to the numerous buildings throughout the village. The houses apparently had been looted of all valuables and every particle of food in the village had been consumed. Even the kitchen utensils had been carried off.

Town in Ruins.

"With our army in control, some former Kiangwan residents returned to their homes, or what was left of them. Reconstruction of the village will be a tremendous problem because few buildings were left undamaged.

"The streets were littered with shattered masonry and debris.

"The evacuation of Kiangwan has been going on for two days. By 2:30 p. m. Saturday, however, the village was taken over completely by the Japanese army and the pocket in the Japanese line at this point was eliminated.

"Like ghosts, snipers appeared in the ruins of the village last night and kept up a sporadic fire on our sentries."

[There was nothing in the Japanese story of Kiangwan about the stench of bodies which, the Chinese said, had driven them out.]

MANCHURIAN DISPUTE COMMISSION SENT BY LEAGUE IS IN JAPAN

TOKIO, Feb. 29.—[Monday.]—(AP)—The league of nations commission sent to investigate the Manchurian dispute between China and Japan arrived at Yokohama on the liner President Coolidge today and immediately left for Tokio by train.

Members of the party declined to discuss the situation in the far east or the commission's plans before conferring with Japanese officials. The commission, made up of representatives of the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, and Italy, will remain in Japan until March 11, when it will sail from Kobe for Shanghai.

The earl of Lytton, chairman of the commission, told 50 reporters that the commission was eager to plunge into their actual investigation.

Maj. Gen. Frank R. McCoy, American representative, said he was eager to renew friendships made in Tokio in September, 1923, when he headed the American relief mission after the great earthquake. The commission was welcomed to Yokohama by an official Japanese delegation, headed by Isaburo Yoshida, ambassador to Turkey and Japan's official representative, to assist in the commission's work.

The Japanese naval command today announced they would not withdraw the Japanese flagship Idzumo from the international settlement waterfront as was requested by four great powers in Tokio on Friday. The Japanese explained they considered the Whangpoo an international waterfront.

Japanese Troopships Arrive.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29 (Monday).—The large Japanese steamer Florida Maru, heavily laden with Japanese troops, passed Woosung shortly after dark and docked at the international settlement at 8 o'clock last night. An hour later another Japanese troop transport docked at the settlement wharves.

Many new Japanese troops were also landed at the Wentsaopang docks near Woosung, being brought from transports outside the river's mouth in destroyers plying back and forth.

The first to land was the Matsuyata regiment. The Shikaku island and Gagoya divisions are expected to land tonight. These new divisions number about 30,000 men, giving Japan a grand total of about 50,000 troops.

Meanwhile the Chinese are equally busy bringing up reinforcements, Gen. Chiang Kai-shek, military dictator of China, having sent three crack divisions, the 6th, 9th, and 14th, the vanguards of which have already arrived at Chapei and Kiangwan.

An official Japanese claim made yesterday that aerial bombs had destroyed a strategic railway siding at Chapei were discovered to be untrue.

31ST INFANTRY TO BURY 3 MEN IN SHANGHAI

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.—Funeral services for three members of the American 31st infantry will be held here tomorrow afternoon. The men are Sergt. Moore L. Gordon of Sydney, Ia., who died last night of pneumonia, Private Albert B. Lewis, who died of smallpox on Feb. 24, and Private James D. Jordan, who also died of smallpox on Feb. 25.

The three men will be given military honors, with two companies of infantry taking part.

Gordon caught cold soon after the 31st infantry arrived from Manila. He refused to go on the sick list and continued at his job of building a telephone line. Gordon, who had been in the army eight years, is survived by his widow, who resides in Manila. He was a past master of the Service Masonic lodge of Manila.

AT THE point where work ceases on cars of equivalent or higher price, Pierce-Arrow attention to detail, in many instances, only begins.

Indeed if you were to see a Pierce-Arrow Twelve in the process of construction, you would see men literally devoting hours to such seemingly irrelevant tasks as counterbalancing the weight of a tire valve. You would see engines that sound whisper-silent to an expert ear, being dismantled and rebuilt because a valve tappet is microscopically out of alignment.

You would see bodies that are heavily insulated with live felt being mounted on thick cork as absolute insurance of quiet.

And yet because costs generally are lower today, you can purchase a Twelve by Pierce-Arrow at a price that formerly would be remarkable for many Pierce-Arrow Eights.

CHINA REFUSES TO MAKE PEACE ON TOKIO'S TERMS

Truce Parley Held Aboard British Flagship.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 29.—[Monday.]—Preliminary peace negotiations between Japan and China which ended after 1 o'clock this morning were held aboard Admiral Sir Howard Kelly's flagship, H. M. S. Kent, with Admiral Kelly as host. Consul General Murai and Yosuke Matsuoka, former vice president of the South Manchuria railway, represented Japan. Wellington Koo, former foreign minister, and one of Tsai Ting-chai's staff generals, spoke for China.

This meeting was held at Japan's request. Admiral Kelly was acting as a mediator. It is understood the Chinese did not give a cordial reception to the tentative Japanese proposals, but there is a feeling that Japan, floundering in a military and diplomatic quagmire, may offer better terms. A transcript of the conversation was dispatched to Chinese government leaders at Nanking and Honanfu, the temporary capital.

Would Withdraw Armies.

The meeting, it is understood, followed the presentation of Japan's proposal to China that each side withdraw their forces a specified distance in order to be unable to reach each other's lines with artillery fire. The proposal was said to have been made by Baron Shigemitsu, Japanese minister, to Quo Ta-chi, China's vice foreign minister, and representatives of the Chinese army. Baron Shigemitsu further proposed that the validity of this withdrawal be investigated by a joint Sino-Japanese committee supervised by neutral observers, if China so desired.

Propose Round Table Parley.

After this withdrawal Japan proposed a round table conference including delegates from China and Japan "and all nationalities interested in the international settlement." The round table conference would promulgate proposals designed to protect the Chinese and all foreign interests in Shanghai as well as to formulate a plan for the future status of greater Shanghai and agree upon policing of the zone, which Japan insists the Chinese armies must evacuate.

It is learned that Japan did not demand a separate concession in the area of Shanghai, but proposed the enlargement of the boundaries of the international settlement to include the entire area between the Whangpoo river and the Shanghai-Woosung railway from Chapei to Woosung creek.

Would Change Railway.

It was also proposed that the sharp eastward bend of the railway to the north station be obliterated and a new railway be constructed from the northern point of the international settlement northeastward to Woosung creek, thereby including Chapei and Kiangwan in the new borders of the international settlement.

This peace move from Japan was inspired by a variety of considerations. It is understood that Tokio ardently desires cessation of hostilities before the league of nations' assembly convenes on March 3. The Tokio government also desires to present concrete evidence and convincing proof that Japan is not entertaining territorial ambitions in the Yangtze valley to the league's inquiry commission which reaches Japan today.

The Stimson-Borah letter was also undoubtedly a large factor in Japan's sudden willingness to compromise without attaining a decisive military victory, and the apparent increasing popularity of the movement to boycott Japanese goods by the American public was also potent.

LEAGUE IS OPTIMISTIC

BY JAY ALLEN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

GENEVA, Feb. 28.—How the league of nations assembly is going to manage with sufficient success to handle the war which the Chinese are bringing forcibly to its attention on Thursday is preoccupying statesmen here. The diplomats are well aware that it would be extremely serious if the first extraordinary assembly of the league found itself helpless.

They consider themselves aided by Japan's assurances in a message received by the Japanese delegation here from Tokio and handed to the "neutral twelve" of the council that she will not try to set up a neutral zone through her own efforts and will welcome a conference of powers there.

This is to come when they have driven the Chinese a "sufficient distance to assure our safety." Then they go on to say that Japan is prepared to have the powers arrange further to safeguard the residents in and around Shanghai. The Japanese do not, as has been said, ask for a neutral zone of 20 kilometers, as a condition of peace, but leave the door open for a settlement by the powers.

Powers Urge a Truce.

Baron Tsuneo Matsudaira, Japanese delegate, has been in regular conversations with Joseph Paul-Boncour, Sir John Simon and Dino Grandi, the representatives of France, England and Italy. He has been asked to urge his government to arrange a truce or the basis of a truce by the time the assembly meets. The French and English particularly feel that even if the assembly cannot get far in settling the dispute, it can win the plaudits of public opinion by obtaining an armistice.

The Japanese are reported to have agreed to take England's and France's advice and make the assembly's task easier by keeping new military reserves away from Shanghai between now and Thursday, by confining themselves to the assembly's good offices, and by neglecting to press their former demands for a 20-kilometer neutral zone and dismantling of the Chinese forts in the war zone.

In return the big powers here are urging the little ones who are most indignant at Japan to refrain from asking for a vote of censure or criticizing her too strongly. At the moment, all preparations are being directed to stick a nice little feather in the assembly's cap and protect the Japanese feelings.

How far the Chinese will go on this tack they will not say.

RUSSIA RELENTS; GIVES JAPAN RIGHT TO USE RAILWAY FOR TROOPS

MOSCOW, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Soviet Russia gave permission today for the movement of a limited number of Japanese troops in Manchuria over the Chinese Eastern railway, which it partially owns, but again called upon Japan for an explanation of a reported massing of troops along the Russian frontier.

Russia, having charged Japan with supporting and protecting anti-soviet "White" Russian activities in Manchuria, a charge on which Japan delayed its reply, asked Japan to explain a concentration of soldiers on the soviet border of Corea.

L. M. Karakhan, acting foreign commissar, informed Koki Hirota, Japanese ambassador, that the consent for troop movements as far as Imienpo and Hailin was given on the condition of a Japanese promise to respect soviet rights and interests in northern Manchuria.

He raised the point that use of the railway "for strategical objects" would violate the Portsmouth treaty of 1905 that ended the Russo-Japanese war and asked Japan to state whether it intended to preserve the railroad's neutrality.

The Chinese Eastern railway is owned jointly by Russia and China. The Japanese military command at Harbin, Manchuria, had requested 17 troop trains to move soldiers from Imienpo to Pogranichni.

Karakhan charged last week that the troops were expected to be sent to the soviet border. Hirota denied this and reiterated that the troops were necessary for the protection of Japanese subjects in the eastern part of Manchuria, owing to a "changing situation" there.

Russia consented to the movement of troops only from Harbin eastward to Imienpo or Hailin, at the utmost.

Send Cavalry After Bandits.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

DAIREN, Manchuria, Feb. 28.—The new Kirin provincial government, set up with Japanese support, this morning sent 1,000 Chinese cavalry to engage a large force of Chinese bandits and irregulars on the fringe of the Harbin district. About 10,000 additional government troops left Harbin on foot to drive off the anti-Kirin forces which have been pillaging the area to the east.

RED TAPE TIES UP BURIAL OF U. S. FLYER IN CHINA

Bar Uniformed American Troops from Rites.

BY JOHN POWELL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.—Embarrassing complications because of red tape have developed regarding the funeral of Robert Short, American aviator who was shot down in a Chinese plane by the Japanese during an aerial combat over the city of Soochow on Feb. 22.

ROBERT SHORT.

Short's body was brought here in a wooden Chinese coffin Friday afternoon and turned over to a local American undertaking establishment. The body was received here by Chinese officials representing the 19th route army, who made tentative arrangements for a military funeral, the Chinese government having granted Short the posthumous rank of colonel in the Chinese army.

Members of the local American volunteer corps as well as the 31st infantry and the 4th regiment of United States marines also signified a desire to take part in the funeral arrangements, since Short was a member of the United States army reserve corps, having served a term in the air service.

Frown on Military Funeral.

For some unexplained reason local American officials allegedly frowned on plans for a military funeral, fearing it would cause complications with the Japanese consular officials, who have lodged a strong protest with Edwin S. Cunningham, American consul, over the incident.

According to reports tonight, American consular officials informed the American volunteer corps that its members could not participate in Short's funeral in uniform. It also became known that officials of the United States consulate have not yet examined Short's body although it has been here for nearly three days and that no arrangements have been made to provide a coffin.

The dead flyer's mother in the meantime asked that the body be sent to America, but the Chinese cabled a request that the body be buried here to enable the Chinese to erect a memorial in his honor. This is somewhat similar to the Chinese practice in connection with another American, Frederick Ward, who was killed during the Tai-ping rebellion in the middle of the last century while leading a Chinese army.

Inquest Is Planned.

Alexander Kreisel, United States court commissioner, who performs the function of American coroner here, stated that he examined the body upon its arrival here, and as soon as the investigation is completed an official inquest probably will be held.

According to one report, a question exists whether Short lost his citizenship due to his participation on the Chinese side.

Three fragments of a bullet which were extracted from Short's right knee show that the central core of the bullet was apparently composed of copper with a jacket of harder metal. This led to a report in Chinese papers that Short had been shot by a dumdum bullet. Flyers say it is possible that the bullet struck a metal part of the plane before entering the leg.

Funeral directors said that while the body was considerably lacerated as a result of the flyer's fall and the explosion of the plane, no doubt existed in his mind that the body is that of Short.

Short was a member of the Shriners and affiliated with Shanghai branch of Nile temple of Seattle.

CHURCH DRY BOARD URGES BOYCOTT AS MEANS TO 'END WAR'

Washington, D. C., Feb. 28.—(AP)—A three-point plan for United States action in the far eastern crisis—culminating in an economic boycott—was urged on President Hoover today by the board of temperance and social service of the Methodist Episcopal church, south.

A letter addressed to the President and signed by Bishop James Cannon Jr. and Eugene L. Crawford, respectively chairman and secretary of the board, said:

"We appeal to our government to urge prompt united action by the governments of the several nations signing the nine power treaty of 1922:

"1. To demand immediate cessation of hostilities; by both China and Japan.

"2. To require an agreement by both China and Japan to submit their differences to arbitration by whatever agency may be agreed upon by the representatives of the governments signatory to the nine power treaty.

"3. In the event of refusal by either China or Japan to cease hostilities and to submit to arbitration, to unite in declaring an immediate embargo on arms and munitions and an immediate economic boycott against the nation refusing to do so.

"We believe that such prompt action by our government would be approved by our people, would meet our responsibility as one of the nations signatory to the nine power treaty, and would be effective in putting an end to the present horrible conditions which are not only destroying property and lives in China but which are imperiling the peace of the world."

CHINESE GENERAL WALKS IN WRONG DOOR; CAPTURED

West Point Graduate Held as Prisoner of War.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Feb. 28.—The Japanese yesterday captured a Chinese general, Ken Wang, a graduate of West Point in the class of 1918 and commander of an independent brigade in the 88th division, in a most unusual manner.

The general entered the international settlement to call on his friend, Capt. William Mayer, assistant military attaché at the United States legation in Peiping, who is now in Shanghai assisting Nelson T. Johnson, American minister to China, in observing the Shanghai conflict.

Formerly the American consulate in Shanghai was located on the Whangpoo road adjoining the Japanese consulate. Several months ago it was moved so that the old building could be razed for the construction of a new consulate.

Walks Into Their Arms.

Gen. Wang did not know the American consulate had been moved and made the mistake of walking directly into the entrance of the Japanese consulate guarded by Japanese gendarmes. Discovering his error, Gen. Wang ran out in the gateway with the gendarmes after him. He dashed into the Astor hotel, about a half a block away, on the opposite side of the street. Pursuing Japanese troops entered the hotel, arrested the general and started away with him.

An American guest at the hotel protested that the Japanese had no right to arrest the Chinese military leader and demanded that he be turned over to the municipal police. The Japanese finally agreed to the demand.

Meanwhile the Japanese, who had evidently discovered that Wang was of some importance, sent a force to the municipal police station and compelled the officer on duty to hand him over. They also took the general's brief case containing highly confidential documents and military maps which Gen. Wang intended to show to Capt. Mayer.

Chinese Lodge Protest.

Chinese authorities tonight lodged a strong protest with the Japanese, demanding Gen. Wang's release as well as the surrender of his private papers. The Japanese insist that their prisoner is a spy and continue to hold him.

The municipal police officer who handed Gen. Wang over to the Japanese was Capt. E. R. Kennedy, British assistant chief of police. Capt. Kennedy was badly beaten by Japanese marines a few days ago because he interfered when marines were beating a Chinese.

American military officers are highly incensed at the "capture" of Gen. Wang, and allege the Chinese have as much right to enter the international settlement as the Japanese.

Gen. Wang is a native of Kiangsu province and a graduate of Tsinghua college at Peiping. He went to America in 1911 and attended Michigan, Columbia and Princeton universities. He received a bachelor of literature degree at Princeton in 1915. In West Point he was awarded a prize for marksmanship.

U. S. MISSIONARIES IN COREA TO BE CURBED BY JAPANESE, REPORT

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—An unconfirmed report says Japan is considering the advisability of modifying concessions under which American missionaries are now allowed to maintain schools in Corea.

Although such a change undertaken under existing circumstances would obviously be a counter move against the United States, the Japanese would probably explain it on the ground that some missionaries had been detrimental to Japanese government activities in Corea.

There have been frequent cases of friction between the American representatives of some religious denominations and Japanese officials at Seoul. The troubles came to a head about six years ago when Japan ruled that government aid would be withdrawn from any mission school which refused to have the imperial rescript read daily to the pupils. Some missionaries refused to do this on the ground that the rescript placed the Japanese emperor above God.

GOVERNMENT AT HIGHEST COST IS AUSTRALIA'S WOE

'Dream' Capital Fails to Draw Inhabitants.

BY QUENTIN POPE.

[Copyright: 1932: By The Chicago Tribune.]
[Second article.]

SYDNEY, Australia, Feb. 28.—In 1930 Australia set a high water mark in governmental costs. Production in all avenues of earning for the whole commonwealth totaled approximately $2,184,000,000. Compared to that total national income the federal, state and municipal governments spent the sum of $1,146,000,000.

The federal government's portion of the total expenditure stood at $390,400,000, the six state governments spent $580,400,000, and the 1,058 local governing bodies with spending powers consumed $175,500,000 of the taxpayers' money. The government showed a profit in one department alone, a profit of $250 on the federal bar.

Assuming an average of four to a family, that means a direct levy for government totaling $626 a family for the year.

Legislators in Profusion.

It is no wonder that the government in Australia is a costly affair, there being seven parliaments, and in all they enroll more members than the British house of commons. There are 664 senators, members, legislative councilors and assemblymen who draw salary checks from the seven legislative branches and their individual incomes range from $1,870 yearly to a Tasmanian legislative councilor to $5,000 a year of the New South Wales member or federal senator.

Salaries and expenses of ministers alone topped $2,695,000 in 1929 and total cost of operating the various parliaments stood at $6,797,000. Permanent civil servants, without the multitudinous municipal employés, number 226,000, which is 3½ per cent of the entire population and equal to 25 per cent of the total unionized labor of a country, and Australia is the most highly organized industrially in the world.

Taking the average stipend of a civil servant at $20 weekly, this makes an annual salary bill of $58,760,000 a year.

Generated Own Troubles.

Federation has brought Australia many troubles and no compensations. As always in this country, tariff lay behind the move. The primary incentive for federation was in the desire to secure interstate free trade and to compensate for the loss of interstate income by levying import customs duties which would serve the double purpose of protecting the growth of Australia's infant industries and providing funds for operation of the federal government. That change came early this century, though it was suggested fifty years before. The immediate effect of federation was to throw one more government into the London money market, where half a dozen Australian sovereignties were already bidding against one another for loans.

Portents for federation were bad. The two major state, New South Wales and Victoria, refused to endorse proposals for a national capital unless it was on neutral ground and this called into existence a typically Australian extravagance, a dream city which was begun in confidence, financed from loans and is now threatened with disaster.

Greater than Washington?

Canberra, planned to be the ideal national capital, came into being, erected in federal territory 2,000 feet above the sea in a latitude roughly corresponding to that of Washington, D. C., with a summer temperature that is approximately the same and winters which are like those of Georgia. W. Burley Griffin, famous Chicago architect, won the competition for the design of the new capital and there in the farmlands 200 miles southwest of Sydney, the new city received its name Canberra from Lady Denman in 1913.

May 9 next will see the fifth anniversary of the transfer of the federal parliament to Canberra—a federal city that is a civil service town with a population of 5,000 set in federal territory of 900 square miles, a city that has cost to date something like $58,000,000 of borrowed money.

February, 1930, witnessed a melancholy spectacle. The last two guests left the Hotel Canberra and its staff alone to uphold the dignity of the civic center on which it stands. That hotel cost $733,000, and at latest calculation its losses were $387,000. The hotel next in size, the Kurrajong, cost $375,000 and its losses have been $111,000.

The $350,000 Acton hotel has been closed for two years, the $150,000 Ainslie hotel for three years. The ten federal owned groups of hotels and hostels in Canberra cost Australia $3,000,000 and have managed to lose more than $1,500,000 on their operations.

Few Signs of Permanence.

Canberra today is the most costly camp in the world. Everything is "temporary." The most magnificent parliament buildings in Australia are officially known as "temporary structures" or were until recently. The post office is temporary, the railway station serves only until the place becomes a real city and the blocks of offices stand alone until the city grows around them. The city is being built from the circumference of its great circle towards the center which apparently it will never reach.

Canberra is, in fact, evidence that a city must have some reason for its existence other than the rivalry between competing states. The few thousands of civil servants who are scattered within its 25 mile ring are there not because they so desire, but because they have to be. Planned with magnificence meant to shame Washington, D. C., Canberra failed to attract residents who had been expected to flock there in thousands. This happened for sufficient reason. The summer is short and hot, but on those uplands the winter is long and cold. To the Australian, used to sun-soaked country, a Canberra winter spelled hardship and possibly ill health.

Interest on the Folly.

So Australia today carries an annual interest charge of $3,000,000 on money spent to create a city which has never come to life. There, in a parliament house expected to cost $1,250,000 but which actually cost three times as much, the federal parliament sits in the middle of a land riddled with tortuous roads, and beside a river which sometimes goes dry.

What the legislators think of it was shown when Rep. Crouch recently urged that the capital had proved a failure and that a referendum should be taken to decide whether the future site of federal legislation should be at Adelaide, Brisbane, Canberra, Hobart, Melbourne, Perth or Sydney—forecasting an end of the ghost city of Australian optimism.

Stabbed and Shot After He Leaves House Party

Andrew Gallas, 26 years old, of 1359 Ancona street, was taken to the county hospital early this morning suffering from bullet and knife wounds. He had been shot once in the abdomen and stabbed four times in the side, and it was said he might die. Gallas told police he had just left a house party when an unidentified man attacked him in front of 1321 West Huron street.

SEIZED PICKING UP EXTORTION DECOY PACKAGE

Jacob Schandling, 48 years old, 4256 Bernard street, was in police custody yesterday because he picked up a decoy package placed on a windowsill of the Independence State bank, Roosevelt road and Kedzie avenue. It had been placed there in response to a series of extortion notes demanding $5,000 from Joseph Lipshutz, 5007 North Lawndale avenue, a loop insurance broker.

Schandling, a waiter, was the third person to pick up the package Saturday night, while Sergt. Michael Ahern and a squad of police attached to the racket bureau of the state's attorney's office lay watching nearby.

Joseph Wool, 62 years old, 4724 North Troy street, picked it up first. Although he admitted that he was acquainted with Lipshutz' brother, he protested that he had picked up the package out of curiosity. He was released on his promise to report today at the state's attorney's office.

The package was replaced, and was picked up next by a youth, who started to open it. It was taken from him and he was sent on his way. Schandling then walked past, looked about him and took the package. He also asserted that he picked up the decoy in the hope that it might contain some valuables.

YOUTH DIES IN MYSTERY BLAST LAID TO ALCOHOL

There was a small explosion yesterday in a third floor room at 644 North State street. The window was smashed. Firemen who went to extinguish the resulting blaze found Emil Spaly, 24 years old, lying fatally injured across a picket fence below the window. He was dead when he reached Passavant hospital.

Police were mystified, they said, as to the cause of his death. The explosion they found, was caused by alcohol. A quantity of bottles and labels, as well as a can of alcohol, indicated that the room was used for the manufacture of gin.

Firemen said that the explosion was not violent enough to have smashed the window, and the resulting fire burned itself out after destroying a table cloth. Frank Spaly, 60 West Chestnut street, a brother with whom the dead youth lived, said that Emil came to Chicago recently from Arkansas, and had never taken a drink in his life.

Police believe that Spaly may have jumped back at the explosion, and accidentally fallen through the window.

TWO KILLED IN DISTURBANCES OF CUBAN ELECTION

Soldiers Stand Guard at Polling Places.

HAVANA, Cuba., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Two persons were killed and several were wounded in political animosities today while soldiers stood guard over polling places as Cuban voters elected municipal assemblymen in their respective parties.

Eduardo Estrada was shot to death in Quemado de Guines, Santa Clara province. He was with Representative Ricardo Campo, Liberal, at the time.

In Ciego de Avila, Camaguey province, supporters of Enrique Villena and Enrique Recio, candidates for the Liberal nomination for governor, fought with pistols, hammers and other weapons. An undetermined number of persons were injured.

Woman Dies of Shock.

Santiago dispatches said three bombs exploded, one in the home of Senator Carlos Clavel, another in that of Dr. Eduardo Hacha, brother of the mayor, and the third in front of the provincial palace. Alarm at the provincial palace explosion proved fatal to Señora Flora Aguero, who had just given birth to a child.

Today's primaries were the first step in the reorganization of Cuba's three major political parties—Liberals, Conservatives and Populars—preliminary to November's elections. Municipal assemblies name provincial assemblymen, who in turn select delegates to the national conventions.

In November mayors, municipal councilmen, provincial governors and councilmen, half the house of representatives and two senators, the latter to fill vacancies caused by deaths, will be elected.

Elect President in 1934.

The liberals, members of President Gerardo Machado's own party, looked beyond today's primaries and beyond November's partial elections to the vote in 1934 for president. Aspirants to succeed President Machado are Governor Jose R. Barcelo, of Oriente province, who has formally announced his candidacy; Clemente Vasquez Bello, president of the senate, and Senator Viriato Gutierrez.

A polling place in Santa Domingo, Santa Clara province, was burned in today's disorders. Sixty policemen resigned in Matanzas, capital of the province, presumably in order to vote, their recent incorporation by presidential decree into the national militia having deprived them of the ballot.

ROB OFFICE OF CLEANERS.

Two bandits held up the office of Cook & McLain, cleaners and dyers, 3830 North Clark street, late Saturday night and took $87 after forcing Miss Anna Morgan, the cashier, and five drivers to lie on the floor.

MAKE PHILIPPINES SELF SUFFICIENT, PLEA OF ROOSEVELT

MANILA, P. I., Feb. 29 [Monday].—(AP)—Formally inaugurated governor general of the Philippine islands, Theodore Roosevelt today called for a program designed to promote "the well being of the average Filipino." He was given the oath on the Roosevelt family Bible by Chief Justice Ramon Avancena of the insular court shortly after he landed at Manila, where he was welcomed by an enthusiastic crowd.

"No part of the civilized globe has seen such progress in the last thirty years as these islands," Gov. Gen. Roosevelt said. He pledged himself to try to live up to the ideal of service of his predecessors. His inaugural address was devoted largely to the need for the islands to progress economically and socially, avoiding mention of the perennial agitation for independence.

"Above all, we should endeavor to make the islands self sufficient economically," he said. Stressing the same point that his predecessor, Dwight F. Davis, suggested, Roosevelt urged that the Philippines can and should be made a great center of tropical Asia for the study of methods to combat tropical diseases.

SOCIETY WOMAN ENDS LIFE WITH MONOXIDE GAS

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Mrs. Annabelle Braun, 30 year old society woman, was found dead of carbon monoxide gas in the garage of her Merion home today by her husband. She left a note saying: "This is the best way out for all of us."

Francis J. Braun, lawnmower manufacturer, told authorities he and Mrs. Kathryn Peace Harris, 27 year old divorcee, left for a party Saturday night with the understanding that Mrs. Braun was to follow later. When he returned early today, he said, he found his wife dead.

Rochester, Ill., Is Swept by Flames; Loss $100,000

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Fire caused about $100,000 damage today and damaged or destroyed nearly half of the buildings in the village of Rochester, seven miles east of Springfield. The town has no fire fighting equipment and the flames were out of control by the time equipment arrived from Springfield. Leo Beck, the town's telephone operator, stayed at his post, summoning help, until wires and connections were destroyed.

Three Lost Boy Picnickers Are Found by Airplane

Amarillo, Texas, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Three boys who wandered for 17 hours in the rugged breaks of the Canadian river after becoming lost during a picnic, were located today by the pilot of a searching airplane.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

JUDGE WILKERSON AND CAPONE.

The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has affirmed unanimously the conviction of Alphonse Capone. In so doing the court has underwritten and approved the conduct of the trial by Judge Wilkerson and the sentence of eleven years' imprisonment which Judge Wilkerson imposed.

The action of the higher court is significant in connection with the opposition which has developed to Judge Wilkerson's promotion to the Appellate bench. Before Capone appeared for trial an understanding had been reached with the government for pleas of guilty to some of the charges against him. Capone thought, rightly or wrongly, that he was going to receive a light sentence.

Judge Wilkerson refused to become a party to such an arrangement. He served notice that if Capone wished to plead guilty he must understand that no arrangements regarding his sentence would be regarded as binding by the judge. Accordingly, Capone pleaded not guilty, the jury returned its verdict and the judge imposed a sentence far more severe than Capone had expected to receive.

It would be astonishing, in view of these circumstances, if Capone and his criminal associates did not regard Judge Wilkerson as an enemy. It would be even more astonishing if men of gangster mentality did not seek to revenge themselves upon the man they regard as their enemy. That they have done so is clear. They have not dared to employ their usual methods against the judge but they have brought every influence they can wield against the judge's promotion. The opposition to the confirmation of Judge Wilkerson's appointment has come, nominally, from labor, but the animating force in the opposition is gangdom and its desire for vengeance.

Gangdom, as Chicago well knows, is not without its political allies. They are to be found in every branch of the government, federal, state and local. Gangdom has key men in office and organized voting strength. It is not without significance in this connection that Capone was able to come to an understanding regarding his sentence with the department of justice. Today gangdom is moving heaven and earth to punish the man who defied its leader and upset his arrangements.

There is in the opposition to Judge Wilkerson's confirmation something more than a blind frenzy for revenge. If Judge Wilkerson is promoted the impotence of gangdom will have been revealed. If the confirmation is denied, every official, and particularly every federal judge, will have received unmistakable notice that gangsters are not to be treated like ordinary defendants but as a privileged class in the community. Those are the alternatives which today confront the United States senate.

A MATTER OF DISTANCES.

The Milwaukee Journal and Paul Block's Sentinel are worried about THE TRIBUNE. They are concerned, they say, because THE TRIBUNE has expressed its opinion that the best interests of Milwaukee will be served by electing Col. Philip C. Westfahl mayor. The Journal scolded THE TRIBUNE as it always has scolded others who have thoughts contrary to its interests. Both papers affect to believe THE TRIBUNE has imposed a great injustice on Milwaukee by asserting its idea that Col. Westfahl would be of greater service than any other candidate in reducing the high cost of city government.

The absence of the publisher of THE TRIBUNE from Milwaukee is the basis of their editorial apprehension.

Their concern is not of great importance.

The fact is, the publisher of THE TRIBUNE usually is much closer to Milwaukee than is the publisher of the Milwaukee Journal, who has been able to, and, in fact, has, for a long time, lived in California much of his time. Paul Block from the Atlantic coast and Mr. Hearst on the Pacific direct the destiny of the Sentinel. The Journal publisher's residence in Milwaukee is so ephemeral and fleeting that he occupies no house, but lives while there in a hotel.

None of them ever has hesitated at expressing opinions on every and all subjects, however remote, including Milwaukee.

The publisher of THE TRIBUNE is 85 miles from the headquarters of the Milwaukee edition of this paper. The publisher of the querulous Journal is much of the time 2,200 miles away from Milwaukee, and that is all right with THE TRIBUNE.

THE TRIBUNE, no less than the other Milwaukee papers, maintains a complete editorial staff in Milwaukee for the Milwaukee edition, and its final authority is much closer to Milwaukee than the directing heads of the other publications usually can be found.

Both profess to worry lest the approval of THE TRIBUNE should be a handicap to Col. Westfahl's candidacy.

They are probably worried, but it is not about Col. Westfahl.

MR. NORTHUP IN CONTEMPT.

It is well that the judgment of Judge Philip Sullivan against First Assistant State's Attorney Northup should be sent up for review, since whatever the questions of law involved any gratification which may be felt over the judgment will not be shared by the community. Mr. Northup may be in contempt of court. He is not in contempt of his fellow citizens for whose protection from graft and misgovernment he has been fighting with splendid courage, resolution, and ability. If finally he goes to jail it may be accounted a victory for the influences of corrupt politics which have been and are exerted to the limit to embarrass and defeat the exposure of graft and ruthless waste, of cynical maladministration and betrayal of public trust, but it will not be a victory for justice to the people, and it will not, we think, be a victory for the judicial institution and process.

The proceedings in this contempt, however, give the public renewed occasion for considering the problems with which the forces endeavoring to expose and punish the organized power of public plunder have had to deal. Only the exceptional persistence and devotion to duty which Mr. Northup has exhibited could have made any headway at all amid the entanglements which political and legal tactics enmeshed the prosecution. It is in such a struggle that the safeguards which the law provides for the protection of private rights are subjected to the shrewdest and most unscrupulous perversion, and rules intended for the insurance of justice are turned to its defeat. These are tactics which the general lay public cannot be much aware of, any more than of the subterranean currents of corrupt influence with which public justice must contend. But the people of Chicago have had exposed before them the essential facts of the Crowe régime in the sanitary board which Mr. Northup's unflinching conduct has forced before them. For this service, we are confident, they are deeply grateful and they will understand that Mr. Northup has shown no contempt for justice, but the highest devotion to it, whether he stands in technical contempt of a court or not.

THE TWO PARTY FICTION.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, says that if the Democrats do not adopt local state option and control for the solution of prohibition the Republicans are likely to take the show away from them. It is true that the most animated group in the Republican party is now pretty thoroughly Jeffersonian. The management is standing piously pat, but the cerebration and the enthusiasms in the party are plainly kin to the creed of Monticello. Jefferson with his theories of decentralization, of restricted government, of individual worth and reliability is deserted in his own territory and welcomed in the enemy's.

The southern clerics, now dominant in the region of state sovereignty, have gone completely colonial New England. They are for a repressive theocracy in control of government and prefer a Republican federal censor submissive to them to any kind of state control by a government of their own party.

Albert Ritchie, Democrat of Maryland, and Hiram Bingham, Republican of Connecticut, might agree on party principles. James Reed, Democrat of Missouri, could agree with James Beck, Republican of Pennsylvania. Ritchie cannot agree with Carter Glass of his own party, nor can Beck agree with Simeon Fess of his.

THE GAZETTE GIVES UP.

Richard Fox, who edited the Police Gazette during its most prosperous period, the late seventies and eighties, had abilities as editor and publisher which would have put him in the front rank in his time if they had been exercised in a more respectable field of publicity. It was Fox who first recognized the value of pictures and the value of color. But he and his publication belonged to the half-world or underworld and their development was limited. It is an interesting question whether Fox's choice of pink for his paper discredited that color for many years or whether he chose it because it was already associated with the life of the world he lived in and upon. "Pink fleshings" were the invariable wear of those daughters of the callipygian Venus whose charms were displayed on the first page of almost every issue of the Gazette. Pink was the color of the rouge with which no honest woman would then have dared to heighten the hues of innocence. But, apart from these suggestions, it was effective in the reproduction of pictures, and a change from black and white.

The Gazette was also for many years the best printed publication in the country except the expensive monthlies.

But the Gazette did not change with the times and the customs. It belonged to the days of segregated districts, mining towns, and the crass rowdyism of young cities, to the days when the heavyweight championship of America might be won and lost in a country barn, with a purse which would not tempt a champion of our time to interrupt his reading of Shakespeare or Freud, to the days when legs were limbs and sex was in the dictionary but not in polite conversation. The Gazette thrived for more than three-quarters of a century upon our moralistic suppressions and evasions. It gradually expired with their passing, or, rather, transformation. There is irony in its fate in the midst of the Great Suppression, which, like its predecessor, does not suppress.

Editorial of the Day

SUNSHINE.

[The Baltimore Sun.]

In the Washington dispatches we are informed that the Hon. Jim Watson of Indiana said of Judge Cardozo's appointment: "He fills the niche made vacant by Justice Holmes, being a liberal in tendency without being a radical." Trust the Republican "floor leader" to find sunshine in any gloom in which the chastened Republican administration may encircle the bewildered Old Guard. Indeed, only the surface of the senator's talents was stirred. Had Judge Cardozo been a radical, Jim would have pointed out that he was not a Socialist; had he been a Socialist, Jim would have pointed out that he was not a communist; had he been a communist, Jim would have pointed out that he was not a Trotzkyite. Dear, blessed Jim! He maketh the heart to rejoice.

THE GOLD FRAMED INCUBUS.

(With a nod to Oliver Wendell Holmes' "Chambered Nautilus.")

These are the sacred bureaus, which taxpayers say,
Eat up their coin from day to day,—
These grand old bureaus that give jobs
Down here in Washington to seething mobs
Who join in tears and most poignant sobs,
And bite their nails and tear their hair
When the country talks of giving them the air.

Year after year beheld these bureaus rise,
Bigger and bigger still they grew in size;
Still as they all bigger got,
The taxpayers yearned to put them on the spot,
But they've withstood this base and low-born plot.
For jobholders are not easily dismayed,
And ever rise new bureaus most lavishly arrayed.

Build still more gorgeous bureaus, O Uncle Sam,
No matter what they cost, who gives a damn?
Build them so high and vast and great
That all us bureaucrats may sit in kingly state,
And watch the sky and clouds and meditate.
Each one a perfumed Nero,
And all of Washington be one stupendous bureau.

AN AUTOIST after picking up a hitch hiker and carrying him seventy or eighty miles came to the end of his journey and so informed the hitch hiker. But the hitch hiker wanted the man to keep on, and when the autoist refused the hitch hiker drew a pistol, shot the driver, and drove away with his car. This should teach auto drivers that if they are disposed to pick up hitch hikers they should drive them to their destinations. If a hitch hiker, for instance, in the middle west says he wants to be taken to New York or New Orleans or San Francisco, of course he knows much better than the man who is driving the car where he wants to go, and should be taken there. Motorists in the habit of picking up hitch hikers should be prepared to go where the hitch hiker wishes to go. Furthermore, drivers who pick up hitch hikers should carry a large basket of tasty food and a case of home brew, as the hitch hiker might get hungry on the way. Several warm blankets on the back seat would also enable the hitch hiker to sleep comfortably while the autoist is pegging away through the night. It is just the neglect of little things like this that annoys hitch hikers sometimes to the extent that they feel they must look out for their own comfort and happiness.

The philosophers of ancient Greece
Quite won my veneration
With their admirable rule for life,
"In all things moderation."
And so one day I sat me down
(I really am not fooling),
And made my mind up literally
To follow this sage schooling.
So now I smoke just once a day,
My drinks are of the fewest,
And of all the lovely swear words
I only choose the newest.
I buy one frock each shopping day,
And hats—just one each week,
And even on the telephone
I do not overspeak.
My calories are limited,
But O,—I hesitate—
For when it comes to loving,
I am most immoderate.
Although I'd follow those old chaps
Serene, unquizzical,
In love I'm sure I could not be
That metaphysical.

THE HEADLINES have gravitated down to "Japan Launches New Attack" or "Chinese Launch Night Attack." It wouldn't be so dreary if the Japs and Chinese would do something with their attacks besides launch 'em. There must be some other word than launch. If we were in communication with either side we would beg them to try carrying out an attack or to just make an attack without launching it. The other side would be so dumfounded to see an attack coming at them that wasn't launched they would turn and run like jackrabbits.

LET THE BABY CRAWL.

A FEW books on exercises for infants are on the market. At least one was written by an American, and there are several by Europeans. None of these has had much influence because babies are wise enough to get along without athletic direction. Almost from the moment of birth a baby spends most of his waking hours in doing setting up exercises. Bending, which comes so hard to "stove-up" adults, is the natural state of a baby. He puts in much time bending and unbending, and he neither makes wry faces about it nor gets out of breath.

To begin with, his arms are better members than his legs, but by dint of eternal kicking he succeeds in developing his leg capacity beyond that of his arms. At first his back muscles are not equal to the job of holding his body and neck in the vertical position. But by almost constant writhing, twisting, turning, and squirming this deficiency is corrected.

I wish to emphasize particularly the advantage of the exercise we call crawling, and to suggest to parents that they promote it. Crawling is excellent for the development of the heavy muscles of the back. Locomotion is accomplished partly by the trunk muscles and partly by those of the legs and arms.

It has the advantage of getting the baby around, quickening his interests, educating him, and giving him exercise for his heavy muscles at a time when it is not possible for him to keep his knee joints from bending as he stands, or to maintain an erect position, or when his leg bones are not firm enough to carry his weight without bowing. In crawling only the thigh is used and the femur is apt to be rigid enough.

I never heard of a baby made bowlegged by crawling. I have heard of mothers who try to make the baby walk rather than crawl—a great mistake. It is wrong mechanically, physiologically, and from the standpoint of education. A baby learns by observation. He is taught by example. Since those he is imitating are standing on their hind legs and moving about by using these members, that is the objective of the baby. He is never satisfied to crawl if he can walk, because he sees mother walking.

Something tells him, however, that for the time being it is better for him to push around with some sort of a crawl. He should be allowed to have his own way. It is not good policy to make him try to stand or walk as long as he prefers to crawl.

Nor should his method of crawling be interfered with. He may want to imitate a crab and go backwards or sideways, or he may maneuver after some other outlandish fashion. The way suits his machinery, although it may not suit that of somebody else or conform to the accepted rules of the game. When the time comes to make the change the youngster can be depended upon to imitate those about him.

The great objection to crawling is that floors are apt to be dirty and cold and forbidden things may find their way there. Crawling directs the baby's vision toward the floor. He may acquire too much floor education. But floors can be kept clean and warm.

INSANITY.

J. M. C. writes: Is insanity inheritable? I have two sisters who are insane and who are in institutions. I am married and have two children with perfect health. My wife also is in good health. We are going to have another baby and somebody has told her that insanity is a blood disease and she fears that her children will inherit it. I am in good health, but nervous at times. My sisters are melancholy. They became that way in their forties.

REPLY:

Insanity is not a blood disease. It is not inheritable in any proper sense. Nervous instability may run in families. People of this type are somewhat prone to develop insanity. That is about as far as inheritance runs. Your sisters probably have manic-depressive insanity. This is an emotional disturbance with little inheritance qualities

LOOK AT BLOOD VESSELS.

J. H. writes: I am 91 years old and am suffering a great deal from swollen and burning feet, especially at night. What is the cause? What can I do to help myself?

REPLY:

The probable cause is disease of the blood vessels of the legs. If these were examined the cause might be found. The examination should include the heart and kidneys. Bathing the feet in hot and cold water alternately may be of service.

FALSE PASSPORTS.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—I was born in Austria-Hungary and was drafted to serve in that country's army, but before I was called to serve I bought a passport from another man and came to this country on that passport, landing in New York in October, 1912. Can I be a citizen of the United States? H. S.

Yes, if the writer can prove legal entry into the United States. Apparently he came under a fictitious name, and therefore should apply to the immigration service, room 1343, Transportation building, Chicago, for legalization of his entry under the act of March 2, 1929, which provides for such legalization in cases of aliens arriving prior to June 3, 1921. FRED J. SCHLOTFELDT, District Director, U. S. Department of Labor.

PROPERTY OWNERSHIP.

Antioch, Ill., Feb. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am a Norwegian, came to this country twenty-four years ago, but sorry to say, I am not an American citizen. I served in the army during the war, but through some misunderstanding withdrew my first papers which I had at that time, but received an honorable discharge. Now I would like to know if I can buy a farm in Wisconsin and work on same, or is there a law against an alien owning property in that state? B. J.

No, although section 234-24 of the Wisconsin statutes prohibits aliens residing outside the U. S. from owning over 320 acres.

MAKING A WILL.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Does a will have to be recorded or [2] probated to make it legal? 3. Which is the best way to make out a will? D. J.

2. The necessity for probate depends upon whether there is real estate and on other facts that are not before us.

3. We strongly advise you to employ an attorney in the drafting and execution of so important a document.

CHINA-JAPAN WAR, 1894

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 14.—News has been received here of a battle which took place on Aug. 11 between the Japanese and Chinese fleets. The Chinese were driven off.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 14.—At the request of the state department Secretary Herbert has directed Capt. Coffin of the cruiser Charleston, now at the Mare Island navy yard, to prepare to sail for the Asiatic station to join the other United States warships there for the purpose of protecting the interests of Americans in China and Japan during the war.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A Times dispatch from Tientsin says the British minister has issued a notice enjoining strict neutrality on all British subjects in the far east during the war between Japan and China. The dispatch adds that the French gunboat Lion has arrived at Tientsin. A private telegram from Yokohama says seven Chinese vessels were sunk in a recent engagement with the Japanese, but this lacks confirmation.

BERLIN, Aug. 16.—It is rumored here that Disconto-Gesellschaft is negotiating a Chinese loan which it is reported will amount to $50,000,000. In connection with the proposed loan a syndicate has been formed which includes most of the leading banks and bankers of this city.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A Times dispatch from Shanghai reports Japan is landing troops in Corea and upwards of 50,000 Japanese soldiers are now in Corean territory. The Chinese fleet, according to the dispatch, is remaining passive.

YOKOHAMA, Aug. 17.—It is officially stated that the Japanese fleet, which consists of seventeen vessels, is hunting for the Chinese fleet for the purpose of engaging it in battle. The Japanese troops in Corea have been ordered to occupy all the passes on the China-Corean frontier and prevent at all hazards the entry into Corea of Chinese reinforcements.

Japanese troops have arrived there up to the present date, consisting of cavalry and infantry, but no artillery. The harbor of Chemulpo and also the approaches to the mouth of the river leading to Seoul are filled with submerged torpedoes and the army base is thereby protected from sea attack.

LONDON.—The Chronicle's Tokio correspondent says sixty-five naval cadets of the sixty-seven "Hobsons" who took Japanese steamers to the entrance of Port Arthur in an attempt to blockade it have been promoted to the ranks of officers.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Aroused by the burning of three members of his race on charges other than assault of white women, Booker T. Washington has written a letter protesting against injustice to the Negro. He declares that not one of the three blacks who were burned was guilty of the crimes charged.

CHICAGO.—Wells Ely Wines, president and oldest member of the Old Men's Social club of Drexel boulevard, celebrated his 92d birthday.

FEBRUARY 29, 1916.

LONDON.—The German offensive around Verdun has spread until the battle now extends from the Champagne district, forty miles west of Verdun, nearly to St. Mihiel, to the southeast of Verdun. After eight days of continuous fighting the Verdun battle remains undetermined. It will go into history as one of the world's most deadly encounters. Thousands of dead and wounded lie in the Verdun forests and other thousands are in the plain north of Pepper heights. Directly about Verdun the definite claim is still made by the Germans that Fort Douaumont is theirs. The French official reports do not dispute this, but correspondents for French and English newspapers indicate the belief that the French have taken back this fortress.

LONDON.—The morning newspapers discuss with serious tone the new German submarine campaign which is expected to begin at midnight. There is a general belief that the campaign will mark the entrance into the war of several of the newer and extended types of submarines, probably with greatly enlarged radius of action and greater offensive power. During the last month Germany captured or sank fifty vessels.

COPENHAGEN.—A dispatch from Berlin says that when the kaiser was in Wilhelmshaven last week the admiralty proposed to the emperor that all ships be torpedoed, even neutral ones, in order to prevent imports from reaching Britain. In this way Great Britain could be starved in about two months.

LONDON.—Henry James, the novelist, died at his Chelsea residence, 21 Carlisle mansions. He was born an American, but died a British subject. The distinguished novelist, critic and playwright was born in New York April 15, 1843.

CHEFOO.—It is being circulated among the Chinese that Port Arthur has fallen.

LONDON.—The first shots have been exchanged between the Russian and Japanese land forces in Corea. It was an affair of outposts near Ping Yang and is claimed by both sides as a success. A Daily Mail dispatch from Hakodate says that Vladivostok is menaced because Russia's northern naval base has been blockaded by the Japanese fleet since Feb. 25. According to one of the morning papers here there is much mystery in connection with Admiral Togo's main fleet. He is reported to be at various points in the Yellow and Japanese seas at one and the same time.

NONRESIDENT DEPENDENTS.

Chicago, Feb. 23.—So much comment has been caused and so many inquiries have come to the clearing house regarding the authenticity of the article in THE TRIBUNE this morning regarding nonresidents that it seems advisable to make a statement as to the true facts. It can be explained simply.

THE TRIBUNE reporter was assigned to the shelter at 222 South Morgan street, according to his own statement. It has been the policy of the clearing house for the last two months to assign to this shelter only nonresidents and special cases who, for some other reason, are not allowed regular tickets.

Thus, instead of seeing an average shelter, the reporter saw the shelter where the service to nonresidents has become centralized and his estimate that the proportion of nonresidents in all the shelters would make a total of 2,000 is obviously inaccurate.

SHERIDAN ROAD.

Chicago, Feb. 26.—It has just come to my attention that representations have recently been made in Springfield to the effect that there is practically no opposition to the proposed straightening, grading, and widening of Sheridan road in Hubbard Woods. The facts of the case, however, are exactly the reverse. The opposition is unanimous, as evidenced by the resolutions passed by the improvement associations of the various north shore towns. These show a realization of the fact that the widening of Sheridan road through Hubbard Woods would be only the initial step towards widening the road through all the north shore towns.

Pouring two or more additional streams of automobiles traveling at high speeds through the residence sections of our towns can only result in a greatly increased accident mortality. Nobody wants this; nevertheless, some people at Springfield seem to have a different idea, due to the Chicago Regional Planning association. There is a rumor also that a large trucking concern wants it.

Are we going to sit quietly by during the coming primaries and let the Chicago Regional Planning association put any such calamity upon us?

THE NINE POWER TREATY.

Cambridge, Mass., Feb. 23.—I should like to congratulate you on your recent editorial regarding the nine power treaty. As all the world knew at the time, that treaty represented a bargain between the United States and Japan. In exchange for Japan's guarantee that the territorial and administrative integrity of China would be preserved and the open door maintained, we agreed to limit our naval strength and minimize our defenses in the Pacific. The nine power treaty became a corner stone of our national defense—a substitute for forts and battleships. By violating that treaty Japan has jeopardized our interests just as surely as though the ships for which that treaty stood had been attacked.

Our answer to this menacing action should be a reënforcement of our Asiatic fleet and a strengthening of our Pacific fortifications. J. MACK SWIGERT.

HELEN SULLIVAN.

GAS.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—It is a hopeful sign to see the public's reaction to the new gas rates. The writer became interested enough to check up and find the bill from the Public Service company was 25 per cent higher in January and 29 per cent higher in February than for the same months of 1931, with conditions practically identical. While we might not object to some increase in rates, the thing that raises our dander is for the gas company and Illinois commerce commission to try to pass it on to us as a decrease in rates.

The situation is exactly analogous to what might happen in the oil industry, if we assume a condition where one company has the exclusive right to sell fuel for your automobile. That company finds that they can buy kerosene more cheaply than gasoline and decides, accordingly, that you will have to buy and use kerosene. Actual tests have shown kerosene to have a calorific value, or B. T. U. content, of about 5 per cent over gasoline. The company, with the blessing of the commerce commission, tells you that in the future you must pay for fuel by B. T. U.'s instead of gallons and that the rate will be lower on that system, although the amount used will still be measured by the old system.

The result of the above situation is that the rate per gallon is higher, and your car, which is designed for gasoline fuel, cannot appreciate the favor accorded it by reacting with increased mileage. As a matter of fact, when the generous gas company started feeding our stoves "therms," as they love to call them, the stove reacted like the horse which was fitted with green glasses and fed wood shavings.

B. A. SCHROEDER.

A FAIR TEST.

Harvey, Ill., Feb. 24.—The B. T. U. value of gas is determined by the use of a calorimeter which contains a burner capable of fine and exact adjustment. Such perfection of adjustment is impossible in the average kitchen stove. It does not follow because the calorimeter can extract the additional heat value that the consumer's stove does likewise.

If we are to remain on a therm basis, the only way to make a fair comparison between the old and new gas is to use a calorimeter so constructed that its burner is identical with that on the average stove. Unless our officials insist upon this type of test they must take the responsibility of permitting what is actually a rate increase during the period when the public is least able to endure it.

RECEIVERS' CLERKS.

Chicago, Feb. 25.—It is a known fact that receivers and attorneys for all these closed banks are getting plenty of our hard-earned money. But why there should be "employed" from five clerks up in almost all these banks, I never could understand. I many times have watched them for 15 minutes at a time, and their pretense at work makes me laugh. I suppose they add up figures, then subtract their additions, and then multiply something or other [providing their political friends allow them to]. Most of these banks haven't paid a "dividend" for a year, but still the clerical force stays.

CAPONE TO KNOW HIS PRISON FATE WITHIN 48 HOURS

U. S. to Press for Quick Trip to Penitentiary.

Al Capone probably will learn within the next 48 hours whether he must leave at once for Leavenworth penitentiary to begin serving his eleven year term for income tax evasion. The best the gang chief can hope for is continued waiting in the county jail while his apparently futile appeal efforts are carried further.

The opinion of the United States Circuit court of Appeals upholding Capone's conviction, which was handed down on Saturday, will return from the printers today and United States Attorney George E. Q. Johnson and his assistants will have a chance to read it before taking any action toward sending Capone to the penitentiary.

Expected to Ask Prison Order.

It is considered certain they will ask the reviewing court to issue a mandate for Capone's immediate removal to Leavenworth, or some other federal penitentiary, without waiting for the defense motion for a rehearing, a formality for which twenty days are usually allowed.

Federal officials are said to be hopeful that the defense lawyers will not oppose a motion for the prison mandate. Capone is receiving no credit toward his prison term while remaining in jail and it was recalled that Attorney Michael Ahern made sure of his right to have the writ of supersedeas, which stays the penitentiary sentence, vacated at any time.

This was to give the gangster a chance to go down to the penitentiary and begin receiving credit on his sentence in the event the U. S. Supreme court denied him bail. But no application for bail was made to the Supreme court, and Capone remained in jail.

Appeal Chances Appear Slim.

Considering the experiences of others convicted in the Chicago income tax campaign, Capone's chances on further appeal are regarded as slim. The Circuit court of appeals has never granted a rehearing in an income tax case. The Supreme court has refused to review the only income tax cases it has acted upon, those of Ralph Capone and State Representative Lawrence C. O'Brien.

Capone's lawyers, Ahern and Albert Fink, were still inaccessible yesterday and neither had visited their client.

Capone's wife, Mae, his mother and a sister visited him in his large hospital dormitory cell at the jail during the afternoon, having received passes from United States Marshal H. C. W. Laubenheimer. Deputy marshals are on guard and strict precautions are being taken to keep Capone from conducting his gang affairs from the jail.

INDIAN TRIBES RISE IN BRAZIL; ATTACK RANCHES

Raiders Murder Two Whites; Wound 10.

BY ANTHONY PATRIC.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MANAOS, Amazonas, Brazil, Feb. 20.—[By Mail to Belem.]—Raiding parties of at least three different tribes of half-civilized Indians, equipped with modern rifles, have killed two men and wounded ten others. Their attacks on white men's ranches have caused a general feeling of terror along the Upper Maderia river, where the nut gathering season is now at its height. The Indians, authorities believe, are attacking to renew a hereditary claim to the highly productive lands.

Disturbances have occurred chiefly along the border between the two states of Amazonas and Matto Grosso. The Indians have also revolted against the entire population of the municipality of Borba.

300 Indians Raid Ranch.

The casualties resulted from an attack by 300 Indians on the estate of Col. Galdino Mendes Cavalcanti, wealthy business man and land owner of Amazonas. Surprised by the Indian outlaws, the colonel was seriously wounded. His son, Joao, and a foreman, José do Nascimento, were killed and nine more of the thirty defending ranchers were wounded. An Indian's bullet struck Joao while he was trying to save his father. The raiders looted the ranch and set fire to the warehouse.

The few constables at Borba were informed of the raid and rushed to the ranch, but the Indians had fled to a nearby hill. Protected by their rifle fire, they could not be dislodged. Later the state of Amazonas ordered a detachment of federal soldiers under Lieut. Sotero to proceed to Borda equipped with machine guns.

Take Their Women Along.

The Indian attackers belong to tribes which for the last five or six years had been thought thoroughly civilized by Roman Catholic missionaries. Reports of the Cavalcanti attack said that the Indians were accompanied by their women. At their head was a chief who had spent four years at the mission on the upper Madeira and was believed to have been a friend of the white men.

LABOR IN IRELAND LAYS DOWN LAW TO DE VALERA

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN, Feb. 28.—The Labor party threatens to be a severe taskmaster for Eamon de Valera's government. Senator O'Farrell, Labor leader, today denounced what he called a deliberately concocted rumor in the De Valera press regarding a threatened dictatorship by the followers of President Cosgrave. He called the rumor a dangerous form of electioneering calculated to arouse the mob's passions.

Regarding the army pensions which De Valera proposes to revise, O'Farrell said that the Labor party has supported the passing of the military pensions that have been awarded by one government and that to transfer them to the camp followers of that government's successor would reduce Ireland to the level of a South American republic.

In the new dail he said the Labor party would insist that questions like the elimination of the oath to the British king should not stand in the way of De Valera in carrying out his promised economic reforms.

FIFTY PER CENT BENHAM GOING ON TRIAL TODAY

Indicted After Failure of His Schemes.

Belvidere, Ill., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Albert W. Benham, whose venture in high finance earned for him the sobriquet of "fifty per cent" Benham, goes on trial in Circuit court here tomorrow.

ALBERT W. BENHAM.

The former factory worker, whose dividends of 10 to 50 per cent of money entrusted him by his neighbors stirred the countryside hereabouts, will face the court on charges of operating a confidence game.

About a year ago the "financial wizard," who had conducted his business of "buying and reselling bankrupt stocks" for nearly two years, announced he was "broke." Then he disappeared from Belvidere. Later he returned. He then said all he desired was to be left alone so that he could get to work and repay his debtors.

14 Counts on Indictments.

But he was indicted. Fourteen counts in all now stand against him. On one of them—in which he is alleged to have defrauded Mrs. Marie Johnson of $350—he goes to trial tomorrow.

Benham, now 41 years old, was a shipping clerk in a local factory until he entered the financial field. He began his career in the same factory as a boy at 50 cents a week.

A few years ago, the state charges, he began to approach his fellow workers on pay days. He would tell them, it is charged, that he had a tip on secret sources of speculation enabling him to win enormous sums. A few entrusted him with their savings. They were promptly rewarded with repayments and large sums of "interest."

Word of Benham's wizardry spread throughout the city. Housewives called at the factory to beg him to invest their pin money. Others did likewise. The demand on his time was so great he quit his job.

Bankers Become Alarmed.

Bankers became alarmed when it was discovered that in one week approximately $300,000 had been withdrawn from savings accounts to invest with Benham. They sought an investigation. To all questioners Benham replied that he made the dividends by buying and reselling bankrupt stocks.

The end came soon after the bankers had demanded an investigation. Creditors, many of whom theretofore had been anxious to reinvest both principal interest, sought payment. A steady drain on his resources ensued.

Came the day when he refused prompt redemption. News of the action spread. Investors appeared by the scores. Benham told all he would pay in a few days. He said he had a big deal on at the moment which demanded all available funds. The day for the "big deal" arrived and with it Benham's admission he was "broke."

Aviation Notes

Six pilots have been dismissed from the service of the Century-Pacific Air Lines, which is under the same management as the Century Air Lines, according to an announcement yesterday in Los Angeles. Representatives of the coast company said three were let out because of schedule curtailments and the others because they "didn't show the right attitude" toward the controversy between the company and the union pilots in Chicago. None of those discharged signed a statement, as did nineteen other coast pilots, expressing confidence in E. L. Cord, backer of both the Century and the Century-Pacific companies.

Chicagoans will now be able to fly to San Diego in 23½ hours via the United Air Lines, it was announced by the company yesterday. The new service will be inaugurated tomorrow. Flying time from New York to San Diego will be 31 hours and 40 minutes. It was said the service will be the longest night and day tri-motored passenger service in the country, the distance being 2,847 miles from New York to San Diego. The new schedule will cut an hour and a half from the flying time both from Chicago and New York.

STEALS PLANE AND DOES SOME FANCY FLYING

Kenosha, Wis., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Search for the man who stole an airplane from the Racine airport was under way in Kenosha today.

Ed Hedeen, manager of the airport, reported the theft of the biplane from the field.

A short time later scores of calls were received at police headquarters here reporting a flyer was doing stunts over the housetops and almost dipping the plane's wings into a park lagoon.

The stranger disappeared after a half hour of stunting.

The plane was later found abandoned in a field in the rear of the Kenosha armory.

Neighbors had seen a man stagger out of the cock pit and run away.

It was Hedeen's plane.

Hedeen reported seeing an intoxicated pilot around the airport earlier in the day. His discription tallies with that of the man seen leaving the plane in Kenosha.

Hedeen declared he would have the man's license revoked if he is apprehended. He broke most all the rules in the code, Hedeen added.

FISHING VESSEL SUNK BY CUTTER OF COAST GUARD

Rescue Crew of Disabled Danish Ship.

Boston, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The rescue of 22 men in mid-Atlantic and the sinking of a New York fishing schooner by a coast guard cutter in Nantucket sound today were added to the pages of the adventures of sea faring men.

The crew of the Danish freighter Aggersund, in peril since Wednesday when she called for aid, were carried to safety by the crew of the steamer Blankaholm, 600 miles off Cape Race, N. F., according to radio advices received today by coast guard headquarters.

The unfortunate fishing schooner was the George W. Elzey Jr., which was in collision with the coast guard cutter Acushnet off Cross Rip lightship last night as the cutter was proceeding to sea and the schooner returning to port.

No Lives Lost.

No lives were lost in either mishap, and as far as could be learned, no injuries were suffered.

The Aggersund, apparently abandoned by her crew and the rescue ship, was proceeding from Scotland to Boston when she reported she was suffering heavy damage. A terse message relayed to London on the 24th told that the lifeboats and the funnel had been swept away and that the ship was listing 45 degrees.

Advices from the Blankaholm, one of the several ships which went to the rescue, told only that the crew had been saved.

Coast guard reports of the accident involving the cutter said that the Elzey sank within 20 minutes after the crash. The cutter, which suffered only minor damage, transferred the fishermen crew of four and stood by in an effort to pull the sunken hulk out of shipping lanes.

Menace to Navigation.

Tonight she had been unsuccessful in her efforts to move the Elzey, whose stern was slightly above water, but remained on the scene playing her searchlights to warn other vessels.

The position of the sunken craft was given as three-quarters of a mile off the lightship. It was considered a menace to navigation and the patrol boats Harriet Lane and Jackson were dispatched to the vicinity to assist the Acushnet in moving the Elzey. They were due to reach the scene late tonight and at high tide early in the morning hoped to pull the schooner out of the shipping lane.

To round up a busy day, the coast guard was asked to bring a doctor to the coastwise steamship Juniata, of Norfolk, which reported a passenger sick. The Juniata later reported that she would continue on her scheduled run to Boston where she is due tomorrow morning. Coast guard craft have no doctors aboard.

The Woman Hater

BY MAY EDGINTON

INSTALLMENT I.

AN HONOR SPURNED.

"Change your mind and come to the ball, you dam' mule," said Mrs. Chapelle.

"Come along, Faire, for goodness sake, do," Aya entreated.

Faire replied: "No."

"When you get a chance to go among people of your poor father's class you don't take it," Mrs. Chapelle stormed. "What's to become of you, that's what I ask? And my poor Aya, too, if you show openly that you won't go about together like proper sisters?"

"Aya and I do go about together and you know it. To the polo and the gymkhana; and tennis, and everywhere we can go."

"They why won't you come with us to the Governor's ball?"

"Because . . ."

"Because you think all the high hats there tonight are your class and we aren't, and you won't go in our company," screamed Aya, and let tears roll down the cheeks whose touch of duskiness was her tragedy.

Mrs. Chapelle caressed her daughter.

"There, honey, you look beautiful. You sure do. We'll enjoy ourselves without this fairy princess!"

"We know it was 'cos of her we were asked!"

"We don't know it! We're asked because the dam' society on this island has at last thought it time to recognize the widow and stepdaughter of an aristocrat."

"We're asked because his aid de camp fixed the governor's list," screamed Aya.

"Well, lovely, you make yourself agreeable to the Honorable Mr. Bookes. He'll see nothing prettier here."

"He sees Faire!"

"You can have him, Aya," said Faire scornfully.

"And the governor and the secretary, Mr. Grand, too, I suppose!"

"Have what you can get, Aya."

Mrs. Chapelle flared:

"Don't sneer at your sister!"

"I'm not sneering, mother."

Faire Chapelle, daughter of European aristocrats, entered Flaxen's cafe.

"As for young Mr. Grand," said Aya, calming under the maternal ministration, "we know who'll get him!" And she tittered.

"Now that's all vulgar island gossip," said Mrs. Chapelle, but tittering a little, too. "I hope she ruins herself over him!" she added.

"Lady Mira?"

Faire thought: "They mustn't speak of him. If only they won't speak of him!"

She distracted them: "You both look marvelous."

"Never mind about me," said Mrs. Chapelle. "It's my chick who matters."

"Faire's put on her organdie tonight, anyway the one she bought from the American lady who came on here from Florida," said Aya, darting a keen look. "What's that for?"

"The clients!" Faire answered languidly.

"You'll have the men in from the French cruiser tonight," said Mrs. Chapelle, business like.

"But I'll be dancing with the officers at Government house," cried Aya. And in her heart she thought: 'Shall I? Shall we really mix with the government set?'"

Faire went over to the window and stood looking out over Plumbago bay, nearly landlocked by coral reefs, so that it always lay still as a lagoon. In the bay she could see the lights of the French cruiser whose visit was causing many entertainments to be given; and the white sails of a big yacht from Jamaica rose most beautifully into the night.

This life which she had lived here for ten years since she was a child of ten had been beautiful, entrancing, cruel, and horrible.

"Well, Faire, we're off," said Mrs. Chapelle behind her.

"Good-by. Good-by, Aya."

"Good-by, fool," replied Aya, recovering her spirits.

They went downstairs and, leaning out, Faire watched them into the old Ford, Mrs. Chapelle taking the wheel.

They had not mentioned his name. They had not once during the venomous tattle of the evening uttered the name of Sir Philip Persian, governor and commander-in-chief of the Tama islands; Bai, and St. Rosario.

She saw more than the Chapelle mother and daughter getting into the Ford. Up and down the palm lined street, and up from the harbor, were hurrying the clients of Flaxen's casino, established near the waterfront by Mrs. Chapelle's first husband of dubious color who had fathered Aya; and the refuge of her second husband of dubious morale though unimpeachable antecedents, who had brought his little daughter Faire with him to Bai and stayed there.

So Faire looked at herself slowly in the glass, settling down on her hips the charming organdie—why, indeed, had she put it on?—and went down to the work for which Mrs. Chapelle had trained her second husband, her daughter, and her stepdaughter.

She could have left matters there—on such an unprecedented occasion—to the young half colored man of Spanish descent who was called "Manager," and to his "boys," but she preferred it—the sordid garish casino and dance and card rooms—to the tardy honor that Government house had accorded her. All her pride had rejected that belated invitation, because the Chapelles had, until now, been left out of even the ball list, which had no pretense of keeping exclusive. Also she knew that her stepmother's accusation was true; ashamed of her pride, she was yet hard in it; she would not go in such tawdry company among the kind of people to whom she and her dead father should have belonged by right.

She went out of the little red roofed house with its horrid furniture and unstudied colors, down the path of the rough but luxuriously flowering garden to Flaxen's.

Negro music beat out to her from the rooms; loud voices speaking several languages, clashing of bottles and glasses; laughter loud and free and uproarious. Flaxen's would do a smart trade, because of the rarity of visitors. The French sailors would draw all of the town and district who were not included in the social life of Port Bai. There was work for her. She could sell a lot of bad sweet champagne tonight. But she lingered, before she went into the rooms, to look up above the houses crowding down the hill to the waterfront, to the high space where Government house stood. Its windows blazed; and she could see the lamps of cars flashing along the climbing avenue of mahogany trees.

For a moment she paused and thought: If only her father had not failed her so! Then she entered.

A lull greeted her; and then a roar. A good many men rose to their feet. Mrs. Chapelle had taught both girls how to arrive among their clients at Flaxen's: "Queens, mind! Make yourselves regular queens! The boys'll eat it. Sassy queens! And then sell 'em; anything they'll buy." This fair, slim, sun tanned girl, with the immense dark eyes famous in Flaxen's, Faire Chapelle, daughter of European aristocrats, entered, stood, and received her ovation. Then she was among them, smiling, cajoling, ordering, daring, talking, laughing; all the while, within herself, completely aloof.

They were nearly all men in the room. The few women the French sailors had picked up blended from yellow to coffee color. Some had a distinctly Chinese cast. She knew the women and nodded to them, and for a moment had the nausea that she always felt on these rare occasions when some vessel put in—a trader, or a pearler, or sometimes a luxury yacht whose crew came to Flaxen's while her owner dined in the white colony set. But Mrs. Chapelle had taught her girls also: "Mind your own business along with your p's and q's. What you don't know don't hurt you." She had a word with the manager, Mantigua, who said that champagne had been ordered.

The air breathed hot, still. The veranda front was wreathed with bougainvillea; it dropped like heavy curtains here and there, so that the tables were all set with red shaded lights unconquered by the radiance of the moon. For the customers of Flaxen's liked the touch of sophisticated décor. They were good humored under the tawdry red silk shades. They laughed a great deal. Yes. It was going to be a good night for trade.

Faire stood a little apart with Mantigua. She could not like him, but he represented here order, service, and good manners. He put on the manners of cities. And he wore the evening dress of the tropics. "You do not go to the ball?" he asked her mockingly.

"No. My work is here, isn't it?"

"But you look very beautiful tonight, miss."

She stared past him, and a French sous officer came up and asked her to dance. They began to tango, while she was filled with her loathing at herself and Flaxen's. She had never so loathed it as tonight.

The night grew hotter. The musks and spices of the island smells were heavy incense. A lot of money had been taken. She had danced with numerous regular clients, and was in the middle of an exhibition tango with the versatile Mantigua, a favor sometimes accorded the clientèle on special nights if clamorously requested—when a particular hush came over the room and over the groups at the café tables outside. Even the Negroes faltered for a moment in their playing.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Minus One Pump.

One day while aboard a street car that was filled to its capacity I took my foot out of my pump, and as soon as I had done so, the car gave a sudden jerk, and I found myself on the front platform of the car without one shoe. Much to the amusement of smiling passengers, I went back to my standing place to get my shoe, and found that while I was thrown to the platform the shoe was, too.

You can imagine my embarrassment when a young man came up to me with my pump in his hand. M. B.

WANTED: BUYERS OF SOUND NOTES TO HELP JOBLESS

Push State Tax Warrant Sale This Week.

Leaders in the sale of state tax warrants spent yesterday in their own offices, clearing up urgent matters so they may devote their entire attention this week to the campaign to get subscriptions of the entire issue. Chicago's reluctance in taking advantage of the six per cent notes has proved a surprise to the selling group, who had expected by this time to sell practically all of the $18,750,000 issue.

So far the purchases have amounted to $10,092,400, of which two separate million dollar blocks were subscribed by the Metropolitan Life Insurance company and the Chicago Surface Lines. The International Harvester company bought $200,000 at first, and later increased this to $500,000. Yet the campaign in the main has moved much too sluggishly, in the opinion of Philip R. Clarke, who is in charge.

Clarke Expresses Concern.

"Saturday's returns of only $60,000 shocked us all at headquarters," he said last night. "From now on, we are going after the logical supporters in a very earnest manner. Hundreds of big concerns that donated generously in the recent emergency relief charity drive have not come forward with subscriptions to these gilt edged notes. Their delay in subscribing is a puzzle to us all.

"Chicago is hurting itself by making this emergency a laborious campaign. The citizens can achieve real credit by coming forward and helping to clean up the job in short order. If the holdbacks responded with the same enthusiasm that many concerns and individuals have shown, this effort to put some real money into the pockets of the subscribers would be a simple matter.

Coöperation Is Urged.

"We urgently request that those who are sitting back come forward and emulate the fine example of many who are on the rolls, and thus enable us who are engaged in the drive to call it a day and go back to our desks."

Activities in the anti-hoarding campaign will be launched today at the relief headquarters, 10 South La Salle street, with selection of the personnel for the drive to promote reëmployment, either of men or women, or of funds. March 15 is the date set for actual beginning of the project.

ACQUIT LAWYER OF PLOT TO MURDER.

Coffeyville, Kas., Feb. 28.—(AP)—F. B. [Bin] Hanlon, Coffeyville attorney and former Kansas university baseball player, was acquitted today of conspiracy to murder Mrs. Maude Martin. A jury disagreed at a previous trial.

FLESHPOTS DRIVE WORLD TO GRIEF, POPE PIUS WARNS

Contrasts Vanities with Virtues of Men.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. declared in an address today that love of the fleshpots "is the source of disputes and wars that always have afflicted and still today afflict the world" with such grief and suffering "as perhaps never have been encountered in history."

The pontiff spoke specifically of the warfare in the far east in his address on the heroic virtues of venerable Maria Assunta Pallotta, who died in China as a missionary, and said he hoped his benediction "will be an augury of universal peace and prosperity."

Pope Pius addressed his benediction specifically "to all those who suffer in this universal disturbance of work and of life, to all peoples of the earth, and in particular to the two great peoples [the Chinese and the Japanese] that in this moment call the attention of the whole world to the far east."

Prays for Trend to Christ.

"To those who suffer for still grave and violent conditions in Russia, Mexico, and Spain," he added, "and to those who control the destinies of the peoples, our benediction goes with the strong wish and humble confident prayer to divine goodness that our paternal apostolic benediction everywhere and to all will carry and urge them toward Christian life."

He expressed the hope that this Christian life would "bear fruit and inspire a wish and a will for counsels of peace and of mutual collaboration for the betterment of the lowly and the humble."

Citing the virtues of the missionary he was honoring, he contrasted them with "the spirit of the world which consists in a desire for the fleshly, in a desire for riches, and in vanity of life.

Fount of Wars.

"Those are the three principal things that drag the world and the individuals, families, and peoples into all guilt and sin that contaminate them," he said. "Those are the fount of so many disputes and wars that have always afflicted and continue today to afflict the world."

The pontiff spoke in the consistory hall before an audience of 500 persons, mostly churchmen, after the reading of a decree proclaiming the virtues of Maria Pallotta.

After the ceremony was over, a brother of the nun whose virtues were extolled was presented and the pope spoke with him for a few minutes, already having especially blessed the family and its parish.

His holiness began his address by offering thanks to God "for the marvels modern science places at the service of the faith, whereby our words can be heard even by the most distant children of the great Catholic family."

Sister Pallotta was a member of the Franciscan Sisters of Mary, with houses at Boston, New York, Brooklyn, Fall River, Mass., and Providence, R. I. A brother and a sister of the nun live in America.

The Charming Cheat

INSTALLMENT XXXI.

A NOVEL REASON FOR MATRIMONY.

Aunt Filomena followed Rachel out to the elevator.

In their taxi Rachel gave way to tears.

Aunt Filomena comforted her rather absentmindedly. Her thoughts dwelt happily upon her nephew. "I didn't know just what he'd do," she mused, without breaking in upon Rachel's thoughts at all, "but I knew he'd have to do something."

Closing the door, Ricardo turned back to the living room with something like a sigh of relief. He could not escape a feeling that now the outsiders were gone, that now the family was alone once more. Whatever tie of blood may have bound him to his aunt, whatever tie of old loyalty may have bound him to Rachel, the tie that bound him to Filomena was inescapable.

She and Frances were still on the divan. He paused before them and without a word or an instant of hesitation his hand reached out and did what it had been itching to do for some moments. It clutched that shining hair and with one good jerk pulled its owner to her feet.

"Stop, you hurt," shrieked Filomena, reaching for her hair.

He retained a savage grasp.

"I hope I do. Now you might tell me, once for all, what it's about. What did you have to tell them a lot of damned lies for?"

"Let go my hair," cried Filomena, the tears starting from her eyes. "Let go, you hurt, let go, I say!"

"Why did you tell them all that stuff?"

"O, I don't know—I don't know, really."

With a final jerk, her hair was released, and she dropped onto the divan, sobbing a little.

"You can't do anything but lie, can you?" he demanded, standing over her.

"They were—acting so damned holy," said Filomena, wiping her eyes. "They didn't have to be told much. They had it all made up for themselves before I ever said a word. The most I had to say was yes. You'd have done it yourself. Any way," she blew her nose vigorously, "I told you I'd get even with you."

"Well, you got even all right. I hope you're satisfied now."

She looked up at him over her damp handkerchief. "I didn't think she'd do that, Dicky. I didn't, really. I knew you—really wanted her, and I never thought she'd give you up."

"I'm afraid you set my value a little high," he said dryly.

"I never believed she'd give you up, when she had you," repeated Filomena.

"You always lie," said Ricardo. "You've lied to me ever since I've known you. First one thing, then another. I don't know how to stop you doing it. I don't know——" He pondered the enormity of this condition, his eyes on the window where snow was beginning to beat softly against the glass.

"Well, I know one thing to do," he spoke with decision. "Get your hat and coat. Where's Fran? Get your hat and coat, Fran. I'm damned glad you're here."

"For once," murmured Frances. "Thanks for the ad. What's the idea?"

"We've had a marriage license all this time," he said. "Now we're going to use it. I'd like to have something settled. We'll make for the nearest church and find a parson. I don't care what church it is; we'll be married right now. Then there's one thing we'll know is settled."

"Not in this——" began Filomena.

"Yes! In that dress. Just the way you are."

"But not——"

"Yes. Now get this. I'm giving orders; you're taking 'em. From now on. We're going out of here now, and go down the street till we find a church and we're going to be married. Then we're coming back here——"

"Yes, I move out," supplied Frances, "perfectly willing as soon as everything's legal. Fil's been a fool about you all this time and you ought to know it. But she would have me play watchdog."

"It's the only way I could get you out, I suppose," he agreed. He turned to Filomena. "You've had something coming to you for quite a while, and it's about time you got it. I can't come in here and beat up a woman without being pinched for assault and battery. But I see where a lot of judges have been deciding it's O. K. for a man to give his wife a good walloping now and then. So I'll play safe."

Frances squealed with delight. "Fil, how priceless! He's going to marry you so he can beat you up. How perfectly thrilling!"

He nodded grimly as Filomena glanced up at him inquiringly.

"That's it. She's got it right. At least I tell the truth—not like some other people. So step lively now and get your hat."

"But I can't get married with——"

"Yes, you can! And you're going to! Didn't I tell you——"

"Give me my shoe," cried Filomena, "that's what I'm trying to say How can I walk down the street in one shoe?"

Frances watched him withdraw from his pocket the little green shoe that had been so offensive to him a bit earlier. She still beamed with the thrill of his novel reason for this hasty [but not sudden] marriage. Then she tactfully ran into the bedroom to fetch Fil's hat and coat.

After all, she realized, watching him sit down beside Fil and carefully fasten the ridiculous shoe on a small, silk covered foot, after all, that might not be the only reason.

SWANSON MAPS PLAN TO SPEED UP BANK TRIALS

Assigns Special Prosecutors to Probe Failures.

A determined campaign to prosecute culpable bankers in the criminal courts was outlined yesterday by State's Attorney Swanson to a group of his assistants. These assistants have been taken from other duties and placed in charge of the cases in which criminal acts have been disclosed in connection with bank failures with instructions to speed up the trials.

"We are ready for trial in some of the cases where the grand juries have returned indictments," said the prosecutor yesterday. "If the courts will coöperate with us to speed up these prosecutions, we hope to have some guilty bankers in the penitentiary within a short time."

Bains Due in Court Today.

The efforts to speed up the trials, it was announced, will start this morning when John Bain, his two sons, his son-in-law, and two other defendants, are to appear before Chief Justice Harry Fisher to announce whether they want a jury trial.

"We want the Bain cases to go to trial within 30 days," said Mr. Swanson. "Special Assistant Edwin J. Raber is ready for trial at the earliest convenience of the courts."

Among the prosecutors taken from other duties and assigned to bank cases under the new order are Charles J. Mueller, a veteran of several administrations who has been in charge of the fight against racketeers; John E. O'Hora and John Hampton, who have been in charge of the prosecution of the gas tax bootleggers; Charles J. Bellows, Wilkie Ham, Leonard Rice, Voyle Johnson and Bindley Cyrus. Each has been assigned to a special group of cases with instructions to devote all their energies to an early prosecution.

Ayers to Continue Inquiry.

Assistant State's Attorney Henry Ayers, who has charge of the special banking bureau established by the prosecutor will continue with the investigations of other banking institutions where indictments have not yet been returned and with the work of his extra legal bureau where debtors are summoned and made to pay up their debts to closed banks. This bureau so far has collected over $700,000 and has questioned 750 bank debtors.

Among the debtors to be summoned during the next few weeks are Eden T. Brekke, west park commissioner and Republican committeeman of the 37th ward; former Ald. John P. Garner, supervisor of securities for the state industrial commission, and Oscar C. Johnson, northwest park commissioner. They are debtors of the closed Laramie State bank, 5200 West Chicago avenue.

Brekke and Garner will be appearing for the second time. Statements they made at their first appearance have been investigated and now they will be recalled. Garner promised to pay $100 per month to clear up his debt of $14,644. It has been discovered that his wife is a large holder of real estate, transferred to her in 1929. The collateral put up by Brekke for his $23,773 of debt is under investigation.

"If the debtors do not pay or make arrangements to pay with reasonable promptness we question them about their finan ial condition," said Mr. Ayers. "These statements are then checked and when the inquiry is finished the debtors are called back and asked for payments or explanations."

10 GIRLS TO TEST SOCIAL ACTIVITY AS MENTAL CURE

An experiment to determine whether feminine companionship will be effective in curing ten male patients of the state hospital at Anna, Ill., of dementia praecox is being conducted by Dr. O. J. Hagebush, managing officer of the institution.

An announcement sent out yesterday stated that ten young women, employés of the hospital, and the ten men patients had formed a club under the auspices of the hospital authorities. Each patient has a partner among the women and is encouraged to tell his troubles to her. The men are also urged to make speeches at the club meetings.

It is hoped that a sense of participation in group activities and the friendly individual contacts will break down the wall of indifference which such patients build about themselves.

ROBBERS KIDNAP TRUCKMAN; GET $18,000 IN GEMS

Two men who kidnaped Miles Russell, a truck driver in Peoria, late Saturday night and brought him to Chicago, took $18,000 worth of jewelry from a trunk he was hauling to a railroad station, according to Peoria authorities.

Peoria policemen who came here for Russell reported they had been informed by Joseph Baskind, a jewelry salesman, that gems in the boxes were worth more than $18,000.

JUDGE WILL SIT TONIGHT IN CITY BAIL BOND COURT

Judge Freeman L. Fairbank tonight will open the new night bond court created under the code recently adopted by the judges of the Municipal court to curb bail bond abuses. He will sit from 8 o'clock until midnight.

JUDGE FAIRBANK.

The bond court was created because the new code provides that judges may authorize bonds only in open court except on Sundays and holidays, when they may act if they deem it proper. No professional bondsman is to be accepted as surety unless a court order is obtained authorizing him to act in this capacity. The professional bondsman must satisfy the court he is an individual or company of established reputation. A deposit of $500 must be made with the court clerk and a yearly fee of $8 is required. Records are to be kept by the court clerk of each bondsman so that the amount any number of bonds by the individual or corporation may be readily determined.

The new code has been attacked by Assistant State's Attorney Albert C. De Witt, in charge of the bond department of his office. He has said the new state law regulating bonds applies to all courts and takes precedence over the Municipal court rules.

7 Accused of Kidnaping; Two Victims Also Held

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Seven men charged with kidnaping and their two supposed victims were held without bail today after what police described as a "bootleggers' quarrel over a worthless check for $3,000." The prisoners were arrested last night at a hotel after a man told police he had seen two men bundled into a taxi by a group of assailants and driven away.

Women Win Longest Year for Courtship

That's What Old Myth Says of Extra Day.

BY VIRGINIA GARDNER.

WHAT place the leap year custom of letting women do the wooing plays in this enlightened age, and something of its origin, was discussed yesterday by Dr. Tom P. Cross, head of the department of general literature and professor of English, University of Chicago, and an authority on medieval folklore. Today is the extra day which makes 1932 a leap year.

"Of course, women always have and still are doing the wooing, actually," said Dr. Cross, "but they have to do it without letting men think they're doing it."

An old myth ascribes the first setting aside of leap year as a year of special privileges for women, to St. Patrick. According to history, in 1288 a law was passed in Scotland providing a fine of not more than one pound against the man who refused a woman's proposal of marriage in "lepe yeare," unless "he can make it appeare that he is betrothit ane ither woman."

Old Book Calls Custom Law.

Although the leap year folklore never held deep significance in the lives of the ordinary people, and probably always was more or less a subject for clownishness, Dr. Cross said, nevertheless a rare book published in 1606 in London, entitled "Love, Courtship and Marriage," contains the following:

"Albeit it nowe become a part of the common lawe in regard to social relations of life, that as often as every leap yeare doth return, the ladyes have the sole privilege during the time it continueth of making love, either by wordes or lookes, as to them it seemeth proper; and, moreover, no man will be entitled to benefit of clergy who doth in any wise treat her proposal with slight or contumely."

The St. Patrick myth recites that as he was meandering along the banks of the Lough Neagh, he was accosted by St. Bridget, who complained tearfully that there was dissension in her nunnery because the ladies were denied the privilege of proposing marriage. In those days, celibacy, while approved by the church, was not enforced among certain sisterhoods. St. Patrick considered the question and replied he would allow them to propose marriage one year out of seven.

Longest Year for Wooing.

At that, the myth relates, St. Bridget flung her arms around St. Patrick and said it would not be enough, pleading he make it one in four years. "Biddy, acushla," replied the good saint, "squeeze me that way again and I'll give you leap year, the longest one of the lot." Whereat St. Bridget popped the question to St. Patrick himself, who, as he had taken the vows of celibacy, declined. To make up for his failure, however, he gave her a silk gown and a kiss, it was said.

"How old the folk lore of leap year is we cannot tell," said Dr. Cross, "but it cannot be exceedingly old, as there was no stigma placed against women's wooing until after the church got a strong hold on England. It was purely an outgrowth of Christianity that women were supposed to wait resignedly until a man came along to woo them.

"Certainly we would be led by mythology to think that in ancient Greece and Rome women chose their mates openly and without apology. The leap year system as we know it was introduced by Julius Caesar, although in various forms it had been a part of other calendars."

Throughout medieval times it was not inappropriate for women to make known their desire for certain mates, and the ideal of woman as a retiring creature whose mind was centered on loftier matters did not appear until Christianity became widespread, Dr. Cross said.

Attitude of Men Not Changed.

Since inception of the idea it has been curiously persistent, he indicated. Asked if he considered that "the new freedom" for women had altered their position in the business of wooing and mating, he said:

"During the last 10 or 15 years women's attitude toward men has changed. They have done away with many of the sentimental ideas which used to hinder them from making wise marriages. But in that time I cannot see that men's attitude toward women has changed any.

"The undergraduates I overhear discussing their dates of the night before have the same conventional attitude toward women that men have had for generations. A young man will say that So-and-So wanted him to make love to her—or 'love 'em up,' I think they say—and that that is all right for her, but he'd hate to have his mother and sister carrying on that way.

"Most girls and women these days are conventional, and pretend to be waiting for a man to woo them, while they continue to get around the defenseless male by wiles and guiles. But women, if given a chance, are far more natural than men, and it is only in conformity with the man-made myth that women continue to act coy in matters of love."

College Boys Prefer Clever, Witty Girls

And the Other Sex Wants 'Good Dancers, Athletes.'

BY DORIS BLAKE.

I always wonder why so much importance is attached to young college girl and boy preferences in marriage mates. Their "ideal" husbands and wives always make copy acceptable to newspapers. The answer, of course, is that the ideals of youth are interesting. They are revealing. But, luckily, they are subject to change when mature experience confronts these undergraduates. It's because the process of living must necessarily substitute reality for their untutored young dreams that the importance of young student utterances seems grossly exaggerated.

However, because they are interesting:

Columbia men prefer to marry "cultured, clever, sensitive women whose conversation mingles gentleness and wit in gracious proportion." And there can be no great quarrel with that.

But when Barnard girl students require an ideal husband to have "culture, good looks, money, and a sense of humor," you admit that they are children crying for the moon. Not that the combination hasn't occurred in bridegroom circles—still, the requirement eliminates a powerful lot of good husband material. Good young husband material, I mean.

At Columbia the second choice in woman was one who "is fond of sports and apt in business affairs as well as an industrious, loyal chum." Third choice went to the "womanly and affectionate housewife, practical and competent, whose heart is as dependable as her cooking." Now, there's a woman, say I, who, as an ideal, deserves higher recognition than she earns.

The second Barnard girl choice went to the man who "is the cultured gentleman, a facile conversationalist, not particularly handsome, but at home with his books and his thoughts." The third favorite of this girl group is "the athlete, well proportioned physically, popular with men, and admired by women." Next in popular line is "the social lion, handsome, at home in polite society, and a good dancer."

Personally, I'd like to see a little more emphasis put on character, stability, good citizenship, and other good old bread and butter virtues which continue to be the strong ones that are holding together the marriages that are being held together these trying days.

Beige and Blue Lead Parade of Spring Fashion

These Colors Rule for Day and Evening Wear.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

THE colors that are running shade to shade, laps ahead of all others in this spring fashion race are beige and blue. Both are old favorites, both are sponsored by the great French designers as the smartest colors for this new season . . . with, perhaps the heaviest betting on beige.

The innumerable backers of beige will wear it from dawn till dark and after dark, for the newest evening gowns are deep ivory in color, which is just a few shades lighter than the beige you will choose for daytime.

Beige daytime clothes have a way all their own of deftly distinguishing crisp new models with contrasting color . . . sheer woolen one piece frocks depend mostly on intricacy of cut, rather than trimming . . . as in one model with a cleverly cut skirt that swirls to one side, and a repeat of this same cutting in the sleeves. For smart contrast a scarf of bright red and black silk is worn bandanna handkerchief fashion around the neck, clipped at each side with gold metal round discs. Black gloves with turn backed cuffs of bright red, black shoes, and a small black beret hat with a shining red quill completes a costume that will cause endless comment.

The Inevitable Jacket Dress.

The inevitable jacket dress which will be worn everywhere, also champions the cause of beige. . . . One particularly effective model uses an unusual shade of old blue for subtle emphasis. A wide suede belt of old blue shows beneath the brief jacket . . . a perky cat's whisker bow of old blue silk is tied under the chin . . . you can find matching blue suede pumps and correctly matching blue gloves and even a bag, while a brimmed hat of beige tops a fashionable ensemble that can also be done with the same telling effect using beige with black . . . beige with almond green, or beige with golden brown.

Afternoon dresses of flat silk crêpe duplicate the beige colors of the soft woolen fabrics, and also use complimentary colors for an added dash. The sleeves and often the entire blouse is of another color such as dark brown, apple green, old blue and printed materials . . . and then again colored appliques in diamond shapes are used at waistline or surplice closings.

A versatile redingote costume reverses the usual routine and contrasts a dark brown underdress with a beige coat . . . this same collarless beige coat can be worn over a printed blue and beige dress, or red and brown striped frock, or over a dark green and beige dotted dress . . . the variety of color schemes you achieve merely attests your ability as a color artist.

Detachable Fur Collar Is Wise.

Luscious honey colored fox fur is usually worn with a beige suit or on a beige long coat . . . but a perfectly delectable alternative would be a dark shade of blue fox. A coat with a detachable fur collar is the wisest choice, as the fur can be worn either with suit, coat and even your redingote ensemble. The smartest, most unusual two piece beige suit is a model that is softly tailored with a medium short coat . . . a brilliantly colored plaid silk blouse matches the lining of the coat . . . a long scarf of the plaid silk can be worn either tied in a huge bow or wound loosely at the neck over the collar.

Blond, a paler version of beige, is extremely new and unusual in corduroy . . . this blond corduroy is used for suits and coats, being very chic for both town and country. Schiaparelli uses it, in one of her smartest suits, showing what a clever designer can do with just fabric, as the wide wales of this material are particularly effective when cut diagonally, or when the wales of the various godets and gores are placed at right angles with the other meeting sections.

And, as the finishing success of these beige costumes, there are, ready for your selections, just the many and various shades of beige hats to correctly complete every well planned wardrobe.

Chanel Uses Black Pony to Trim Beige Woolen Coat for Town

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS. — [Special.] — Pale, neutral colors, like beige and gray, are exclusive shades in Paris spring fashions. Suits and coats in a delicate pinky beige are one of Chanel's new style ideas, and are being worn by smart Parisiennes. The beige coat trimmed with black pony is particularly chic to wear around town for shopping. This is the kind of color combination that the elegante prefers, for it distinguishes her from the masses who wear navy or bright colors.

The extreme fragility of pale beige keeps it in the luxury class, for it will stand little hard wear without crying need for the cleaners. It is, however, charming, and when trimmed with black pony is just ravishing.

The coat, shown in our sketch, is from Chanel. It is made of pale beige woolen and is trimmed with black pony. The fur covers the oversize revers at the front closing, and is made more attractive by the notched band of beige cloth around the inside closing. Inside the revers the cloth of the coat crosses and buttons at the base of the throat with a pony-covered button, making a sort of vest effect. The sleeves have balloon shaped cuffs of pony, with notched edges above the elbow where they are attached to the cloth.

The belt is of black pony and the muff-purse is made of the same fur. It may be worn as shown or tucked under the arm.

Engagement of Polly Hart to Harold Byron Smith Told

Parents Make Announcement at Buffet Luncheon at Barrington Estate.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WELL, well, isn't Cupid the busy little fellow these days? Prominent engagements are being announced so often that the life of a society editor, which theoretically is no bed of roses during Lent, isn't bad at all, for with a nice engagement announcement to head the column, the hardest part of a day's work is done. The one we are announcing to the public this morning is that of Miss Polly Hart, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. Stillman Hart of Barrington, to Harold Byron Smith, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Smith of Lake Forest.

The Harts gave a buffet luncheon at their residence, Hartwood Farm, yesterday to announce the troth to the best friends of the young couple. Miss Hart made her debut this winter, after a year at Les Fougères in Switzerland. Before that she had three years at Miss Porter's school at Farmington Mr. Smith prepared at Berkshire and was graduated from Princeton last June. The wedding is planned for the autumn.

Mr. Smith's sister, Anne Byron, also was a debutante this season. He has another sister, Elizabeth, who made her debut the year before, and a younger sister, Joan, who is a subdeb. Miss Hart has two elder sisters, Elizabeth and Mimi, now Mrs. Dennis L. Harmon. The Harts spent the winter in town at the Ambassador East, but they are back at their Barrington estate now. The Smiths, also, had an apartment in town for the winter.

Mrs. Potter Palmer to Give Luncheon.

Mrs. Potter Palmer is having a luncheon today at her residence, 1301 Astor street, for Mrs. Walter F. Dillingham, but unfortunately Mrs. Dillingham will not be there. She had expected to spend today in Chicago en route from the east to the west coast, from where she will sail for her home in Honolulu, but something upset her plans and she will be here tomorrow instead. Mrs. Palmer is going ahead with the luncheon party, however, as Mrs. Dillingham is the only one who is cheated out of a party, although the guests naturally will be greatly disappointed not to see Mrs. Dillingham, the popular Louise Gaylord of Chicago before her marriage. Mrs. Dillingham spent a fortnight here in December with the Charles Barney Goodspeeds and was entertained extensively then.

Mr. and Mrs. Palmer are planning to go to Sarasota, Fla., some time next month for a visit with their married children, Potter III. and his bride, the former Rose Saltonstall Movius of Boston, and Bertha, Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne Lewis, and Mr. Lewis. The junior Mr. and Mrs. Palmer will be in Chicago some time this spring, but just when Chicago is to have a chance to welcome this young couple is not known definitely by any one apparently; probably the weather will determine the date of their arrival.

Last week when Mrs. Walter S. Brewster invited a few friends to dine with her and her husband tonight at their residence, 2704 Lake View avenue, she did not realize that Monday was Feb. 29, but since it is, perhaps that clever hostess will have a "leap year" surprise for her guests, who will number about a dozen. The Brewsters are hoping this nice weather presages an early spring, for they are anxious to open their Lake Forest place, but they do not want to move out until they are sure there will be no more snow. Mrs. Brewster tells me they expect to be among the "stay at homes" the rest of the winter and summer probably.

Mrs. Richardson Leaves Today.

Mrs. George Richardson of Lake Forest is leaving today for a brief stay in Tucson. The Richardson household is another that is grieving over the loss of a pet, a white West Highland terrier, which has been gone since a week ago yesterday. Chico's loss is felt deeply by every member of the household. Lake Foresters are wondering if there is not some sort of "racket" operating on the north shore that is depriving so many families of their pets, for many dogs have disappeared recently, and in several instances where substantial rewards were offered the dogs have been returned.

Mrs. William Herbert returned yesterday to her home in Grosse Pointe, Mich., after a visit with her brother, David O. Hamilton of 1505 Astor street. Mr. Hamilton's mother-in-law, Mrs. Cyrus Bentley, with whom Mr. Hamilton and his children live, and Mrs. Henry N. Tuttle are in Charleston for a late winter sojourn.

When the Robert Lansing Zabriskies leave Chicago today to return to their home in Aurora-on-Cayuga, N. Y., they will carry with them memories of many unusual parties which were given for them during their month's visit here, I am sure, for I think they have been dined in a different place every night they have been here. French, Italian, Japanese, Armenian, Chinese, German, every sort of cooking obtainable here, has been utilized to give them entertainment and last night one of the most interesting parties of all, a real American supper, was given for them by Mr. and Mrs. Royden Keith of 999 Lake Shore drive. A steak weighing 30 pounds and 12 inches thick was the "pièce de résistance of the meal — yes, it was a steak, not a roast of beef—and it was a rare sight to see that mammoth, juicy steak brought in and carved by Mr. Keith to serve the 40 guests. Three hours was the time required for broiling the steak. Before the supper Mr. Keith [Marie Morrissey] gave a program of songs. Mrs. Zabriskie was formerly Hazel Everingham of Chicago and is well known in musical and social circles here.

Community House Show at Winnetka.

This is a gala week for Winnetka for that attractive north shore town is to have its Community House exposition from today until Friday, inclusive, with a fashion show on Wednesday as the high light of the exposition, and the Woman's club will hold its second annual exhibition of arts and handicrafts tomorrow from 11 to 6 o'clock. The fashion show will be given at 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon and again at 8:30 in the evening and all the prettiest young women in north shore society will act as mannequins.

Miss Lois Truesdale, Miss Lucy Jacobs, Miss Katherine Roach, Miss Virginia Lamson, the Misses Antoinette and Louise Lackner, Miss Joy Fairman, Miss Helen Bell, Miss Evelyn Bouscaren, the Misses Margot and Adelaide Atkin, Miss Patty Calkins, Miss Betty Hoyt, Miss Margaret Layer, Miss Virginia Hobart, Miss Margaret Hamill, Miss Janet Kirk, and Miss Veronese Beatty are the girls who will model, and Mrs. E. Ashley Gerhard, Mrs. Morris K. Wilson, Mrs. A. C. Goodrich, and Mrs. Francis Winscott are among the matrons who will display the latest fashions. Blond haired, brown eyed Barbara Eddy, daughter of the Alfred K. Eddys, will demonstrate how a little miss of 7 or 8 should look this spring, and Robert and John Crawford, sons of Mrs. Warren Crawford, will exhibit the latest styles for boys. The proceeds of the fashion shows, in fact of the whole exposition, will go towards furnishing the new rooms of the Community house, which was partially destroyed by fire last year and which has just been rebuilt.

Mrs. Herman Bartholomay, chairman of the art committee, has arranged the program for the day at the Winnetka Woman's club Tuesday. Sculpture by Mrs. Bartholomay, Mrs. Nancy C. Hahn, Mrs. Nell B. Dawes, Mrs. Frederick Bollman, and Mrs. Julie M. Mann will be exhibited, and Mrs. Albert E. Peirce will show specimens of her skill as a photographer. Mrs. Bartholomay and Mrs. Peter Johansen will exhibit bookplates, and fine needlework will be shown by Mrs. Norman MacLeish, Mrs. Lorenzo M. Johnson, Mrs. George S. Parker, Miss Virginia Lamson, Mrs. W. S. Hilpert, Mrs. David Kennicott, Mrs. Edward C. Trowbridge, and Mrs. Perry Crawford.

Mrs. Samuel Greeley will show her puppets and Mrs. Henry F. Tenney a creche. The juniors of Winnetka will be represented by Jean Defrees and Nancy Palmer with sculpture; John Vennema Jr., ship models; Herman Bartholomay Jr., airplane models; Peter Johansen Jr., ship models and archery sets; Vera Bartholomay, leather work; Mehlon Sharpe, soap sculpture, and Stanley Rich Jr., armor. At 2 o'clock in the afternoon Kenneth E. Foster, director of the stage arts and design department of the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts, will give a lecture on "Chinese Art and the Chinese Theater." Mr. Foster will show beautiful temple hangings and costumes, using the Misses Marcelle Vennema, Lois Truesdale, and Carol Lou Burnham as models for the costumes. A cafeteria luncheon will be served from 12 until 1 o'clock, with Mrs. Frederic A. de Peyster in charge. Miss Edith Kohlsaat will be hostess for the day, assisted by quite a large committee.

Mrs. George H. Musselman of 2 Golf lane, Winnetka, will hold a meeting of the Winnetka branch of the Infant Welfare society at her residence this morning at 11 o'clock, after which she will entertain the members at luncheon.

Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery of 1344 Astor street will open her residence this morning at 10:45 o'clock for the first of a spring series of talks by Julie R. Adams. The subject will be "The Japanese Crisis."

The Arts club will have a tea on Friday of this week from 4 to 6 o'clock to open two exhibitions, drawings and sculpture by Isamu Noguchi, and paintings by H E. Schnakenberg.

Allowance and Sweet Tooth Need Some Adjusting

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

Naturally, we can't clear up on any one subject in connection with parents and children in one day's column—even if it's a Sunday. This is particularly true if we try to give definite hints on managing children in one special direction. So here we are continuing the subject of allowances and how to give them.

I said that I did not think an allowance should be given to a child with a lot of strings tied to it, such as when to spend it, and where to spend it, and how to spend it, and the criticizing of how it was spent, etc. But there is one stipulation that should be made, I believe, and that is as regards candy. It is my belief that the child who has been reared from babyhood with an intelligent attitude toward candy will not be constantly craving it and thinking of it.

If a child has a proper diet for his particular little or big self and has enough candy and sugars to satisfy a normal craving he will not, as soon as he gets an allowance, go berserk and buy out the corner candy store. Still, parents should have an understanding about it. And it seems to me a good plan is to say, "You needn't spend this money for candy. We'll have plenty of candy at home, but if you want to buy some ask me and I'll pay for it—that is, of course, unless I think it isn't good for you right then. Your allowance is for other things."

Some—not by any means all—need this safeguarding. Naturally, as they grow older, you can give them more latitude because by that time they will have more judgment and will have come to realize that they can do lots betters things with their allowance than squander it on candy.

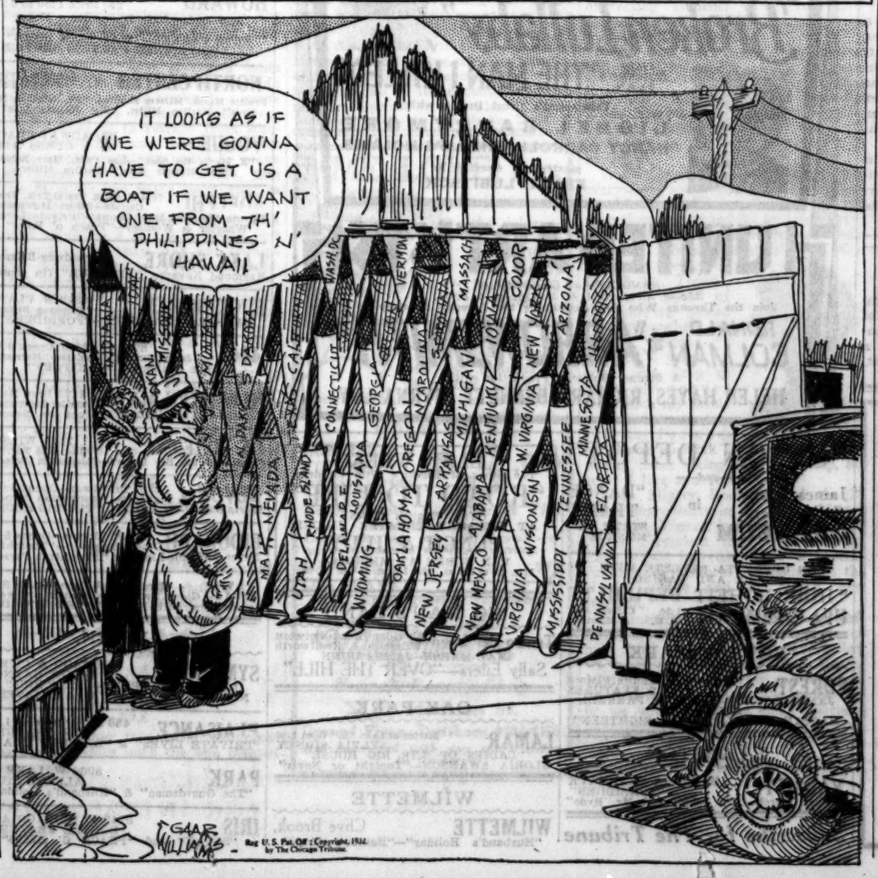
OUR SECRET AMBITION



Illness Heals Old Breach in Costello Family

Veteran Actor, Daughters Are Reconciled.

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Differences that arrayed daughter against father for several years faded when Maurice Costello suffered his recent stroke and his daughter, Dolores Costello Barrymore although she hasn't seen her parent, is responsible for seeing that he receives the kindest and most lavish ministrations.

"Cos," as he is sentimentally known to a host of well wishers here collapsed in a drug store near his home on Feb. 15. He was rushed to the California Lutheran hospital.

Flowers began to arrive. Nurses and specialists followed them. Orders were delivered to see that Mr. Costello should be surrounded with the best of everything. The orders came from his daughter, Mrs. John Barrymore [Dolores Costello] and her husband. Finally Cos' birthday, which by the way falls on Washington's birthday, neared, and family sentiment came into its own again. A limousine sent by Dolores and John rolled up to the hospital and the first and one time foremost of all the great romantic screen idols was transported back to his own modest home in kingly state.

A birthday cablegram arrived from Helen Costello, the other daughter, in Paris. When it was followed by additional solicitous messages, and when all three Costellos again seemed wrapped in one family circle for the first time in five years, "Cos" began to get well fast.

Dolores' and John's nurses, flowers, specialists and sickroom dainties continue to overflow the comfortable bachelor quarters of the veteran who knocked the first generation of movie fans—man, woman and child—out of their seats from 1908 to 1914. "Cos" now is ensconced in his old familiar quarters whose walls, covered with mementos of past stage and screen triumphs and likenesses of many professional friends, present a sharp contrast to the dull, bare hospital surroundings, which Costello says "were driving me to a relapse." Costello always has had a terrific antipathy for bare walls. "They drive me crazy even when I'm not sick," he says.

Because of the imminent arrival of a new small person in the Barrymore family in May, Dolores has not been out of her own home recently and therefore her renewed relations with her father have not resulted in a personal meeting between the pair who parted in 1927.

Costello was 55 years old on Feb. 22. Propped on his pillows he smiled that heart warming Irish smile and his gray eyes twinkled as he agreed with his physician in chief, Dr. John Bonfiglio, to swear off smoking four packs of cigarets washed down with seventeen cups of coffee every day. An intensely nervous and sentimental fellow, "Cos" permitted his nervousness to grow and sicken him while he strove for the last three years to keep the talkies from forgetting the one time popularizer of the silent screen while handing out their acting jobs.

Now "Cos" feels better again. The stroke chased dat ol' debbil nervousness; he's friends with his daughters again and when he is well again John or Lionel Barrymore, or some one of a score of other persons outstanding in movies, probably will see to it that Maurice obtains his just share of the character rôles of the present.

Costello has one regret. He never yet has seen his granddaughter, little Dolores Ethel Barrymore, and that the adversity that struck him down should be the means of his cradling this tiny descendant of the clans of Barrymore and Costello in his arms for the first time the gray haired veteran would feel that life had rounded out to satisfaction after all.

Dr. Bonfiglio says there is nothing threatening in Costello's present condition. "Mr. Costello needs a good tough acting rôle in a screen play right now more than anything in the world to complete his cure and build him up," said the physician.

Costello broke with his daughters about the time he obtained a divorce from their mother, the late Mrs. Mae Alschuh Costello, on Sept. 8, 1927. At that time he testified his wife had turned his daughters against him and tears came as he testified "they do not love me any more."

Tomb Discloses Burial Customs of Early Christians

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Strange burial customs of the early Christians have been discovered by the University of Pennsylvania museum expedition, now completing its third season of excavation at Meydum, Egypt, it was announced today.

"In the vaulted chamber of a burial of the Christian period," a report from Alan Rowe, field director of the expedition, said, "many of the Christian bodies were buried in very bright garments and some of them had small pieces of sheepskin piled over their faces to a height of almost 20 inches. The significance of this custom is not known to us."

One of the most important discoveries of the excavators was a limestone slab bearing the only known contemporary portrait of King Seneferu to be found in Egypt. Seneferu was an Egyptian ruler who lived almost 5,000 years ago and who was responsible for the building of the great pyramid at Meydum.

Carved in relief, it depicts the king wearing a close fitting cap, above which are the horns of a ram supporting two curved plumes.

Frock Is Equally Suitable for Young Woman or Matron

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The simplicity of this design makes it just the thing to wear now under your coat, and later on without a coat. The unusual neckline with inset vest and center front button trim will give you height, and while it is youthful enough for the younger woman, it can also be worn by the matron. Thin woolens, boucle jersey, knitted woolens, and rough silk crêpes are suitable.

The pattern, No. 2705, comes in sizes 16 and 18 years and 36, 38, 40, and 42 inches bust measure. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 35 inch contrasting.

Mulch Papers Avoid Work of Pulling Weeds

BY PAUL POTTER.

For city folk who find the problem of regular attention to the weeds and surface cultivation of the garden perplexing there is an alibi if not a boon to better production. Several kinds of successful mulch paper are now on the market, and proving popular.

These papers are free of injurious materials, so that soaking in rains does not harm the plants or soil. They are laid down in strips between rows of plants, or holes may be cut for each plant, such as cabbage or tomatoes, and the paper laid down over all the soil around them.

They conserve moisture and fertility, and check weed growth before it starts. Some are held down with large pins, others with patented devices to prevent the wind or stray animals from moving them out of position.

From a commercial standpoint the value of mulch papers is still a debatable question, according to Arthur E. Hutchins, University of Minnesota garden specialist, who has experimented with them for several years.

The home gardener who wishes to be freed from what he considers the drudgery of weeding may be assured that mulch papers are destined to become more popular, particularly since the cost is not an important factor for those who wish a home grown fresh food supply.

The cost of watering in towns where meters click up a high water bill is somewhat reduced by this newest development in vegetable gardening.

Kidney Acidity

Disturbs Sleep and Causes Stiffness and Loss of Energy, Backache, Nervousness.

Thousands of men and women past 40, and many far younger, often feel run-down and years older than they are by neglecting to use the right medicines for such conditions as Disturbed Sleep, Backache, Nervousness, Lumbago, Neuralgia, Sore Joints, Circles Under Eyes, Headaches, Smarting and Irritation caused by functional Kidney inactivity and Excess Acidity.

To combat these conditions when due to functional kidney inactivity, you really need two different kinds of medicine. First, you need a medicine to act as a stimulant diuretic to the kidneys to help them in their function of filtering and purifying the blood, thus reducing acidity. Second, you need another medicine to soothe and heal irritation and give nature a chance.

These two special kinds of medicine in one package, known as Cystex, now may be had from your druggist under a guarantee of satisfaction or money back. They are in tasteless tablet form, easy to take, and pleasant to young and old, yet work so fast they start circulating through the system in 11 minutes. Sufferers say they begin to feel marked improvement in 24 hours.

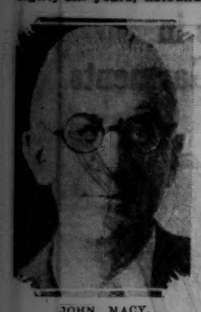
Your own druggist—the man you know is reliable—can tell you that these are established facts, and that Cystex (pronounced Siss-tex) is a splendid medicine containing purest ingredients, which have proved a blessing to many of his customers.

This much is certain: If Cystex makes you feel years younger and stronger, by combating these functional conditions, the small cost of 75c is a trifle, but if not completely satisfied, merely return the empty package and get your money back. Why suffer from delay and neglect? The Guarantee protects you. Get Cystex from your druggist today.

Stormy Years of Carlyle Told in Biography

Emery Neff Presents Lively Study.

"CARLYLE," by Emery Neff [Norton], is a biography of one of the outstanding personalities of history. Carlyle roared and stamped through his eighty-si.. years, astounding, infuriating, and stimulating his contemporaries not only in England but wherever English was read or translated. This is the first short authoritative biography of Carlyle to be written in forty years. It is carefully documented and annotated, but rises above the purely scholarly in its stimulating narrative and its mastery of historical movements.



JOHN MACY.

Carlyle's immense vitality, his bitter revolt against all frippery, materialism, and hypocrisy, his contact with the great men of his age, his enormous influence both on literature and philosophy, his social prophecies, his relationship to Jane Welsh Carlyle, and his other human contacts, his ideals and disappointments, all find place in this sympathetic and valuable book.

Linklater Writes of Ben Jonson.

Eric Linklater, author of that uproariously funny comedy of American manners, "Juan in America," has written a brilliant biography in "Ben Jonson and King James" [Cape & Smith]. Jonson died in poverty in the year 1637 after sixty-five years as one of the most conspicuous figures of his age. A brilliant array of men and women cross the pages, including Shakespeare, who was a friend as well as a contemporary of Ben Jonson. Ben Jonson had many and varied experiences before he won the favor of the tolerant and cultured James I. This book is more than a biography. It is a vivid, serious, and witty account of a lavish age in which Ben Jonson and King James were two of the most fascinating figures.

Browning Biography Given Welcome.

"Browning," by F. R. G. Duckworth [Dutton], presents an interesting and badly needed reëvaluation of one of the most famous Victorian poets. The present book is divided into two sections, the first a selection of the significant criticism in three periods, 1850-'69, 1890-'99, and 1920-'29, of Browning's works, and the second an analysis of the psychological conflict within the poet himself. The author does not follow the conventional patterns of biography, but is more interested in analysis, evaluation, and interpretation. The main message of the book lies in the struggles of the man himself, struggles for expression and unity of belief. The conflict that is brought out so clearly in this book between the man of action and the man of contemplation and certain mystic tendencies indicates definite psychological motivations that are vital and stimulating and contemporary.

Excellent Study of American Letters.

"American Writers on American Literature," edited by John Macy [Liveright], by 37 distinguished men of letters, evaluates the main currents and trends in American literature from colonial days to the present. The essays are informal but scholarly, and present a panorama of creative writing throughout the history of our nation. Among the notable writers of the past who appear in this book are Irving, Emerson, Hawthorne, Longfellow, Poe, Thoreau, Lowell, Melville, Whitman, Mark Twain, Henry James, and Lanier. The reader who wants to form an unforgettable picture of the movements in literature in this country should not miss this volume. The critics themselves are among the most reputed and stimulating of the present day.

Julia Collier Harris has collected in "Joel Chandler Harris" [University of N. C. Press] miscellaneous writings of her famous father-in-law. The creator of Uncle Remus is revealed in all his versatility. There are excerpts from his political, social, and literary writings that prove conclusively why Joel Chandler Harris was one of the most loved and talented southerners of his era.

"Drawn from Life," by S. J. Woolf [Whittlesey House], contains forty-two drawings of many of our distinguished contemporaries. M. D.

Edna Hibbard Plays Bride in Rum Marriage

"THE SANDY HOOKER."

A comedy by Fred Ballard and Charles Bickford; given at the Cort theater Feb. 28, 1932, under the management of F. M. O'Connor, with Edna Hibbard and James Spottswood in the leading rôles.

THE CAST.

Marquita Castaleo	Edna Hibbard
Winthrop Chase Sr.	Robert Conness
Susan	Kitty Cosgriff
Elizabeth Chase	Clara Palmer
Jimmy Stacey	James Spottswood
Quincy Bancroft	Lyster Chambers
A stenographer	Eileen Quinlan
Detective Doran	David Clarke
Court Guard Morley	Charles Hanna
Andrew Goldman	William E. Morris
Jake	Muriel Owen

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

Edna Hibbard, the droll little comedienne who specializes in hard-boiled girls with hearts of gold and tongues of brass, put the Cort theater back into action last night with an outspoken play that is called, for no reason at all, "The Sandy Hooker." She appears as a night club hostess who marries a young aristocrat while he is in an alcoholic trance and so involves herself in a bitter family brawl and a charge of blackmail.

The first act consists of a bridal night scene, and a dismal morning-after episode in which Miss Hibbard is visible, for perhaps the ninth time in her acting career, in the step-ins that are so important to her art. After her parade as a lingerie model, proving that she has probably lost an ounce or two since her last boudoir appearance, Miss Hibbard puts on her street clothes, including a saucy green beret, and settles down to a long argument with her bridegroom's relatives and lawyer.

She is just an honest working-girl trying to get along, who has been led astray [except for the marriage license] by a drunken wretch in a high hat; but the young man's family choose to regard her as the sort of creature she sounds like when she talks. So they proceed to give Miss Hibbard, under her pseudonym of "Kita," the third degree and the works and everything else that a new daughter-in-law doesn't deserve.

But Miss Hibbard, being a competent young person in the irony of the lower forms of American life, gives it right back to them, with interest. Whenever she receives a mean look or a studied insult, she is ready with a retort that causes the tribe of Winthrop Cabot Lodge to wither up and grow pale around the gill-covers.

In this phase of the play Miss Hibbard is decidedly expert. The quick comeback in the argot of the day is her favorite implement as a comedienne, and she uses it with a light but cutting touch. Her lines are usually too blunt and crass to be witty, but she gives them the semblance of wit with her perky, intelligent diction. She creates an amusing, persuasive character out of thick, heavy, graceless material.

The Cabot Lanes finally frame up a blackmail charge against the undaunted bride, and she goes to jail, with James Spottswood, representing a newspaper reporter, as her accomplice. But the jury decides in their favor; and she ends by casting off her obnoxious aristocrat and espousing the gentleman of the press—the only gentleman, it seems, who is involved in the proceedings that "The Sandy Hooker" unfolds.

I was so much in doubt about the legal validity of the plot of this framed up diversion that I interviewed my lawyer, also a first nighter, on the subject. He shook his head cynically, and gave a high-priced opinion to the effect that every legal twist of the tale was "contra bonos mores." This confirms my suspicions, not only of "The Sandy Hooker," but of most of the contemporary American drama to boot.

Miss Hibbard and Mr. Spottswood are as effective as usual; the others in the cast are good enough; and "The Sandy Hooker" is a mediocre fabrication, more or less "contra bonos mores."

Frederic March Pleases Again in Double Role

"STRANGERS IN LOVE."

Produced by Paramount.
Directed by Lothar Mendes.
Presented at the Chicago theater.

THE CAST.

Arthur Drake / Buddy Drake	Fredric March
Diana Merrow	Kay Francis
Stan Keeney	Stuart Erwin
Muriel Preston	Juliette Compton
Mr. Merrow	George Barbier
McPhail	Sidney Toler
J. L. Clark	Earle Foxe
Prof. Clark	Lucien Littlefield
Snowball	Gertrude Howard

BY MAE TINEE.

Good morning!

William Locke's novel "The Shorn Lamb" was used as basis for "Strangers in Love," which presents the popular Mr. Fredric March in another dual rôle.

Here is a smartly presented and all round entertaining picture. The plot—with some new angles, of course—is the good old one about a man who masquerades as his double. In the present instance a noble brother takes over the life and works of his deceased and villainous twin, with what complications the picture shall show you. The gorgeous Kay Francis is one of these.

Mr. March does a nice job as, first Arthur and then Buddy Drake. He can usually be relied upon to give a distinguished performance. Miss Francis is charming—as always. Stuart Erwin, who becomes each day more and more the spit'n likeness of Will Rogers—and that goes for his conversation, too—contributes some enjoyable comedy. Other players were well chosen for type and comport themselves with zest and ability.

Dialogue and situations are adult and interesting and the film is beautifully mounted.

See you tomorrow!

Official Contract

By Charles True Adams

(International bridge authority; author of "Official Contract at Sight")

Current tales would lead us to believe that the present depression is caused largely by the failure to lead out trumps. At least, so the story tellers say, the reason so many men and women are tramping the streets of London, Paris, and other continental cities, as well as our own, is simply from this cause. Strangely enough there are times, and not so very infrequently either, when leading trumps will not show a profit on the credit side of the ledger. Take yesterday's play-a-problem for example:

NORTH [dealer].
♠—A,K,8,7,4
♥—Q,J,8,5,3
♦—7
♣—J,5

WEST.	EAST.
♠—Q,10	♠—J,9,5,3
♥—K,9	♥—7,2
♦—K,9,6,2	♦—Q,10,4
♣—K,8,4,3,2	♣—A,10,9,6

SOUTH.
♠—6,3
♥—A,10,6,4
♦—A,J,8,5,3
♣—Q,7

North dealt and bid a spade. East passed, South bid two diamonds. West passed. North bid two hearts, showing his second suit. East passed and South went to four hearts, which ended the bidding.

East opened the ♣ A, which held, and followed with the ♣ 10, which West captured with the K. West returned the ♣ 3, which North trumped with the ♥ 3, South discarding the ♦ 3. North now led out the ♠ A-K, and followed with the ♥ 5, which dummy took with the A. Dummy then led out the ♦ A, and followed with the ♦ 5, which North trumped with the ♥ 8. North returned the ♠ 4, which dummy trumped with the ♥ 4. West discarding the ♣ 4. Dummy now played the ♦ 8, which North trumped with the ♥ J. North led back the ♠ 7, which dummy trumped with the ♥ 6, West overtrumping with the ♥ K. West returned the ♦ K, which North trumped with the ♥ Q. To the last trick, of course, North led his remaining ♠ 8 to dummy, dummy trumping with the ♥ 10, North and South making their four odd and the game.

It is obvious that if North leads more than the ace of trumps he can take but four trump tricks, two spade tricks, and one diamond. His only chance then is to refrain from leading out trumps and make an extra trick in the ruff. In order to make his game he must, of course, find the ♥ K in the same hand that is short in spades.

Please don't tell me that it is a good thing as a whole to cross ruff a hand rather than lead out trumps and take control of your side suits. It is only an occasional hand where, upon counting up the possible trump tricks [if trumps are led out], plus your side tricks, you find yourself short of game. In that case then you must consider the possibility of taking in an extra trump trick or two through the use of the ruff. Remember the ruff should not be habit; it should be used merely as an alternative when the ordinary course of play will not yield the necessary results. Here is tomorrow's play-a-problem:

NORTH
♠—K,J,10,5,3
♥—A,J,7,4
♦—6,4
♣—8,2

WEST	EAST [dealer]
♠—8,2	♠—A,Q,9
♥—9,8	♥—K,Q,5,3
♦—K,J,9,7	♦—A,Q,2
♣—A,K,10,5,3	♣—Q,7,4

SOUTH
♠—7,6,4
♥—10,6,2
♦—10,8,5,3
♣—J,9,8

Bid and play this hand and compare your result with the one printed tomorrow.

Happy birthday to those in leap year born! In your honor today we have planned several recipes for special leap year birthday cakes. You know, although birthday cakes are almost a tradition with us, they don't belong exclusively to the younger members of the family. And when you only have a real one every four years—well, you deserve extra consideration. If I were a true Pollyanna I'd congratulate you on the scarcity of such birthdays, because you lucky leap yearites don't have to count your age as often as the rest of us less fortunate mortals do. Hand me my crutch, James!

But to return to the subject of birthday cakes. Aren't the birthdays which linger longest in your memory those which have been celebrated in true festive style? Even though you have long since passed man's estate, doesn't a jolly little shiver run up and down your spine when you gaze upon a beautifully decorated cake topped with diminutive candles?

Incidentally, if it damages your pride and pains your conscience to reveal the number of candles necessary on this celebrated occasion, just place one little candle—or perhaps a big one—in the center of the cake, and then wrap a dainty question mark in contrasting colored icing around the candle. After that feat powder your nose like a sweet sixteen and cut your cake!

To be truly effective, birthday cakes, whether for young or old, should express artistry, and so provide the festive touch. They should have a fine, even, smooth texture and a smooth frosting. And don't have it a stingy frosting, please, particularly if it's a regal butter cake you're making. Decorate with candied cherries, bits of angelica, small candies, or candied rose petals. Shredded coconut is good, too. If you like a luscious coconut cake, with the coconut on the inside as well as on the outside, here's the one for you. Any color of large or small candles is fetching against a fluffy white coconut frosting.

WHITE BIRTHDAY CAKE.
3 cups of sifted pastry flour.
2 teaspoons of baking powder.
½ teaspoon of salt.
½ cup of butter.
4 egg whites.
1½ cups of sugar.
1 cup of shredded coconut.
1 cup of water.
1 teaspoon of lemon extract.

Sift the flour once and measure; add the baking powder and salt, and sift together three times. Cream the butter thoroughly, add the sugar, and cream the two together well. Add the coconut, then the flour alternately with the water, a small amount at a time. Beat after each addition until smooth. Add the flavoring, and then fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Bake in one large cake pan, or two medium sized loaf pans, in a moderate oven (350 degrees Fahrenheit) about an hour and ten minutes. During the last ten or fifteen minutes of the baking increase the temperature of your oven somewhat—about fifty degrees—and finish the baking.

Colored coconut icing may replace the more standard white coconut for birthday occasions. The coconut and granulated sugar can be treated to a spray of vegetable coloring to achieve any desired tint. Take a piece of sturdy white paper and separate the coconut or sugar on it. Then dilute a few drops of coloring matter with a little water and put the mixture into a small atomizer or spray. (I have found that an excellent and inexpensive one for this purpose is a small perfume atomizer which can be purchased for only a few cents.) Spray the coconut lightly and allow it to dry before using on the frosting.

The best variety of sugar for tinting is the crushed cube or square kind. Of course, colored sugar may be purchased in five or six different shades, but the quality so sold is rather coarse for a light cake, or light icings and frostings. It is to be preferred for cookie decoration and other cookery purposes.

The frosting below is suggested for the white birthday cake. If you plan to tint coconut for its decoration, tint enough for future use and keep the remaining amount in a sealed glass jar.

COCONUT SEVEN MINUTE ICING.
2 egg whites, unbeaten.
1½ cups of sugar.
5 tablespoons of cold water.
1½ tablespoons of light corn sirup.
1 teaspoon of vanilla.
1 cup of moist coconut.

Put the egg whites, sugar, water, and corn sirup in the upper part of the double boiler. Beat with a rotary egg beater until thoroughly mixed. Place over rapidly boiling water and beat constantly with a rotary egg beater. Cook for seven minutes, or until the frosting will stand in peaks. Remove from the fire, add the vanilla, and beat until thick enough to spread. Fold one-half of the coconut into this mixture. Spread on the cake.

Engagement

MISS JOSEPHINE MICHELI.

Mrs. Charles B. Willey of 1120 Lake Shore drive announces the engagement of her niece, Josephine Micheli, to Flournoy Carter Johnson of New Orleans.

Ruth Etting, Famous Stage Blond, Gives Beauty Secret to Antoinette

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

This is the day of temptation for blonds. Not for blond temptations, understand! That's with the gentlemen every day. That's Doris Blake's business, not mine.

But a blond who can retain her natural silver blondness or her light ash blondness these days is by way of being a strong minded woman. I say this in spite of the recognized demise of the platinumed girl. The blond temptation is to try some bleach, some rinse, or some dye concoction to lighten the hair.

Looking for one of these girls who can remain a "natural" in the face of pressure, I ran into Ruth Etting, well known crooner and Follies' ornamental entertainment feature. Her hair is light ash blond, silvery under certain stage lights and darker under others, and endowed with sufficient natural oils to furnish a rich gloss. Awfully good looking blond hair, that natural gloss suggesting to my mind the advantages of not experimenting with strong bleaches and other hair lightening elements. Camomile tea rinse for softness is all Miss Etting uses on her hair.

We discussed blonds, since the world seems to be pretty thickly populated with them at the moment. Miss Etting thinks the great blond need is moderation in makeup and possibly a change in style. Anyway, she thinks the blonds' predilection for pink and white makeup might be substituted with brunette powder shades, or warm sun tan colorings.

As a matter of fact, Ruth, herself, never uses cheek rouge. Only brunette or sun tan powder, a red raspberry lipstick shade and a slate gray eyeshadow. "Bright red apple" spots on blonds' cheeks just don't belong there. Blonds have to be more careful than other types, she thinks, or cheapness is the reward of their overbleaching, overpainting efforts.

If rouge is used by blonds, Miss Etting suggests that the dabs for both lips and cheek come from the same container so that the coloring is the same. Her slate gray eyelid tinting above gray-blue eyes is most effective. Eyebrows should be lightly touched up and as little tampered with as to natural line as possible, she says. The idea, I gather from one of the blonds, Miss Etting herself, is that a blond should either be as natural as possible or be delicately done on any artificial points. If you want to know why and how stage folks' lips glisten over the lipstick coloring here is the secret: a bit of white vaseline is run over them. This trick may be tried by the dry-lipped in nonprofessional pursuits.

Schipa Recital Is Whole Series of Perfections

Pays Farewell to Chicago for Season.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

To some concert artists it is given to reach a high point in the course of a program; to others, several. But when a person steps out and delivers a bit of perfection on the first number, as Tito Schipa did at the Civic Opera house yesterday afternoon, and then goes on with an unbroken series of perfections, announced numbers, encores and a composition of his own among them, that person deserves a special classification among artists.

Mr. Schipa bade Chicago farewell for the season with a recital program. He has a few more to give around the country, and in less than two weeks he will be aboard ship, bound for operatic assignments in the important theaters of Italy and Vienna, followed by a summer in Italy, where he plans to study the ways of poultry and its markets.

The series of perfections to which reference was made was drawn from the classical school of singing. Bononcini's "Per la gloria d'adorarvi" was one, "Non posso disperar" by De Luca of the Metropolitan opera, another. And for the first time in my life I heard "Chi faro senza Eurydice" from Gluck's opera, "Orfeo," sung by a tenor, and sung, though in a transposed key, considerably better than most of the contraltos are able to do it.

Mr. Schipa sang an encore in English, excellent English, too, and then applied his velvet voice to another of his own composition in Spanish. Incidentally he has a talent beyond the average for song writing.

Frederick Longas, his accompanist, and a pianist of much ability, was heard in a first class performance of "Cordoba," by Albeniz.

Eric DeLamarter left the stage for the last number of the Civic Orchestra of Chicago program at Orchestra hall, turning the baton over to Felix Borowski, who directed a performance of the suite from his own ballet, "Boudour." It has been some years since Mr. Borowski conducted the work as a complete ballet at the Auditorium, but the music has not aged in the slightest during the interval. Mr. Borowski has a gift for ingratiating melody and the skill to present it cleverly and attractively. The performance made a well deserved hit.

Before that Mr. DeLamarter has conducted the young and well trained orchestra through Mozart's "Magic Flute" Overture and Beethoven's Fifth Symphony, likewise through accompaniments for the soloists, Arlene Gallup, pianist, who played Mendelssohn's Capriccio Brilliant, and John Macdonald, bass, who sang "Ella giammai m'amo," from Verdi's opera, "Don Carlos."

Famous Bennett Art Collection to Be Sold in U. S.

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Feb. 28.—The great collection of bronzes, pictures and porcelain formed over a half a century by the late Sir William Bennett is being despatched to the United States for auction.

Mr. Bennett's fame as a connoisseur was known throughout the United States and Europe and his collection contained objects of remarkable quality.

It was hoped the sale would form a feature of the London season, but Lady Bennett has instructed the American Art association to dispose of the collection in New York.

New York, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Announcement was made here today by the American Art Association Anderson Galleries, Inc., confirming the cable dispatches from abroad, that the Bennett collection was on its way here, for disposal. "Important paintings, rare Italian renaissance bronzes, very fine antique furniture, and choice porcelains are the features of the collection," the announcement said.

Of the greatest interest in the Bennet collection, the anouncement stated, is the lost Velasquez, "The Barber Surgeon," believed to be a portrait of Michael Angelo, barber surgeon to Pope Innocent X. The painting is mentioned by Palomino in his "El Museo Pictorio," published in Madrid, in 1724. It was shown in the exhibition of old Spanish masters, at the Grafton galleries in London, in 1913 and 1914.

Sir William Bennett, a famous English surgeon, died last Christmas eve at the age of 81.

ELECT ME TO AID REICH ABROAD, HITLER ADVISES

Charges His Enemies Use Unfair Tactics.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—"My victory in the presidential elections will be more beneficial to Germany's foreign relations than that of any other candidate," Adolf Hitler, National Socialist [Fascist] leader, assured representatives of the press tonight. Then he added a dark hint:

"Unless the trouble comes from the other nation which from the start had intended to disturb the peace and quiet."

"Political parties opposing me are trying to convey the impression in foreign countries that my election would mean chaos and war," he continued. "Therefore, I am protesting to President von Hindenburg against this kind of a campaign of intimidation of my followers and the press, against the gag laws applied to my newspapers, and against the violation of the freedom of elections in Germany."

Gives No Reasons.

How and why his election would be beneficial to Germany's foreign relations Hitler did not explain. Nor have he and his lieutenants yet given their party's concrete program.

Hitler, who two years ago before the supreme court of Leipzig made the blood curdling statement that "heads will roll," has complained now in his letter to Von Hindenburg that Socialists in their election campaign describe the Hitlerites as men of violence and disregard their recent assurances of respect for the laws of the republic.

In this letter Hitler derides the "Socialists who state that 'Hitler's election would mean suppression of all civic liberties and gag laws for the press' and try to convey the impression abroad that Germany still has a free and Democratic constitution. In anwer to this I state that for years Germany has had no freedom of the press and that the freedom of elections guaranteed by the constitution is being violated under your presidency."

Charges Unfair Tactics.

In strong words Hitler attacks the authorities, especially those of Prussia, charging them with unfair election tactics.

To refute rumors that he deserted the Austrian army, Hitler sent Von Hindenburg statements from Austrian authorities showing that this is untrue and that, under no obligation to serve in the Austrian army after February, 1914, he joined the German army as a volunteer in that year and served through the war.

T. F. TITTINGER SURE DELEGATE FOR CONVENTION

Joseph F. Tittinger, 2970 Prairie avenue, was showered with congratulations yesterday when it became known that he is certain to sit as a delegate in the Democratic national convention next June.

J. F. TITTINGER.

He is a candidate in the First congressional district and there were no opponents filed against him or against Michael Kenna, former alderman, the other regular organization entry in the district.

Tittinger is a "new arrival" in party politics, having scored his first victory two years ago when, in a close contest, he defeated Henry Houle, a veteran, for membership on the county committee from the 2d ward. The victor had worked his way up from the ranks over a long course of years.

"PEACEMAKER" SHOT IN FOOT.

Peter Wroplewski, 22 years old, 1819 West Division street, was shot in the right foot early yesterday morning when he tried to act as peacemaker between Peter Splitt and another man in Splitt's home at 4523 Thomas street.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The Shamrocks are now all even with those pesky Duluth Hornets, for last night they skated all around the Stadium to score four goals while holding the northerners to a grand total of none. This was a handsome revenge for last week's embarrassment, in which the Hornets, after lagging 2 to 1, turned around and stung the Shamrocks, 5 to 2.

The first period produced no scores, but with individual impetus by Walter Buswell, the Shamrocks made two goals in 16 seconds at the start of the second period. Tip O'Neill and Donie McFadyen augmented this with neatly turned scores in the last period.

The victory moved the Chicagoans back into threatening contendership, one game out of the lead, inasmuch as Kansas City dropped another decision to Tulsa, 1 to 0.

Morrison Is Hurt.

The first ten minute period was singularly dull, as Shamrock-Hornet games go, with the Duluth wings supplying what action there was. The feature of the period came when Morrison of Duluth was stretched out on the ice after Buswell had charged him near the Shamrock goal, causing his head to bounce off the woodwork. He was finally revived and assisted to the dressing room.

Morrison might have continued had he been playing with the same equipment as Taylor. The Bouncer was injured at Kansas City last week and operated last night with a fighter's head harness.

The Shamrocks reversed the action in the closing minutes, but their marksmanship was no better than that of their opponents and the period ended in a scoreless deadlock.

Shamrocks Take Lead.

The Shamrocks came out for the second period still in the stride in which they had closed the opening session and proceeded to blink the red light twice within the amazing space of 16 seconds for a 2 to 0 lead, which endured until the end.

Buswell started the first one and only a great stop by Turner prevented him from being credited with it personally. Turner turned it back into a scramble of players and Brydson took charge of it, lining it into the net in 2:37.

Buswell demonstrated an amazing solo prowess 16 seconds after the face off following this goal. He took the puck in center ice and fired one at Turner from about 15 feet out. It found the back of the cage in 2:53.

Morrison returned to the ice, apparently none the worse for his banged head. Boucard was recumbent along the shore of the rink after slamming into the boards, but he, too, came back for duty as the period ended.

Two More for Chicagoans.

The Shamrocks took over the puck during the last period, but the closest they came to a score early found Prelesnik penned up inside the net by Turner and Davis, but somehow Tony had neglected to bring the puck with him.

The Hornets resented this and began to bother Karakas considerably. They became so earnest about scoring that they overlooked the entrance of O'Neill and McFadyen, who collaborated on the Shamrocks' third goal in 10:35. Tip shot it to Donie, the latter passed it back and then O'Neill drove it into Turner's cage.

McFadyen came through a little later to make the score 4 to 0. O'Neill darted in for a shot, but Turner sent it back. Donie spun in front of the cage and shot it home while pivoting away from a couple of Hornets.

TALKING IT OVER

BY ARCH WARD.

This is the week we find out where the real fighters come from—the tenement districts, the colleges, the farms, mines, factories, or offices. More than 200 young men tonight begin three days of ring warfare leading up to the finals of the Golden Gloves tournament on March 9.

The fighting at Chicago Stadium tonight, tomorrow night, and Wednesday night is matchless in the history of amateur boxing. Never have so many talented performers come together. They are the survivors of a field of 3,000 that started after Golden Gloves a month ago. Entries this winter, both in Chicago and the 20 outlying centers, broke all records.

There will be no novices in the Stadium ring the next three nights. Some probably will be working before a big crowd for the first time, but you can't call any boy who has won his way through preliminary tests in THE TRIBUNE tournament a novice. There is no stronger fistic competition anywhere.

While the caliber of the Chicago boys appears to be about the same as last season, I have a feeling that out of town teams will have heavier representation on the Chicago squad that fights New York March 28 than ever before. Amateur boxing has come forward with tremendous strides throughout Chicagoland since THE TRIBUNE extended the scope of its meet to include five states.

Deke Noble, sports editor of the Kokomo Tribune, has a heavyweight wintering with the Sells-Floto circus whose punch is said to land like the hammer of Thor. [If you don't like that simile, think up one of your own.] Harry Milne, who conducted the qualifying meet for the Rockford Morning Star, reports he has three tigers who are going to tear opponents limb from limb. Bob Poisall's Danville Commercial News team is counting heavily on a middleweight named Johnny Sulga.

Need we go further? Every one of the 20 teams arriving today for the opening of the meet has at least two or three fighters whose home town admirers predict will win golden gloves.

The Amalgamated Association of College Football Coaches, if any, must do something about this fellow Anderson of Notre Dame. He refuses to hold sacred the tradition that a coach always must sing the blues.

I have the personal word of Noble Kizer, the Purdue gridiron leader, that the prospects of the Boilermakers' again finishing in a tie for the Big Ten championship are anything but bright. Harry Kipke, whose Michigan team last year shared the title with two rivals, admits there is no chance of going anywhere when you have to play teams like Michigan State, Northwestern, and Ohio State the first three Saturdays of the season.

Dick Hanley, whose Northwestern team would have been the 1931 conference champion if it had not been for charity, can't quite figure out how he can replace linemen like Marvil, Riley, Engebretsen, and Evans.

Notre Dame lost a few pretty good football players—Schwartz, Yarr, and Hoffman among them—but Anderson still believes he will have a good club next fall.

He ought to read up on the union rules.

Gene Venzke, the track's greatest sensation since Charlie Paddock, has taken a lot of responsibility upon himself. Since his feat of setting a record for the mile run in the New York A. C. games only a few days after breaking the mark in the Millrose meet he has come to be regarded as a superman.

Whenever he runs fans will expect him to attain new heights and will be disappointed when he fails.

Crisler Goes to Confer with Princeton Heads

Minneapolis, Minn., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Athletic Director H. O. Crisler of the University of Minnesota left tonight for Princeton, N. J., to confer with Princeton university officials over his position as Tiger football coach. Arriving at Princeton Tuesday morning, Crisler will spend several days there and then will return to Minnesota.

REPORT SUNDT CHOSEN BADGER FOOTBALL COACH

Council Waits for Regents to Make Appointment.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Members of the athletic council today reached an agreement on a new football coach at the University of Wisconsin and it was indicated their choice was Guy Sundt, assistant coach for several years.

GUY SUNDT.

From an unusually reliable source it was learned that the council chose Sundt. The council's statement said a recommendation has been forwarded to the board of regents and that the regents may anounce his name at their discretion.

Regents to Meet March 9.

The regents are scheduled to meet March 9 and then will undoubtedly make a final decision on the matter of a new coach which has been hanging fire since Glenn Thistlethwaite announced his resignation in December. Sentiment of the board was reported evenly divided on Sundt.

Sundt is a Wisconsin graduate who distinguished himself as a full back, captaining the 1920 squad. He coached at Ripon college in 1922 and 1923, and has since been back field coach at Wisconsin.

Wynne Mentioned for Job.

Although Sundt had been favored for the job by some members of the council, there were others who demanded a coach of national reputation. H. O. Crisler, Minnesota, and Maj. Robert Neyland, Tennessee, were mentioned until they signed contracts elsewhere for next season. Chet Wynne, coach at Auburn, was reported in the running for the job after negotiations with Crisler and Neyland ended.

BRICKIES DEFEAT SLAVIA, 1 TO 0, TO ENTER CUP FINAL

A last minute goal by Jim Lillie put the Chicago Bricklayers in the western final of the national soccer championship at Sparta field yesterday. Lillie's marker gave the Brickies a 1 to 0 victory over the Cleveland Slavias.

Tommy Hill broke his leg in a collision with J. Thompson of the Ohio team about seven minutes from time.

Up until the goal was scored it was a great battle and the Slavias had an edge. It was due to the brilliant saves and the strong defensive play of Scott, Davidson, and R. Thompson that the Brickies moved ahead in the competition. Lineup:

BRICKLAYERS [1].		SLAVIAS [0].
Hjulian	G	Summers
Scott	R. B.	Kenney
Davidson	L. B.	Novar
R. Thompson	R. H.	J. Thompson
Littleford	C. H.	Nelson
Hill	L. H.	Jackson
Lillie	O. R.	McDade
Ogilvie	I. R.	J. Robb
Greenlees	C	A. Caraffi
Cuthbert	I. L.	Vinesky
Walker	O. L.	R. Caraffi

STIX BEAT SPARTA, 1-0.

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 28.—(AP)—The Stix team of St. Louis, defeated the Sparta I. A. B. A. eleven of Chicago, 1 to 0, here today and advanced to the western final in the national challenge cup soccer competition. The Stix players will meet the Bricklayers of Chicago here next Sunday in the first contest of a three game series for the western title.

Luther Trains at Foot of an Old Apple Tree

BY FRENCH LANE.

Luther Rogan, the light heavyweight champion from Quincy, was around the loop yesterday telling the Golden Gloves fans how he prepared for the Tournament of Champions.

His equipment was a punching bag tied to the branch of an apple tree in his back yard and the mild winter made it possible for him to punch away at the bag all through January and February.

Luther is a big strappin' colored boy. "Me and my old punchin' bag is plenty good enough for the boys from any other part of the earth," he said.

Buck Jones, the heavyweight on the Evansville Courier and Journal team, made a big impression when he worked out at Kid Howard's gymnasium yesterday. Buck is from Sturgis, Ky., and is the Sturgis high school football star. He plays full back. Buck has never been beaten. He has knocked out every heavyweight he has ever faced. "Buck doesn't seem to have any defense," said one of the Evansville rooters. "His knockout punch is his best defense," said another Evansville fan.

Two interesting kids on the Evansville team are Al and Jack Katz. Al is a welterweight and Jack is a middleweight. They once lived in Chicago and got their early training at Johnny Coulon's gym. They later moved to Evansville and have been big shots ever since then in Indiana and Kentucky amateur circles. Al sells suits in an Evansville clothing store and Jack is a newsboy.

The Dubuque boys arrived early last night and the rooters who followed them here seem to think that their heroes from out in the tall corn country are going to go places in the Tournament of Champions.

There's an Irishman on the team by the name of Ray Kelly, who, the Dubuque rooters believe, will win the 126 pound championship. And there is also a boy on team by the name of Milton Aaronson, who the fans say will be knocking on the door of the championship throne room. He is a flyweight.

The Grand Rapids, Mich., team arrived early last night and is quartered at the Sherman hotel. There is plenty of confidence in the camp of the Grand Rapids boys. Grand Rapids

IN the WAKE of the NEWS

GOLDEN GLOVES BOUTS.

GOLDEN Gloves boxers will meet tonight at the Stadium and for two nights following, three nights in all, in elimination contests between survivors of Chicago's three sectional tourneys and members of championship squads from 20 cities of Chicagoland. These three nights of boxing rightly are called the Tournament of Champions because all members appearing are champions in their classes at some qualifying tourney.

Survivors of this Tournament of Champions will meet in the Chicago finals one week from Wednesday night at the Stadium when Chicago's representatives will be determined for the annual intercity bouts against Greater New York, to be held this year in New York at Madison Square Garden, March 28.

The Wake calls attention of sport lovers to these amateur contests not because they are sponsored by THE TRIBUNE, and not because the entire net gate receipts go to a most worthy charity. This attention is directed simply on the merits of the "show." That is the best basis of appeal even when the cause is charity. These shows give the spectator something for his money, in this instance more than his money's worth as gauged by any pugilistic standard.

The Wake has witnessed all previous intercity bouts. Whenever not out of the city, we have attended all Chicago finals and many of the qualifying tourneys. Never have we been called upon to endure a dull evening. It has been sport, always exciting, to those interested in the game of fisticuffs.

These boys, amateurs, naturally are not as experienced as professionals. Neither are they as adept in tricks of the trade of which many sportsmen do not approve. Yet they are more earnest, more eager, more sportsmen-like than the chaps whose business is pugilism. The fact that bouts are limited to three rounds impels action from the tap of the opening gong. There is no time for stalling by any boy who expects to receive a decision. That is one of their most attractive features.

Prices of admission, despite the charity feature, are low. Seats for the Tournament of Champions sell from 50 cents to $1.50; for the Chicago finals from $1 to $3. It would be possible to charge and receive more. Such suggestion, made by some former disappointed seekers of tickets, was negatived because the purpose of such tourneys is to stimulate amateur boxing as well as to benefit charity. Higher prices might deter some friends of the youthful contenders from attendance.

These are great shows for the money—or for much higher money. Those readers who never have attended need attend only once to be convinced.

See you at the Stadium tonight.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

The Golden Gloves Tournament of Champions opens tonight at 7 o'clock at the Chicago Stadium. Chicago's greatest boxing show then will hold forth for three nights.

Two hundred boys, champions from 20 cities in five central states and qualifiers from three metropolitan sections, will compete for diamond studded Golden Gloves. And while they're fighting for titles and the right to represent Chicago against New York in the fifth intercity matches, these boys will furnish more action, more thrills than any boxing performances Chicago ever has seen.

Hundreds of Good Seats.

Hundreds of excellent seats are available for tonight, tomorrow and Wednesday. Those who have purchased tickets for the finals on March 9 and those who haven't been able to get just the seats they want for that night, can see tonight's show at prices ranging from 50 cents to $1.50. Golden Gloves tickets for the Tournament of Champions this year are less than formerly when the prices ranged at least 25 per cent higher. This has been done to provide opportunity for all to see all nights of the tournament. And for the first time the Tournament of Champions will be held in the Chicago Stadium, the world's largest indoor boxing arena.

Two rings will be used tonight and tomorrow night. At least 30 bouts are scheduled for each ring on each night. It will be a continuous show with knockouts and close decisions staged side by side.

Better Accommodations for Fans.

The change in location has been made to afford the spectators the maximum in comfort. The Stadium also has excellent facilities for the boxers. The Stadium ring and another have been placed in the center of the amphitheater. All seats on the north and south sides of the Stadium offer excellent views of both rings. Many of these tickets still are available.

Ringside seats and center mezzanine sections are $1.50. Other mezzanine sections and the first balcony tickets are $1, while the second balcony tickets are fifty cents.

Beginning at 1 o'clock this afternoon seats will be on sale at the Madison street box office of the Stadium, 1800 West Madison street. Tickets also may be purchased at THE TRIBUNE Public Service office, 1 South Dearborn, and at the branch offices, 1101 East 63d street and 4152 West Madison street and at The Tribune Tower lobby.

HERE'S A JOB FOR CUBS' BLEACHER COACHING CLUB

Hornsby Puzzled About Best Batting Order.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

Avalon, Cal., Feb. 28.—Before he finally gets his house in order for the business of trying to win a pennant Rogers Hornsby, manager of the Cubs, has to figure out something more than suitable occupants for positions.

When he gets through sorting the candidates he can turn to the solution of the best possible batting order, and if anybody thinks this part of the job is going to be easy he is welcome to a second guess.

A batting order must be arranged so as to get the maximum results from the peculiarities or capabilities of each hitter, and Hornsby isn't going to have the various kinds in such quantity that they can be tossed together haphazardly. There are too many fellows suited to certain positions in the attack and none for the other places. A glaring example is the absence of a cleanup man.

Need Lead Off. No. 2 Hitters.

It is strange but true that for a number of years Cub teams have been in difficulties about a lead off hitter and one to fill in satisfactorily at the second notch. This year it is not much different, and the season probably will be well under way before a final solution is reached.

Last season English had the lead off rôle most of the time because he was the only man available, but the desire was to place him elsewhere. Now Stanley Hack, the $50,000 third baseman purchased from Sacramento, is present and his place last year was at the top of the order. He did well in that capacity and Hornsby's inclination is to give him first whack at the same place in a big league lineup. But there is no assurance that Hack is going to hit well enough to maintain himself as a regular.

Granting that Hack fills the bill, Hornsby is going to find himself with only one spot in which to place three men naturally adapted to the second berth. English is good there. So is Billy Herman, the second baseman who came up last fall. And Lance Richbourg, the outfielder obtained from the Braves during the winter, is another who should be dropped into the spot because of his speed, his ability to bunt and his all around hitting strength.

Who'll Replace Wilson?

If Hack makes the grade he'll lead off and English will follow him. Cuyler is the ideal man for the third berth, but whether he'll remain there depends much on how the fourth, or cleanup place, is handled. That was Hack Wilson's old stand. The logical man for this important duty is Hornsby himself, but the manager is trying to build the 1932 machine without considering his own batting talents. He hopes that he will not be needed. He also hopes that if he should be needed his aging legs will be able to carry him through the campaign.

Vin Barton as cleanup man is only a slim possibility. To be of any value to the team in that capacity he will have to hit more than 100 points better than last season. That is almost too much of an expansion to expect. If he flops and Hornsby is unable to appear regularly there is only about one other possible combination and that is drop Cuyler to fourth and have Richbourg hit third. Riggs Stephenson is still around, but nobody knows as yet whether he'll be good enough to play regularly. Besides, his hitting isn't the kind suited for cleanup work.

OAKIE AND CUBS IN TRIPLE PLAY AS BROWNS WIN

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 28.—(AP)—Jack Oakie, screen actor, starred in a triple play at Wrigley Field today when baseball teams composed largely of major league players battled under the leadership of Joe E. Brown and Buster Keaton, a couple of comedians.

The Browns defeated the Keatons 10 to 3 before 8,500 fans whose paid admissions went to the Olympic games funds. New York Giants, Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh Pirates, here for spring training, were included in the lineups.

The triple play, which featured the game, came in the third inning. Bill Jurges, Chicago Cub infielder, tossed the ball to Oakie, who juggled it at second for a moment and then finally threw to Harry Taylor, another Cub, in time for the third out.

After he won the bantamweight title in the south side sectional tournament last week Leo stepped into a café to have a bite to eat. During the soup course somebody ran away with Leo's boxing shoes, the same shoes he has worn in so many of his victorious engagements.

Ellis Bradley, the middleweight on the Quincy Herald-Whig team, is a matinée idol. Since he won the middleweight title in Quincy his fan mail has been growing. There were 266 letters awaiting him when he arrived in Chicago. Most of them were postmarked Quincy, Ill., and Hannibal, Mo.

WEEK'S SCHEDULE.

TONIGHT.

Illinois at Purdue.
Iowa at Chicago.
Wisconsin at Michigan.
Northwestern at Ohio State.

SATURDAY.

Illinois at Chicago.
Minnesota at Iowa.
Indiana at Wisconsin.
Purdue at Northwestern.

Northwestern's hopes for a share in the 1932 Western conference basketball championship will be put to further test tonight. The Wildcats meet Ohio State at Columbus. If they win they will be in position either to tie for the title or win it, depending on the outcome of the Illinois game at Purdue tonight.

Purdue leads the race with eight victories and one defeat. Northwestern has won the same number, but has lost two games, one of them to Purdue at Lafayette. If Northwestern and Purdue win their contests tonight the two teams meet at Patten gymnasium Saturday night for the championship. All seats have been sold for the game and a capacity crowd of 6,000 will see the Wildcats wind up their season's schedule.

One More Week.

Purdue will not finish until a week from tonight, but it is difficult to believe that the game with Chicago on the Boilermakers' floor can upset the final standing, although this might be the case if the Maroons play as they did in their first game with Ohio State. Incidentally, that was Chicago's only Big Ten victory to date.

Northwestern's case at Ohio State is more serious than one might suppose. The Wildcats won the first game of the series at home, 25 to 24, although until the final ten minutes they apparently had command of the situation. Ohio has come out of its slump, which saw it whipped by Chicago. As proof, the Buckeyes defeated Chicago Saturday night, 40 to 31. Moreover, Colburn and Mattison, Ohio regulars, did not play, Coach Harold Olsen holding them out for the Northwestern game tonight.

On the other hand, Northwestern still has the morale necessary to carry on. One week ago the Wildcats whipped Michigan at Ann Arbor in an overtime game, 30 to 26, and that game was just as critical then as the one tonight.

Illinois Can Win.

It must not be overlooked that Illinois may whip Purdue tonight. The Illini did it at Champaign, 28 to 21, in the second game of the season, and while Minnesota took a one point game from the Illini at Minneapolis Saturday night, 27 to 26, it doesn't follow that Illinois cannot come back against Purdue. Indeed, Purdue's 28 to 21 victory over Wisconsin Saturday night was not in accord with the Boilermakers' recent attack which smothered Northwestern and then Indiana.

Johnny Wooden, Purdue guard, continued to lead his team's attack, scoring five field goals and two free throws against Wisconsin. More particularly Wooden's points came when the Badgers seriously threatened in the closing minutes of the second half.

Should Purdue and Northwestern lose tonight and then if Northwestern defeats Purdue, Minnesota would be back in the race with a chance to tie for the title. In any event, Minnesota, which tied for second place last year with eight victories and four defeats, is assured of a first division berth.

Wooden Holds Lead.

Michigan, fourth in the standings, defeated Iowa Saturday night, 35 to 27. The Wolverines also should end the season in the first division and probably in the position they now occupy.

Wisconsin plays at Michigan tonight while Iowa and Chicago will settle the dispute over last position in their game on the Midway. If Chicago wins tonight it will tie Iowa for ninth position, while if Wisconsin loses to Michigan, all three quintets may share eighth position.

Wooden continues to lead the Big Ten in scoring with 105 points and probably will replace Joe Reiff as the conference individual scoring champion if he maintains his pace in the next three games.

Hyde Park Beats LakeView in Postoffice Cage Series

Hyde Park defeated Lake View, 32 to 23, yesterday, at the Eighth Regiment armory, in the third series of the Chicago Postoffice basketball championship series. City Nites won from station C, 9 to 2, while Mailing defeated Central Nites, 19 to 5.

Scarcity of Fish in Keys Means Storm Is Coming

BY BOB BECKER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Aboard the Ilderim, Florida Keys, Fla., Feb. 28.—If you should come down here to the keys and need a good barometer on your boat, there is nothing like a bonefish to tell you what kind of weather is coming or warn you about an approaching northwester.

When we first steamed into this great fishing country around Angelfish creek, Big Card bank, and other stretches of salt water here in the keys, L. J. Stranahan, one of the expert bonefishermen in the party, and George, our guide, told us repeatedly about how the schools of silvery glistening bonefish forecast a change in weather to the experienced angler. We were somewhat skeptical about these statements and at first our impression was that being new to this game we were being taken for a ride.

But as the days have passed, days spent in hunting, watching and catching this unusual game fish that has to be stalked like some wild thing of a northern forest, we are ready to believe these statements about Albula vulpes, the bonefish, being so sensitive to weather and the barometric changes which go with weather, that it actually does tell a fisherman what is going to happen.

For example, take our experience yesterday on Big Card bank. George, the slender, good natured, thin-faced Florida guide, took us out. I. C. Elston, the skipper of the Ilderim, had anchored close to it so that all the bonefishermen aboard could reach their fishing grounds quickly. Therefore it was but a few minutes in our skiff with an outboard to the shallow water on the bank.

George went to the lower end of the bank. A light wind, warm and balmy, was coming out of the south. We looked in vain for signs of fish. Whereas, two days before you could see the flashing, glistening tails of the bonefish above the bar, we couldn't see a one. Our luck was most indifferent at the lower end of the bank. George got one small one. We didn't get a nibble.

The guide started the motor and away we went to the lower end of the bank. Here we found several schools. But George was baffled at first. They weren't feeding much. We could see schools of bonefish traveling and some were working exactly opposite to what they should have been doing on a rising tide.

"I declah," said George, as he squinted and looked across the sunlit bar. "These fish ain't working atall, this mawnin'. They ain't bitin' much eithah. Must be a storm coming, or somethin'. Them fish ah schoolin' up but not feedin' the way they should."

Stranahan, veteran of twenty years of bonefishing, reported the same thing when he came in. Our boat managed to get three fish in spite of the unorthodox antics of the bonefish. However, here was the lesson of the morning. When we got back to the Ilderim we found that the barometer had dropped a point, indicating a change in weather and possibly a storm. It came that night. The bonefish had been correct in their forecast.

FIND 20 BODIES OF 38 TRAPPED BY MINE BLAST

Little Hope Held for Others Missing.

Pocahontas, Va., Feb. 28.—Eight bodies of victims of the Bossevain mine explosion were brought to the surface tonight. Twelve others remained at the foot of the shaft while rescue workers continued their search for others trapped by the blast yesterday.

Edging along from room to room, from entry to entry, 50 gas masked men kept up their hunt for the 18 other miners believed dead from the blast at the mine, one of the largest operated by the Pocahontas Fuel company. Of about 50 men in the mine, only about a dozen escaped.

Rescue workers are unable to estimate how long it would take to explore the entire area.

While widows, children and friends kept a night long vigil at the mine opening, the rescuers doggedly worked their way toward the basin main section of the mile, two miles from the entrance. They reached it early today and started the work of penetrating every room to locate the victims, who were in small groups as they fell when the blast tore through the workings.

Bodies Not Identified.

No attempt was made to identify the bodies recovered.

The first two bodies found lay beside a mine car, and it is believed the men were car greasers. They were reached after rescue crews, commanded by A. G. Lucas, Virginia mine inspector, had spent hours erecting brattice after brattice to drive out the poison laden air. As the air behind one brattice cleared, the men advanced a few feet, erected another, waited until the air cleared and then repeated. When they had penetrated through the main entry their work increased, for the large basin area was catacombed with entries and workrooms.

The crews were forced out of the mine once by the gas, and when the struggle was resumed they were further handicapped by great heaps of jagged slate and shattered mine timbers which jutted across passages.

Part of the men engaged in combing the shattered mine are inspectors ordered by Robert M. Lambie, chief of the West Virginia department of mines. The United States bureau of mines rescue car at Norton also is at the scene.

Hold Crowd Back.

A crowd stood behind the roped off entrance awaiting definite word of those entombed below. It was a crowd composed of the families and friends of the stricken men. Curiosity seekers got no further than this town, where 30 West Virginia and Virginia state troopers turned them back by the hundreds. All cars were stopped and a valid reason was necessary if any were permitted to go toward the mine.

An improvised morgue is ready near the top of the shaft and 15 embalmers are there to prepare bodies for burial. Several doctors also are on hand to treat any found alive and to aid the rescue workers.

Among the dozens who escaped are two Negroes, Henry Watkins and Edward Kirtly, both of Bluefield, Va. Watkins collapsed when smoke billowed into the room where they were working and he was carried out by Kirtley. The latter said that as they neared the mine surface he hear a "jar" which he believed was the explosion that entombed the others.

HOLD CARLSTROM ERRED IN RULING ON BLIND BILL

Two University of Chicago law professors, after a six months' study of Gov. Emmerson's veto of the law designed to prevent blindness among new born babies, have come to the conclusion that Attorney General Carlstrom was in error in advising the governor that the measure was unconstitutional.

The Illinois Law Review, published jointly by the law schools of Illinois, Chicago and Northwestern universities, prints the findings of Prof. Kenneth C. Sears and Associate Professor Arthur H. Kent of the University of Chicago law school in its issue today.

The law in question, sponsored by the Illinois Society for the Prevention of Blindness, provided that the eyes of every baby be treated with a prophylactic within an hour after birth. Gov. Emmerson's veto followed its passage last summer by the legislature.

GREER, EX-HEAD OF AIR BRAKE CO., KILLS SELF

New Canaan, Conn., Feb. 28.—[Special.]—Benjamin Brinton Greer, until last September president of the New York Air Brake company and before that vice president of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, committed suicide early today by shooting himself through the head in his home near here.

At the Greer home it was said that Mr. Greer had been suffering from ill health and that he had worried over financial reverses. He left no notes, according to members of his household.

Mr. Greer was born in Chicago on Aug. 6, 1877, and was educated in the public schools there. He attended Armour Institute of Technology and was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1901.

Entering the railroad service in 1899 with the Great Northern railway, he served that company in various positions in the accounting and operating departments. From 1908 until 1917 he was with the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad.

In 1917 Mr. Greer became vice president and general manager of the Colorado and Southern railway. The following year he was appointed assistant regional director of the central western region, United States railroad administration. From November, 1918, until 1920 he was federal manager of the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, becoming vice president in charge of operations in 1925. In 1925 he moved to New York and became president of the New York Air Brake company.

In addition to his wife, the former Augusta Jameson of Indianapolis, whom he married in 1910, he is survived by two brothers, R. C. Greer of Chicago and Edmund Greer of Los Angeles, and three sisters, Mrs. Mary G. Walker of Evanston, Ill., Mrs. B. R. T. Collins of Newton Center, Mass., and Mrs. Morris Trumbull of Pasadena, Cal.

Funeral services will be held in Chicago on Wednesday afternoon.

U. S. BONDS LEAD WEEK'S MARKET IN NEW YORK

Railway Issues Also Are Among Features.

New York, Feb. 28. — (AP) — The sweeping advance of United States government loans was the outstanding feature of the bond market during the last week.

Almost the entire federal list recorded daily gains and the majority marked up new high records for the year. Liberty 4th 4¼s moved past par and the other Liberty loans hovered in the vicinity. There was some profit taking toward the end of the week, but this was readily absorbed.

Corporate Section Firm.

A firm undertone was maintained in the corporate section, although minor gains and losses were about evenly balanced. While railroad mortgages were inclined to be sluggish, the utilities developed a little more activity than usual, with communications and gas and electric company liens gaining moderately.

The strength of the federal department was attributed to a number of factors. The passage of the Glass-Steagall credit expansion bill was the underlying motive power behind the government loans because of the provision that currency issues of Federal Reserve banks may be based upon those obligations.

At the same time reports from Washington that the treasury intended to negotiate its large financing next month through the sale of short term notes tended to improve feeling for the listed loans. In addition, the cutting of the rediscount rate by the Federal Reserve Bank of New York indicated the inauguration of a new easy money policy.

Renewed Interest in Rails.

Renewed interest in the railway category was forecast by some dealers who pointed out that of 42 leading railroads, 29 reported earnings for 1931 in excess of their fixed charges. Twenty-three of these carriers also disclosed net income available for their common stocks after preferred dividend requirements.

There was an irregular trend to foreign loans. The success of the Chinese in withstanding the advance of Japanese forces at Shanghai brought about considerable liquidation of Nipponese securities. A number of these sank to new lows.

British government securities were in demand at higher prices throughout the week and French and Italian bonds also exhibited strength. Argentine liens were firm, while those of New South Wales and Australia recorded substantial gains.

Bright Spots in Business

Construction contracts awarded in the first fifteen days of February in the 37 states east of the Rockies amounted to $55,028,500, according to the F. W. Dodge corporation. Nonresidential building led among the three major construction classes with $21,857,800. With a total valuation of $21,219,000, heavy engineering contracts in the United States for the week just ending registered a gain over the preceding week, according to the Engineering News-Record. The week's total compares with a valuation of $10,656,000 in the preceding week and $34,678,000 for the same period in 1931.

The New York Central railroad will bring operations in its Bucyrus, O., shops to full capacity on March 1 with the addition of 125 more workers. A similar number went to work there two weeks ago. This is believed to be the first time in over two years that the shops will be at full capacity, and is one of the few instances of such activity in the country.

It was reported that the General Electric company recently made several shipments of turbines and power apparatus from its Lynn, Mass., plants to Russia. Employment at the Lynn plants is said to be around 5,000 against 8,000 in former years.

A cheerful note for stockholders of the Eureka Vacuum Cleaner company was sounded by the company's president, Fred Wardell. He reported a $19,200 profit for January—the first the company has enjoyed in 21 months.

U. S. FIRMS TAKE HEAVY LOSS ON FOREIGN MONEY

J. I. Case Data Show 1931 Situation.

BY O. A. MATHER.

The big American concerns which do a large export business in foreign countries incurred severe losses last year as the result of abandonment of the gold standard by several countries and sharp depreciation in the currencies of most foreign nations. Quite a few American companies have foreign plants and branches and they have been forced to depreciate inventories and currency assets.

For example, the J. I. Case company managed to make an operating profit of $163,729 in 1931, despite the fact that the agricultural implement industry was severely depressed by agricultural conditions. But the company was forced to make provision for declines in the value of foreign currency assets, which entailed a loss of $1,049,000. The result was that the year produced a net loss of $885,270 and a final deficit of $2,175,066 after payment of $1,289,795 in dividends.

Surplus Is Reduced.

As the result of this deficit the company's earned surplus was reduced to $8,906,273, compared with $11,981,339 at the end of 1930. One factor in the low operating income also was the fact that an inventory depreciation of $531,501 was taken from earnings and the company's reserves of $5,550,000 were left unchanged. Net income for 1930 was $2,598,108, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $9.67 a share on 194,960 common shares.

"The shrinkage in foreign working capital due to the decline in exchange rates is of a contingent character," President Leon R. Clausen says in his annual report. "Whether the losses will actually be sustained will depend upon the future trend of foreign exchange. There has been some improvement in Canadian exchange since the close of the year."

The company's balance sheet at the end of 1931 shows current assets of $37,082,026 and current liabilities of $2,470,580.

OMNIBUS CORP. IMPROVES

For the second consecutive year the Omnibus corporation, holding company for motor bus operating companies in Chicago and New York, increased its earnings last year. The parent corporation's net profits, including undistributed profits accruing to it from subsidiaries, were $1,906,949, equivalent, after preferred dividends, to $1.28 a share on the common stock. Net profits for 1930 were $1,312,842, or 96 cents a share.

Net income actually received by the Omnibus corporation was $1,100,232 last year, or 62 cents a share on the common stock, compared with $921,572, or 33 cents a share, in 1930. Dividends of $8 were paid on the preferred shares last year, after which and surplus adjustments total surplus was increased to $1,815,882, compared with $1,432,528 at the end of 1930. The corporation purchased 1,910 of its preferred stock last year for $111,818, or below $59 a share.

Net earnings of the Chicago Motor Coach company last year were $717,465, compared with $551,911 in 1930. All the stock of this company is owned by the Omnibus corporation, which also controls the New York Transportation company, Fifth Avenue Coach company and Fifth Avenue Bus Securities corporation.

JOHN R. THOMPSON REPORT

The John R. Thompson company, which operates a chain of restaurants in Chicago and other cities, had somewhat lower earnings last year. Net profits for 1931 were $904,203, equivalent to $3.01 a share on the 300,000 capital shares. Dividends totaled $375,000 and surplus adjustments applicable to prior years required $54,292. After these deductions earned surplus was increased to $5,972,585, compared with $5,497,674 at the end of 1930. Net profits for 1930 were $1,126,585, or $3.75 a share. The balance sheet at the end of 1931 shows current assets of $2,302,703 and current liabilities of $1,151,927.

The Intertype corporation had net profits of $205,645 last year, which were equivalent, after preferred dividends, to 55 cents a share on the common stock. Net profits for 1930 were $409,020, or $1.46 a share on the common stock then outstanding.

Perfect Circle Earnings for 1931 Set New Record

Perfect Circle company established a new record for earnings in 1931. The report for the year issued yesterday shows net income of $901,831, after all charges, equivalent to $5.55 a share on the 162,500 shares of common stock outstanding. This compares with $608,503 or $3.74 a share on the same capitalization in 1930. The December 31 balance sheet discloses current assets of $2,330,793, compared with current liabilities of $291,967. Current assets included cash and U. S. government securities of $1,107,675.

Continental Shares Has Large Decline in Assets

New York, Feb. 28. — The Continental Shares company today reported net current income for 1931 of $53,233 after expenses, but exclusive of $7,254,263 loss on securities sold which was charged to surplus account. In the preceding year the company reported a net profit of $4,560,893. Securities carried at cost of $132,495,825 had a market value on Dec. 31 of $25,640,173.

Eastern Cities Lead in New Bond Issues

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 28.—Eight municipal issues and one public utility issue, aggregating $13,072,000, comprised last week's new financing.

Financing the week before consisted of a single issue of public utility bonds, $25,000,000 for the Brooklyn Edison company. During the corresponding week last year $23,036,000 new bonds were placed on the market.

The new municipal issues ranged in size from $3,000,000 to $100,000. The largest was $3,000,000 six per cents of the city of Buffalo, N. Y., another issue $1,790,000 of 5s, of the same city; $2,082,000 city of Syracuse, N. Y., 6s; $2,000,000 city of Boston, Mass., 4¾s, and $1,500,000 St. Louis county, Missouri, 5s.

Illinois Utility Issue.

The single issue of public utility bonds was that of $1,500,000 Central Illinois Public Service company 6s, due 1957, priced at 88, to yield 7 per cent. In connection with that offering the bankers, Halsey, Stuart & Co., Inc., stated it was priced at the current market levels to test the willingness of investors.

As measured by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE average of forty domestic corporation bonds, the market is a trifle higher than it was a week ago, but the average of ten leading foreign loans showed a slight decline during the same period. However, United States government bonds made upward strides, so that state and municipal bond prices were strengthened perforce.

How Groups Are Divided.

Offerings of bonds, by groups, for this and last week follow:

	This week.	Last week.
State and munici..	$11,572,000	.....
Public utility	1,500,000	$25,000,000
Total	$13,072,000	$25,000,000

During the week the Associated Gas and Electric company offered holders of its securities the right to subscribe to a new issue of $40,000,000 8 year 8 per cent bonds, carrying additional annual participating privileges up to 2 per cent, and also warrants per the acquisition of stock of the company.

NET EARNINGS OF LUMBERMEN'S CASUALTY TOLD

Net earnings of the Lumbermen's Mutual Casualty company of Chicago for 1931 amounted to $2,646,507, according to figures released by President James S. Kemper. Of this amount $2,368,622, represents underwriting profit and $272,702 net profit on investments after absorbing depreciation in market values of securities.

Cash dividends paid to policy holders during the year were $2,510,495 and $119,029 was added to net cash surplus. This is the largest dividend disbursement in the history of the company.

Assets of the Lumbermen's increased $519,897.91 during 1931 to a total of $15,521,354.57. This includes net cash surplus of $2,220,062.08 based on actual market values of investments as of Dec. 31, 1931. In addition the company has a voluntary reserve for contingencies of $1,000,000.00.

Total losses paid to and on behalf of policyholders and cash dividends returned to them since organization of the company in 1912 exceeds $50,000,000.

SNIDER COMPANY MAY BE HELPED BY NEW INTEREST

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The stockholders protective committee of the Snider Packing corporation disclosed today it was contemplating a reorganization and refinancing plan which includes "the entry into the management of the company of one of the leading companies of the country in a kindred industry." Negotiations are now under way with this unidentified concern, the committee's announcement said.

The committee described as unjustified a recent warning that unless stockholders voted for a reorganization plan submitted by the reorganization committee the company would be forced to liquidate.

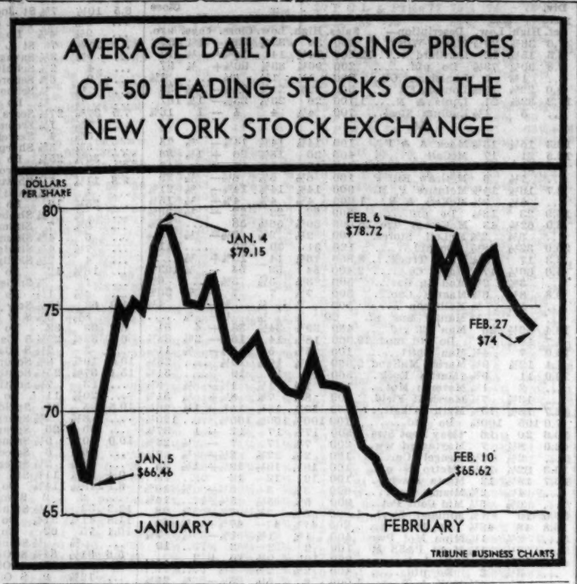
In its warning, the reorganization committee asserted that a forced liquidation would realize so much less than book values that there would be nothing left for preferred or common stockholders. This picture of the company's finances was based, the protective committee said, upon a "false premise."

Uruguay Is Almost Ready to Buy Oil from Russia

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay, Feb. 28. —A contract for the purchase of 20,000 tons of gasoline and 10,000 tons of kerosene from Russia with which to launch Uruguay's oil monopoly has been drawn up and awaits the government's signature pending an investigation as to whether Iuyamtorg, the soviet trading agency, was involved in Uruguay's recent communist scare.

Ruhr Chemical Corp. Calls $105,000 of Its Bonds

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Ability to take care of its sinking fund requirements, despite difficulties in exchange transfers from Germany, is shown by the Ruhr Chemical corporation. It has called $105,000 of its 6 per cent sinking fund mortgage bonds, series A, for redemption on April 1 through Dillon, Read & Co., its fiscal agent.



MARSHALL FIELD & CO. SALES DURING 1931 GIVEN AT $114,348,691

Details of operations given in the annual report of Marshall Field & Co. and subsidiaries, made public yesterday, closely follow the preliminary report, which was published early in January. Yesterday's report placed the net loss for 1931 at $5,144,368. It blamed the reduced purchasing power of consumers and continuously declining commodity prices for the situation.

The report said net sales were $114,348,691, and net loss from operations $4,360,633.

"Our expenses were substantially reduced, but could not be reduced in the same ratio as the dollar volume of business diminished," said John McKinlay, president.

Mr. McKinlay said inventories on Jan. 1 were $9,324,000 less than a year previous. The report listed depreciation on fixed assets at $2,095,841, or $534,400 more than in 1930. Cash dividends paid totaled $5,580,265.

Despite rental conditions, 82 per cent occupancy was reported for the Merchandise Mart here, owned by Marshall Field & Co.

Mr. McKinlay said state and local taxes, not including customs duties and income taxes, were $3,136,000, or about 3 per cent of sales.

NATIONAL POWER 1931 NET INCOME TOTALS $10,804,754

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 28.—[Special.]—The annual report of the National Light and Power company for 1931 shows a net income of $10,804,754 after charges, taxes and depreciation. This is equal after preferred dividends to $1.67 a share earned on 5,449,981 common shares, compared with $12,630,032, or $1.99 a share, earned on 5,447,919 common shares in 1930. Surplus after dividends amounted to $3,677,582, against $5,395,166 the year before.

Operating revenues of subsidiaries were $77,425,919, against $80,375,509 in 1930, and net operating revenues were $36,339,320 against $36,345,851. Total income was $36,827,153 against $37,427,655 and a balance to parent company after depreciation and underlying dividends, charges, and minority interest was $11,962,713 against $13,437,930. Total income of parent company was $12,290,010 against $13,899,582.

The balance sheet as of Dec. 31 shows total assets of $161,170,620 against $160,518,161 a year before. Current assets were $19,330,160, including $14,673,633 cash, against $18,879,554, including $4,287,629 cash, at the end of 1930. Advances to subsidiaries were $4,217,500 against $13,760,828. Current liabilities were $833,021 against $924,183 and surplus was $9,829,871 against $8,941,195.

RETAIL BUYERS HUNT BARGAINS, SURVEY SHOWS

Retail buyers are still devoting their attention to the plucking of "bargains," according to trade observers of the Chicago Association of Commerce. While most of the consumer outlets reported badly spotted conditions last week, with new needs for adjusting prices to lower levels and writing off long held inventories, those which already had accepted the situation and made noticeable price reductions appear to be satisfied with their cash income.

Wholesalers report turnover volumes up to a year ago with prices lower. In some instances the early buying of Easter wares is declared very satisfactory.

Figures show that Chicago's recent wage cut of 20 per cent for building mechanics has failed to bring about the expected spurt in the building industry. Permits for the past week were below the same period of last year. In small residential permits there was a slight upturn.

One large typewriter company in the Chicago area announced that it is recalling a large number of employés because of production demand. It was stated that a substantial order has been received.

PENNSY HEAD GIVES WARNING ON DIVIDENDS

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Stockholders of the Pennsylvania railroad were warned today by W. W. Atterbury, president, that quarterly dividends cannot be continued unless there is a "material increase" in the company's income.

At the same time Gen. Atterbury expressed the hope that some of the benefits of the foundations for financial and business recoveries now being laid would be reflected during 1932. Gen. Atterbury's message accompanied a quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share, equal to one per cent, bringing the total for the year to $3.25 a share.

Gross revenues for 1931 decreased $122,375,081 as compared with 1930, Atterbury said, and despite a $74,317,250 reduction in operating expenses the railroad's net income equaled only $19,545,194, or 2.97 per cent on the capital stock.

Gen. Atterbury cited voluntary wage cuts, formation of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the Railroad Credit corporation, and legislation proposed to liberalize temporarily the rediscounting and loaning powers of the federal reserve system as factors giving the future a "more constructive and hopeful perspective."

GENERAL FOODS OFFICIAL SEES BETTER OUTLOOK

More optimism is being shown today, judging from conversations on Pullman cars, in clubs, meetings, and almost anywhere that two or more persons are gathered together, according to Clarence Francis, executive vice president of General Foods corporation, who has just concluded a transcontinental business trip.

Mr. Francis emphasizes that there has been little noticeable improvement in actual trade conditions, but believes that better psychology among business people nationally may prove helpful.

Conditions in the far west seem to be better than in most parts of the country, according to Mr. Francis. One reason being given by westeners is that they are perhaps closer to the pioneer spirit. However, he observes that there has been a tendency nationally for people to stop bemoaning the loss of their paper riches of three years ago and to accept conditions as they are today.

Throughout the country Mr. Francis noticed that many purchases were being made below cost of production.

HARDWARE TRADE GROWING BETTER, MAGAZINE SAYS

Conditions in the hardware trade have reflected an improved sentiment, Hardware Age will say in its weekly market summary. The advancing trend in the stock market; the federal credit relief measure; the anti-hoarding program, and the pent up buying being released by the steady decline in prices are the principal contributing factors to the better feeling now evident.

A late touch of winter in several sections of the country temporarily accelerated the movement of ice skates, sleds, tire chains, and anti-freeze solutions. Future orders for spring merchandise are being booked in fairly satisfactory volume, and in some sections mild temperatures have already stimulated the call for goods in this classification.

German Electric Concern Shows Losses for 1931

BERLIN, Feb. 28.—The Allgemeine Elektrizitaets Werke has published its annual report showing losses for 1931, which were covered from reserves, reducing the reserves by 19,300,000 marks [approximately $4,600,000] to 42,000,000 marks [approximately $10,080,000]. Fifteen million shares in possession of the company were canceled. Turnover declined to 370,000 marks [approximately $88,800,000], compared with 520,000,000 marks [approximately $124,800,000 in 1930, when a dividend of seven per cent was paid.

Austrian Bank Delays Dividend; Earned 6 Pct.

VIENNA, Austra, Feb. 28. — The governing board of the national bank announced at a meeting tonight that 1931 profits justified a 6 per cent dividend, but because of the failure of the creditanstalt to settle its debts to the bank it had been decided to refer the size of the dividend to a general meeting to be held March 18.

TRADERS AWAIT MORE FOREIGN WHEAT ORDERS

Believe Europe May Import Heavily.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

An upward revision in estimates as to world's import requirements for wheat, and a corresponding reduction in the probable carryover at the end of the 1931-32 crop year are expected in some quarters.

The almost drastic change in the character of the news from Europe in the last two weeks and the upward trend in the market during that period have brought to light a number of facts regarding the probable demand from importing countries.

Several theories put forward by the wheat traders months ago now seem to be in process of realization. One of them was the belief that Europe would be forced to import heavily during the latter part of the crop year owing to abnormally large demands on the domestic crops early in the season.

Call Demand Underestimated.

From July 1, 1931, to March 1, 1932, world's exports of wheat are estimated at about 514,000,000 bu. While regarded by many traders as relatively light they are the largest, with two exceptions, in the last eight years. Broomhall, a leading European authority, has reiterated his estimate on world's requirements of 776,000,000 bu. If the latter figure is correct there would be only 262,000,000 bu yet to come forward the balance of the season.

Average exports during the past eight years for the last third of the crop year have been close to 290,000,000 bu. On this basis the world's total for the 1931-32 season should exceed 800,000,000 bu and would be around 15,000,000 bu in excess of the eight year average.

Statistics compiled by the United States department of agriculture as of Feb. 1, after adjustment to actual conditions, showed a total of 902,000,000 bu of wheat available for export in the United States, Canada, Argentina, and Australia, or 16,000,000 bu less than on the same date in 1931.

As world's exports for the remainder of the crop season promise to be about 30,000,000 bu in excess of those of last year, and Russia is no longer considered to be a factor in the market, the trade would not be surprised if the official statement as to the carryover on July 1, 1932, showed a decrease of nearly 50,000,000 bu from the 659,000,000 bu on hand at the start of the current crop year.

With a shortage of 150,000,000 bu of rye in Europe as compared with last year and small invisible reserves the trade feels that the demand for wheat from importing countries is likely to be heavy the balance of the season, especially in view of the prevailing price level.

Expect Crop Scare.

While statistics indicate a liberal international movement of wheat during the next few months there is no scarcity of available grain, and even on the basis of the reduced carryover the total would still be materially above normal. This excess in the carryover as compared with normal is about equal to the holdings of the federal farm board.

The trade is now fully prepared for a big crop scare in the west and southwest. There is a general belief the trend of the wheat market will ultimately be dominated entirely by the outlook for the new crop rather than the statistical position. The official Kansas and Nebraska reports painted a decidedly pessimistic picture of conditions in the western part of the two states.

As near as statisticians can figure there are about 4,500,000 acres of winter wheat in the area where the outlook at the present time is well below average, representing roughly about 13 per cent of the total acreage seeded in all sections of the country last fall.

Ask Rose Mont Bond Owners to Accept 7 Year Extension

BY AL CHASE.

A. S. GRAVEN.

Owners of bonds of the Rose Mont apartments, at 4435-43 Greenview avenue, have been asked to agree to a seven year extension of the $134,500 in defaulted bonds now outstanding, according to Barnet L. Rosset, chairman of the bondholders' protective committee, for bond issues underwritten by the Strauss Brothers Investment company. In the detailed analysis of the situation just mailed them Mr. Rosset states that the committee feels that the extension plan will permit the successful completion of the reorganization without the time and expense necessary for a foreclosure and receivership.

The bondholders' protective committee is composed of A. S. Graven, architect; Charles J. Young, Earl G. Krumrine, realtor, and Charles B. Lawton. Mr. Rosset is chairman. The Rose Mont apartments were erected in 1925 and contain forty-four suites, mostly four rooms. The site is 100x160.

The present issue, which originally was $160,000 but which has been reduced to $134,500, matures on March 1, 1932. The interest rate is 6½%. The proposed extension will advance the maturity date to March 1, 1939, and it is suggested to reduce the interest rate to 5%.

Owner to Pay Expenses.

"All expenses incurred in connection with the proposed extension program are to be borne by the owner," said Mr. Rosset, "so that no charge of any nature is to be made to the bondholders for any matters or expenses relating thereto.

"The committee's analysis and survey of the property show the owner has been working diligently to conserve the bondholders' security and operate the apartments in the most economical manner possible. Taxes for 1928 have been paid in full; half of those for 1929 are paid, with the remainder contested.

"The extension agreement will require that the mortgagor shall make monthly deposits with the Phillip State Bank and Trust company, as depositary, on account of interest requirements equal to one-sixth of each subsequently maturing semi-annual installment.

Plan Sinking Fund.

"The extension plan will provide for the creation of a sinking fund requiring the application in each year of 75 per cent of the net income of the property, before depreciation, towards retirement of bonds; such retirement not to be less than $2,500 annually. In this manner, beginning March 1, 1933, marketability features will be provided for the present securities through the operation of the sinking fund.

"As a further safeguard to the bondholders, the extension agreement will require that a reserve be set up immediately for the payment of the balance due on account of taxes for 1929 when the amount finally is determined.

"The owner also agrees to execute a chattel mortgage on the furnishings, several of the apartments having been furnished recently, in favor of the trustee, Herman S. Strauss.

"In order to effect the extension proposed, the owner has deposited with the Phillip State Bank and Trust company a sum sufficient to pay the interest at 6½ per cent and income tax on all outstanding bonds due Sept. 1, 1931, and to become due on March 1, 1932. This money will be paid to bondholders upon deposit of their securities with the committee and consent to the extension."

NEW YORK PHONE EARNINGS $4,844,822 NET ABOVE 1930'S

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—Despite the fact that total operating revenue dropped from $213,693,527 in 1930 to $211,636,000 in 1931, the annual report of the New York Telephone company for the last year shows net income of $35,323,950 against $30,479,028 for the previous 12 months.

Net profits of the company, after preferred dividends, were $9.08 per share of common stock outstanding at the close of the year, compared with $9.25 a share for 1930. In 1930 the outstanding common stock totaled 3,120,500 shares against 3,713,000 at the end of last year.

The total number of telephones in service on Dec. 31, 1931 was 2,598,678, compared with 2,622,658 for the previous year.

The report stated that "an increasingly experienced and efficient force, a reduced volume of business, retrenchment in many items of expense, and improved methods all contributed to a reduction in operating expense which more than offset the reduction in revenues."

The company is controlled by the American Telephone and Telegraph company.

GOLD RECEIPTS SWELL PLETHORA OF PARIS MONEY

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Thursday's Bank of France return, dated Feb. 19, shows an increase of 780,000,000 francs in the gold reserve, whereas foreign credit balances decreased 490,000,000. Note circulation decreased 710,000,000, but private deposits rose 1,500,000. The Bank of France's gold reserve now stands at 73,814,000,000 francs, as compared with 68,481,000,000 at the end of 1931, an increase of 5,333,000,000 francs, or $127,000,000.

The ratio of gold cover to the note circulation rose from 65.53 per cent to 66.36, this week's percentage being a high record. On Dec. 31 it was 60.51.

The fact that the Bank of France continues to withdraw its foreign balances and that French capital is no longer being invested abroad has the necessary result of constantly increasing the plethora of money on the Paris market.

FLORIDA ADDS WOOD OIL TO OTHER PRODUCTS

Large scale production in America of a commodity for which the United States until a few years ago was dependent upon the orient became a fact last week when the General American Tank Car company brought a tank car of China wood oil from Gainesville, Fla., to Carteret, N. J., in the New York port area. It is said to be the first tank car shipment of this product from an American crop. The tank car held 8,000 gallons.

China wood oil is an important constituent of paints, lacquers, and varnishes. It is also used in the production of linoleum, electric insulations and brake linings. It is extracted from nuts of the tung oil tree and is also known as tung oil. For generations China was the only source of this oil. About five years ago, however, it was found that the soil and climate of Florida were favorable to the tree and cultivation there was undertaken. Over 500,000 trees [about 60 trees per acre] were set out. These trees yield around 30 pounds of oil per tree. The Chinese method of extracting the oil from the tung nuts is primitive, with much of the oil lost. In Florida special machinery has been devised to hull the nuts and extract the oil under pressure of 12,000 pounds per square inch in a steam jacketed chamber which reduces waste to a minimum. Hauling from Florida groves to points of consumption in tank car quantities may be expected to expedite efficient and economical distribution.

RACE FOR GOLD HELPS TO CURB EUROPE'S FEARS

U. S., England and Germany Sources.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 28.—Sometimes, among the mixed motives that always exist in such changes, reduction of a bank rate is equivalent to the hauling down of a danger signal. This was manifestly true when Europe's central banks reduced their very high rates at the end of 1929.

They then knew that the collapse of the American speculation had put an end to Wall street's ravenous absorption of European capital and gold. That was equally true with regard to the Bank of England's abandonment of its 6 per cent rate ten days ago. That high rate had been fixed on Sept. 21, when gold payments were suspended and when nobody knew what would follow, either in the attitude of the rest of the world toward London or in possible inflationary movements on the British markets. By the present month, however, both dangers seemed to be past.

Last Saturday's reduction of our reserve bank rate from 3½ per cent to 3 will not be ascribed primarily to a similar motive, but there are some faint points of resemblance. Last October's advance from 1½ per cent to 3½ hardly can be called a danger signal, but it would not have been but for the $747,000,000 withdrawal of gold from the federal reserve within six weeks, mostly by frightened Europe.

It follows, logically enough, that last week's reduction would not have been probable unless the reserve banks were satisfied that the heavy drain on our gold was approaching its end. The suggestion that the reduction was made possible through the recent legislation, whereby the system's available surplus gold would be enlarged through releasing gold pledged as reserve note collateral is at least superfluous.

Europe Seems Reassured.

All indications of the week have been that the really important result of those amendments has been to remove Europe's very unnecessary fears that the federal reserve might presently not have gold enough left to keep on meeting foreign demands. The first reports, that Europe's markets were growing even more distrustful because of the recourse to legislative safeguards, did not indicate the real impression made.

No doubt the foreign hallucinations in regard to our currency were momentarily stirred to life by some exceedingly mischievous American correspondence in the European press, but that could not withstand plain explanation. The longer result has been wholly reassuring, and the probability now is that the European gold hoarding, like our own currency hoarding mania, has been definitely checked. The lowered reserve bank rate may perhaps be accepted as official recognition of the turn in the situation, both at home and abroad.

Recent Change Really Slight.

What is the actual situation? The reserve system's net loss of gold, since the European raid began last September, has been $548,191, but the reserve banks gave up $482,530,000 from their gold reserve between May of 1927 and July of 1928. They encouraged this reduction of our superfluous gold holdings, and deliberately facilitated gold export to Europe. Even so, their present gold holdings are greater by $350,000,000 than they were in the and July of 1928. They encouraged idea that all of the gold sent to Europe during the last five months has gone to the Bank of France. That, however, is wholly erroneous. The French bank has indeed obtained the larger share, but since Sept. 21 the gold reserve at the Belgian Central bank has increased $126,000,000, at the Dutch bank by $65,000,000, at the Swiss bank by $20,800,000, and even at the Bank of Italy by $11,500,000.

England, Germany Send Some.

As compared with a year ago, these four institutions have added no less than $695,000,000 to their aggregate gold reserves. It is true that much of this last mentioned increase represents gold taken from the Bank of England and the German reichsbank. It also is true that a great part of the increase in gold holdings since September has been offset by decrease in the foreign exchange reserves. But the essential fact is, first, that these smaller European central banks are absolutely stronger than they were in September; second, that they are now secure in the case of actual gold withdrawals. There is not the slightest reason for their relinquishment of gold payments.

AMERICAN CIGAR CURB FEATURE ON NEW PLANS

Niagara Hudson Power Shows Strength.

New York, Feb. 28.—(AP)—The curb market again finds itself in a narrow trading groove. The positions of leaders are little changed as a result of last week's small transactions.

Stocks affected by special developments or those which normally have a very thin market, swung out of the rut, but the rank and file made unimportant variations. There was still occasional easiness among utility shares. Oils were very dull. Industrials displayed a fairly good tone, although movements of the favorites were narrow.

American Cigar Higher.

American Cigar resumed its steady climb into new high ground coincident with news that this company, controlled by American Tobacco, was to be made into a holding organization which would have assured revenues sufficient to provide liberal earnings.

Cord Corporation was unsettled by the breaks in Auburn, but Ford of Canada "A," another active motor stock, firmed appreciably. Woolworth Ltd. was likewise stronger, doubtless because of reports that conditions in England were improving. Food issues ruled steady to firm, Swift International being especially active.

Utility Stock Feature.

Niagara Hudson's proposal for an exchange of stock, reducing the capitalization two-thirds and making the par value of the new shares $15 against $10 for the present issue, was an interesting development, especially since it came so soon after Electric Bond & Share's step in the same direction.

Aluminum of America had a rather sharp reaction prior to reduction of the preferred dividend, but regained part of its loss. Parker Rust was helped by a favorable earnings statement.

Dividend Changes Decrease in February's Last Week

New York, Feb. 28. — Both unfavorable and favorable dividend changes dropped in number last week. A compilation by the Standard Statistics company shows fifty-four unfavorable revisions, compared with sixty-three the week before, and eight favorable changes, compared with fourteen.

Because of the substantial dividend casualties in the last year, disbursements to stockholders in March are expected to show a sharp decrease from the 1930 total. Estimates place the amount to be paid next month at roughly $200,000,000, whereas a year ago payments aggregated $310,000,000.

MEN

Millions of dollars will be paid in 1932 to men who qualify to successfully represent this company.

TO BE ABLE TO TRUTHFULLY MAKE the above statement of successful business program is a matter of genuine pride to this company, and is, likwise, a foundation for that sense of confidence which is so necessary to the success of capable men.

SUCH MEN IN THIS BUSINESS, THIS year will make $5,000, $7,000, $10,000 and higher in cash; and such positions and income will be as secure and stable as any professional or business position could be.

THE SUCCESS OF OUR BUSINESS IN 1931 was such an outstanding commercial accomplishment that there has been wide-spread interest in the reasons, which, after all, are very simple. They can be stated in a single sentence. The management had the experience and intelligence to protect and serve the interests of its men and the ability to give practical leadership to their attitude and activities in successfully marketing a product which is exclusive in its quality and superiority to meet a present need in a broad and available market.

EXPERIENCE TEACHES THAT A PRODuct for successful specialty sale must be kept saleable for the average man. It is a fundamental principle in this kind of business that management must watch-fully and unselfishly act with loyalty to the interests of its men, just as men must loyally serve the interests of the company.

THE WISDOM AND JUDGMENT OF the management of this business is attested by the consistently world-wide expansion of its business, in spite of changing times and conditions. And the protection of wise care which has been given to the fundamental quality and saleability of its product is typically proven by the record of uninterrupted enlarging success it has enjoyed in the market where first introduced.

THE FIRST MODEL OF THIS REVOLUtionary service product was put on a foreign market thirteen years ago. Sales grew as fast as capable men could be found and trained. In due time it became the leader. Then its sales equaled the combined sales of all other products offered for the same service. Then its sales mounted to twice the combined sales of others—then three times—then four times —today they are five times greater than the combined sales of all others and the most significant fact is that the most recent month upon which we have report, gives that as the largest similar month in the entire history of our business in that market.

ONLY A BASICALLY SOUND SERVICE principle in original design, protected by optional improvements, could win and hold such public acceptance. The present model of this product was introduced to our market within the past two years —and those have been years of really brilliant success which unmistakably point to the same ultimate universal acceptance, and domination of this tremendous market. Two important facts prove the reasonableness of the above prediction. One was our 240th consecutive national record sales month and the January sales increase over the same period of 1931 give a brilliant introduction to a new record year.

AN EXAMPLE OF GREAT POSSIBILIties for money making in our business here in Chicago and vicinity can be obtained by noting the following recent earnings made by local men in our organization: H. Cordes, $242.50 last week; J. B. Allen, $48 last day of last week; S. Kary $75 for the week; E. L. Sweeney, $118.75 for the week; J. Goky, $75 up to Friday evening; H. W. Sprague, $50 up to Friday evening; H. Wall, W. T. Wilson, P. B. Lance, C. Brittara, $125, or over each for last week; C. J. McCabe who has only been in this business for a little over two weeks up to Saturday morning. Some of the above men have been with us over a period of time—others just a few months, and some are practically beginners and had little or no previous selling experience of any kind.

EVERY DEPARTMENT OF OUR BUSIness is sounder and more successful today than in any previous time and we are in search of men who can learn how to manage work of this kind, for themselves, and who have the purpose and disposition to make the most of a genuine specialty sales opportunity.

WE HAVE PLACES IN OUR LOCAL Chicago organization for a limited few such men, and if you feel you are qualified and have the ambition to succeed with this business, this is the right time to start. Come in Monday, 9-12, 1-4 p. m. for personal interview. See Why pay more than HOUSEHOLD'S LOW RATE on loans? . . . .

Household loans, $300 or less, to families at reasonable rates. Rate on loans above $100 almost one-third lower than maximum permitted by small loan law.

For example, average monthly cost of $200 repaid in 20 equal monthly payments is $2.63—the lowest in Chicago.

Strictly confidential. Husband and wife only need sign. No endorsers. Quick service. Twenty months to repay.
